Students, faculty all help put the pieces together

Have you ever tried to put together an unfinished jigsaw puzzle? It takes patience, just as it takes patience to put a school together. Very slowly the mud underfoot was replaced by sod and asphalt. Inside the brick walls, changes were taking place. Procedures were smoothed out by administrators led by new principal, Dr. Paul Lemman, and by the new campus monitors, frequently referred to as "bouncers." There were even fewer grumbles about closed campus. As seen in the upper left corner, the Jazz Band performed during lunch hour to liven up a Friday. Students of all classes spent days (and especially those weekend nights) out with friends or on dates. As Seniors Ellen O'Connell, Deb Maren, Sandy Johns, Anne Cordogan and Nan Davis spent warm days climbing trees (middle left) while Seniors Darrell Lake, Jerry Holtz, Jeff Andrews and Jim Buck went party-hopping at night (bottom left). Special dances such as Sadie Hawkins gave Seniors Jean Johnston and Jim Sheppard something different to do in November (bottom right).

The STC jigsaw fits as promises come true

Some of the unfulfilled promises, such as an extra road onto Dunham Road, an activity bus, and more parking lots, began to come true and eventually not only did the solar panels work, but the track was completed too. Among many changes, the year seemed to be filled with many cold days and false fire alarms (which everyone ignored), and the organizations such as choir, co-op, AFS, Student Congress, Drill Team (seen top right), Pep and Key Club got it together with trips (Atlanta!), conventions, banquets, competition, and especially those fundraisers (Get rid of those M&M's).

Prom was an activity worked hard for by the Junior class and as shown by Junior Fred Koch, the tricycle races were just one of the daily activities participated in. The first bonfire in eight years was another '78-'79 achievement and the Powder Keg dances after the football and basketball games. Sophomore Dan Nielson and Suzette Vasquez (top and bottom left) really dove into the contests at Sadie Hawkins and Junior Mitch Mulch is seen concentrating on "what's going on" in 5th hour study hall in the West Commons. Those five minutes in between classes was no longer spent finding classrooms; more time was spent chatting with friends or finishing homework. Lockers were a social area and every clique had their own hang-out-with an occasional walk to talk to other people. Birthdays were celebrated with decorations and pep assemblies were attended on Fridays before a home game. (Remember Mr. Childs as the disc jockey and the Budweiser song!)

Puzzle pieces fall into place; STC becomes more like 'home'

Student life: part of learning

Student life. For some, numerous projects, classes and homework filled the days. For others, school was a social area — filled with hours of finding parties to attend on week-ends and making plans with friends. Activities such as Homecoming, Christmas Formal, and Prom marked the season's and others found themselves rehearsing day after day for "The Fantasticks" and "Jesus Christ Superstar." Eating definitely became a Varsity sport — with some spending each day watching the McDonald's prices going higher and higher (A Big Mac was 95¢). Others cured their attacks of the munchies with French Silk pie from Poppin' Fresh or a large pizza from Pizza Hut. When $3.50 (expensive much?) could be found, a trip to Foxfield or the Arcada was planned. "Halloween," "Superman," and "Fast Break" were just a few of the featured movies. When the warm weather came around (after much waiting), celebration took place in row 11 of the drive-in. Those who could get the car drove to football and basketball games or made an appearance at the popular parties. Time after school was spent either going to work to earn some extra "cash" or attending practice and when there was "nothing to do," students often toilet-papered the house of a "friend." For most, the days and weeks locked into a pattern with occasional special trips to concerts or out to dinner. Shown here are memories of events past — a dried corsage from a formal or a birthday, ticket and concert stubs, magazine clippings, popular albums and tapes, and a Sadie Hawkins marriage license. Student life was more than five days a week of classes such as Algebra or History, it was also developing friendships, accepting responsibilities, building trust, and having fun; it was part of the puzzle of life . . .

With the theme "Disney On Parade," Homecoming was filled with activities from years past which were put together with new ideas. Over 1,000 people played or watched the Powder Puff football game held Wednesday night at Reid Field. Boy coaches and cheerleaders led the Senior girls to a victory over the juniors, and the freshmen were defeated by the sophs. Teams spent many afternoons practicing or just plain "getting in shape."

Featured at the Queen's Assembly held Tuesday morning was the band Freewheeling. A history of rock and roll, using many popular songs, was done by Freewheeling. This appearance was a preview of songs played at a dance Tuesday night. The week was also filled with float construction, trike races, and a tug-of-war. If you hadn't forgotten your homework by then, there was also a bonfire — the first one in eight years. Students spent Thursday building a bonfire from pallets which were crowned by a Larkin Royal.

Sadie swings at STC

As November rolled around again, girls had a chance to ask guys to Sadie Hawkins. The tradition was started in Al Capp's comic strip "Li'l Abner" where Daisy Mae chased Li'l Abner around in hopes of catching him.

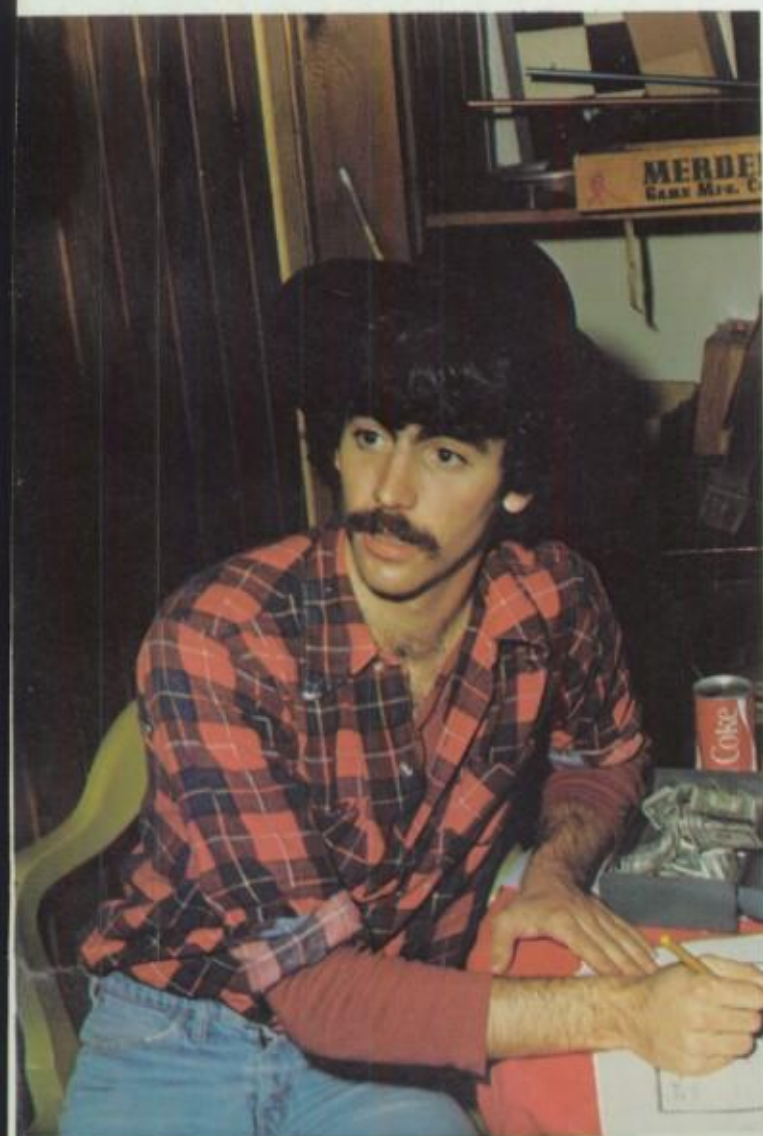

Marryin' Sam also made an appearance November 11 from 8:30-11 pm to hitch couples for six bits.

Couples, dressed in plaid flannel shirts, overalls, and blue jeans, danced to music by Osiris.

Keg Board decorated for the dance using bales of hay and pie-eating and cider-chugging contests were held. Pal Joey's, Geneva Mining Company, and Enrico's were a few of the popular places that couples went to before or after the dance.

(Clockwise from center this page): Seniors Louis Penny and Jane Maher participate in the apple-eating contest. Being hitched by Marryin' Sam are sophomores Lara Bergmann and Dave Rhodes. Couples take time to relax among the many bales of hay. Paul Jamieson, Marryin' Sam, spends the night performing ceremonies and giving out marriage licenses. Juniors Sheri Simpson and Pete Morgano enjoy the music of Osiris. Juniors Betsy Saxer and Eric Wermager sit back among the bales of hay, and Martha Daly, junior, dives into the pie-eating contest.

Square dance, long dresses join for Valentine's Dance

A large "Happy Valentine's Day" filled one section and the other walls and mirror were decorated with red, white, and pink streamers and hearts. The Valentine's Formal was held February 18 from 8:30-11 pm and 80 couples filled the upstairs of the Baker Community House. Wearing everything from long to medium-length dresses, girls danced with guys who were dressed in three-piece suits and music was provided by the Spring O'Brien Band. Boys were asked by girls to this Powder Keg formal and the square dance (the second to last song) was the favorite of most couples. After dancing and talking to friends, most dates went out of town to dinner at such places such as the Viking, P.O.E., and other places in West Chicago and Elgin.

" . . . I want to go where the people dance, I want some action, I want to live. I love the nightlife . . . " It was cramming as many people as possible in Dad's car and taking a trip out Route 25 for some refreshments and then cruising up and down Main Street trying to catch all the green lights. Some nights were spent watching movies at Foxfield or the Arcada and warm weather led to a Friday night at the Cascade. After movies or even roller skating at Funway, it was time to search the streets for a lot of cars — a sure sign of a party in progress. Parents leaving for a weekend or at least a night meant students relaxing (beaching) all over the house and many friends talking, laughing, and once-in-a-while even drinking (no!). A stop at Mac's was definitely necessary; a sure cure for the munchies and even a party-line (pun?). Keg was a place to stop by to take up time while looking for something to do, or a place to play some pool and even dance.

Occasionally, although no one knows how, houses were toilet-papered or letters were stolen by rowdy teen-agers let loose with nothing to do. Dancing to radio music in the middle of playgrounds and school parking lots was a real thrill for "kids" with nothing better to do. Driving around town (searching for padidles) was another form of recreation, seeing who else was out on Main and usually speeding and making sure to avoid local cops. Oh yea, I love the nightlife . . .

This page, above left: Foxfield Theater, located on Route 64, showed three new movies every week at a rate of $3.50-$3.75 a person. The three featured were popular during March-April 1979.

Above right: Books of many types-romance, fiction-were "big" among teens as something to do in study hall or after a test. Bottom right: The Commodores, Journey, Jackson Browne, Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band, Chicago, Fleetwood Mac, Boston, Gino Vanelli, Foreigner, Doobie Brothers, Joe Walsh, Toto, Billy Joel, Dire Straits, and the Rolling Stones were just a few of the many groups whose albums and tapes sold for $5.99-$8.99 during 1978-79.

Television, radio, and movies all provided entertainment and even a good reason to put off homework for a while. "Mork and Mindy" made the top of the famous (?) Nielson ratings along with "Happy Days" (The Fonz lives on), "Eight is Enough" (Nicholas is a cutie), "Paper Chase" (Mr. Rogina's favorite), "M*A*S*H", "White Shadow" (love those bodies), and who could forget "Charlie's Angels"? When the television was not turned on, the radio was most likely turned into WE FM, the LOOP, or even (help us)

WLS. Songs like "Reunited" or "Shake Your Groove Thing" by Peaches and Herb, "Knock On Wood," "Wheel In The Sky" or "Anytime" by Journey, "Do You Think I'm Sexy?" by Rod Stewart, "Alive Again" by Chicago, "September" by Earth, Wind and Fire, and "Freak Out" by Le Chic were popular. On the movie scene, "Halloween," the story of the dumb girl being chased by the boogiemani — it was SCARY, "Fast Break" (Preacher was the best), "The China Syndrome" (Today only a handful of people know what it's about but soon you will know . . .), "California Suite" (Richard Pryor and Bill Cosby together), "Heaven Can Wait" (Warren Beatty is a fox), and of course, the very expensive remake of "Superman" that starred Christopher Reeves as Clark Kent. "Coming Home" and "Deer Hunter:" were two award-winners about Viet Nam. Occasionally the Arcada would have a key buy-$2-$3 to get in. Entertainment! What a way to go!

Love has always been a subject of special interest and it's love that blossomed in the musical "Fantastiks" and the play "Devil and Daniel Webster." In the "Fantastiks," the storyline centered around the mature and immature love of two young people, portrayed by Dave Hunt and Deb St. Pierre. Daniel Webster played by Dave Jahn fights for his soul because of his everlasting love to his wife-to-be, played by Gail Livingston. Although the "Fantastiks" was the first winter production of the high school, it was a total success. The fall production, "Devil and Daniel Webster," was just as fascinating and successful. Above, hired to kidnap Louisa to end a "fatherly feud", El Gallo, played by Mark Cote, awaits his victim in the shadows. Right, as the fathers (Brad Schneider and Dave Jahn) argue over their kumquats, Matt (Dave Hunt) and Louisa (Deb St. Pierre) realize that the illusion of the night before has suddenly turned to reality.

Top: Scratch proves to Jabez Stone that he is in fact the devil by performing a few mystical tricks as Daniel Webster looks on in disbelief. Bottom: After the long and crazy feud staged by the fathers, Hucklebee, Bellamy, Louisa, and Matt are reunited.

Superstar outshines them all

"What's the buzz? Tell me what's happenin' " Sound familiar? If it does, you are probably one of close to three thousand people who saw the spring '79 STC production of "Jesus Christ Superstar." Sell-out performances on Friday and Saturday night even saw people turned away at the door. "Superstar" turned out to be one of the best, if not the best, production to ever be done at STC. Great sets, costuming, and choreography added to the play. Some highlights of the play included outstanding performances by Dave Hunt, Mark Cote, Dave Jahn and Mary Angerer.

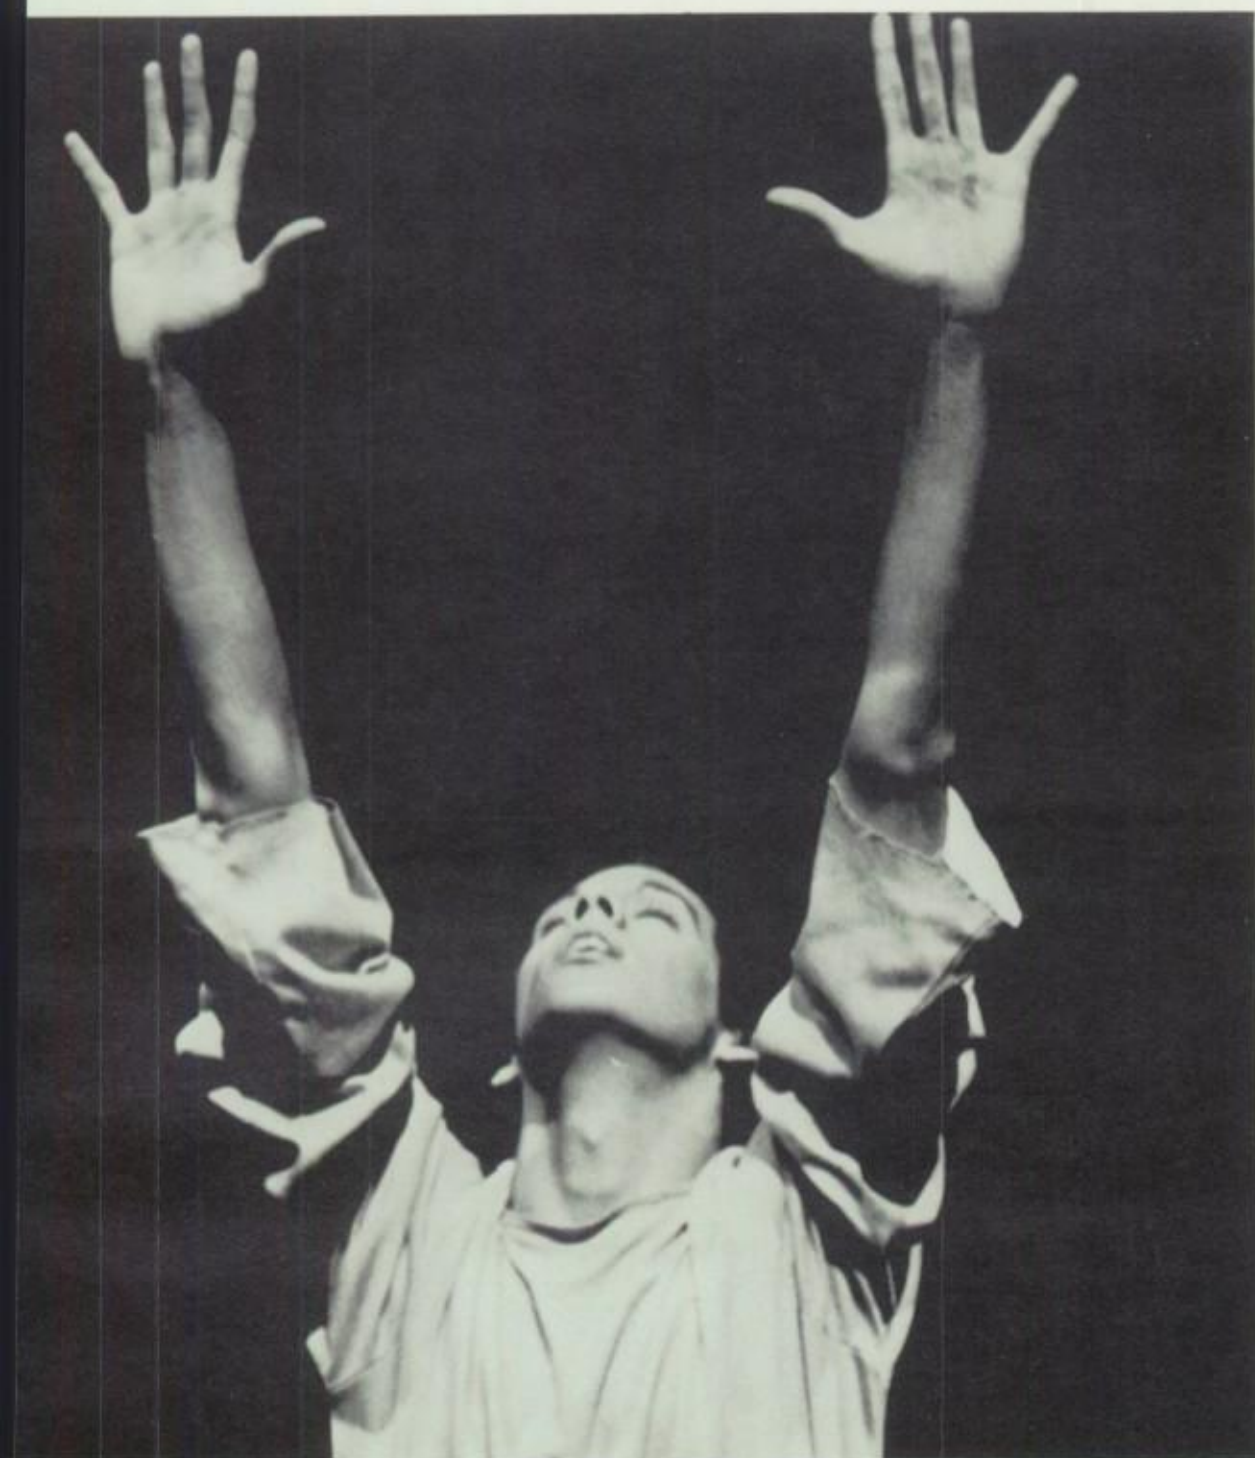

When cast members wish each other luck by saying "Break a leg!" they don't mean it literally. Unfortunately Junior Elbert Massingil took it to heart as he received a compound ankle fracture one hour prior to curtain on Friday night. What could have meant disaster turned out fine in the end, Sophomore Jeff Jones stepped in to fill the part. Jones, after learning the song and dance number for the part of Herod in less than an hour, went on to do a great job.

Under the direction of Mr. John Mehalic cast members and crews combined hard work and effort to put on the best production possible. With as much time as was put into the production cast members couldn't help but become a family of sorts. Parties and get togethers continued even after the last performance.

An extra bonus to the cast was the fact that they were able to put the show on one more time for the 8th graders the following week. But as it ended, cast members felt mixed emotions trying to hold back the tears of sadness and not letting out their screams of joy. It was another piece of the STC puzzle complete.

Could be a tux rush

Many hours before the "big dance" were spent combing Woodfield, Yorktown, and Fox Valley searching for the perfect dress for the evening. Or searching for the perfect tux from places like Gingiss, Thomas Jeffries, and Gunter's.

While prom was a time for dancing, it was also a time for just holding hands. (above right)

The theme this year was "Just You and Me." The juniors encountered many difficulties, the main one being money, in trying to finance prom. The weekend was made complete when couples wielded picnic baskets and 6-packs, as they traveled far and wide for picnics. Anywhere from Lake Geneva to Great America Amusement park was the place to be.

Above right, Jeff Elliot and Kim Ash dance to the music of the Dick Eastman Band, while bids, (lower right) provide fond memories for prom goers. Familiar place takes new face

Decorating: no easy job

Streamers, streamers, and more streamers along with a lot of tape and patience to put together a Prom. Good ideas are also needed to make those yellow, white, and green streamers brighten up the West Commons. Flowers on all the tables, and big daisies on the walls and hanging from the ceiling helped to cheer up the atmosphere. Although actual decorating did not begin until Friday afternoon. Decorators also worked to get tables in order, the gazebo ready, and the fountain all set before the couples arrived for an evening of fun and dancing.

Students receive awards during STC Honors Night

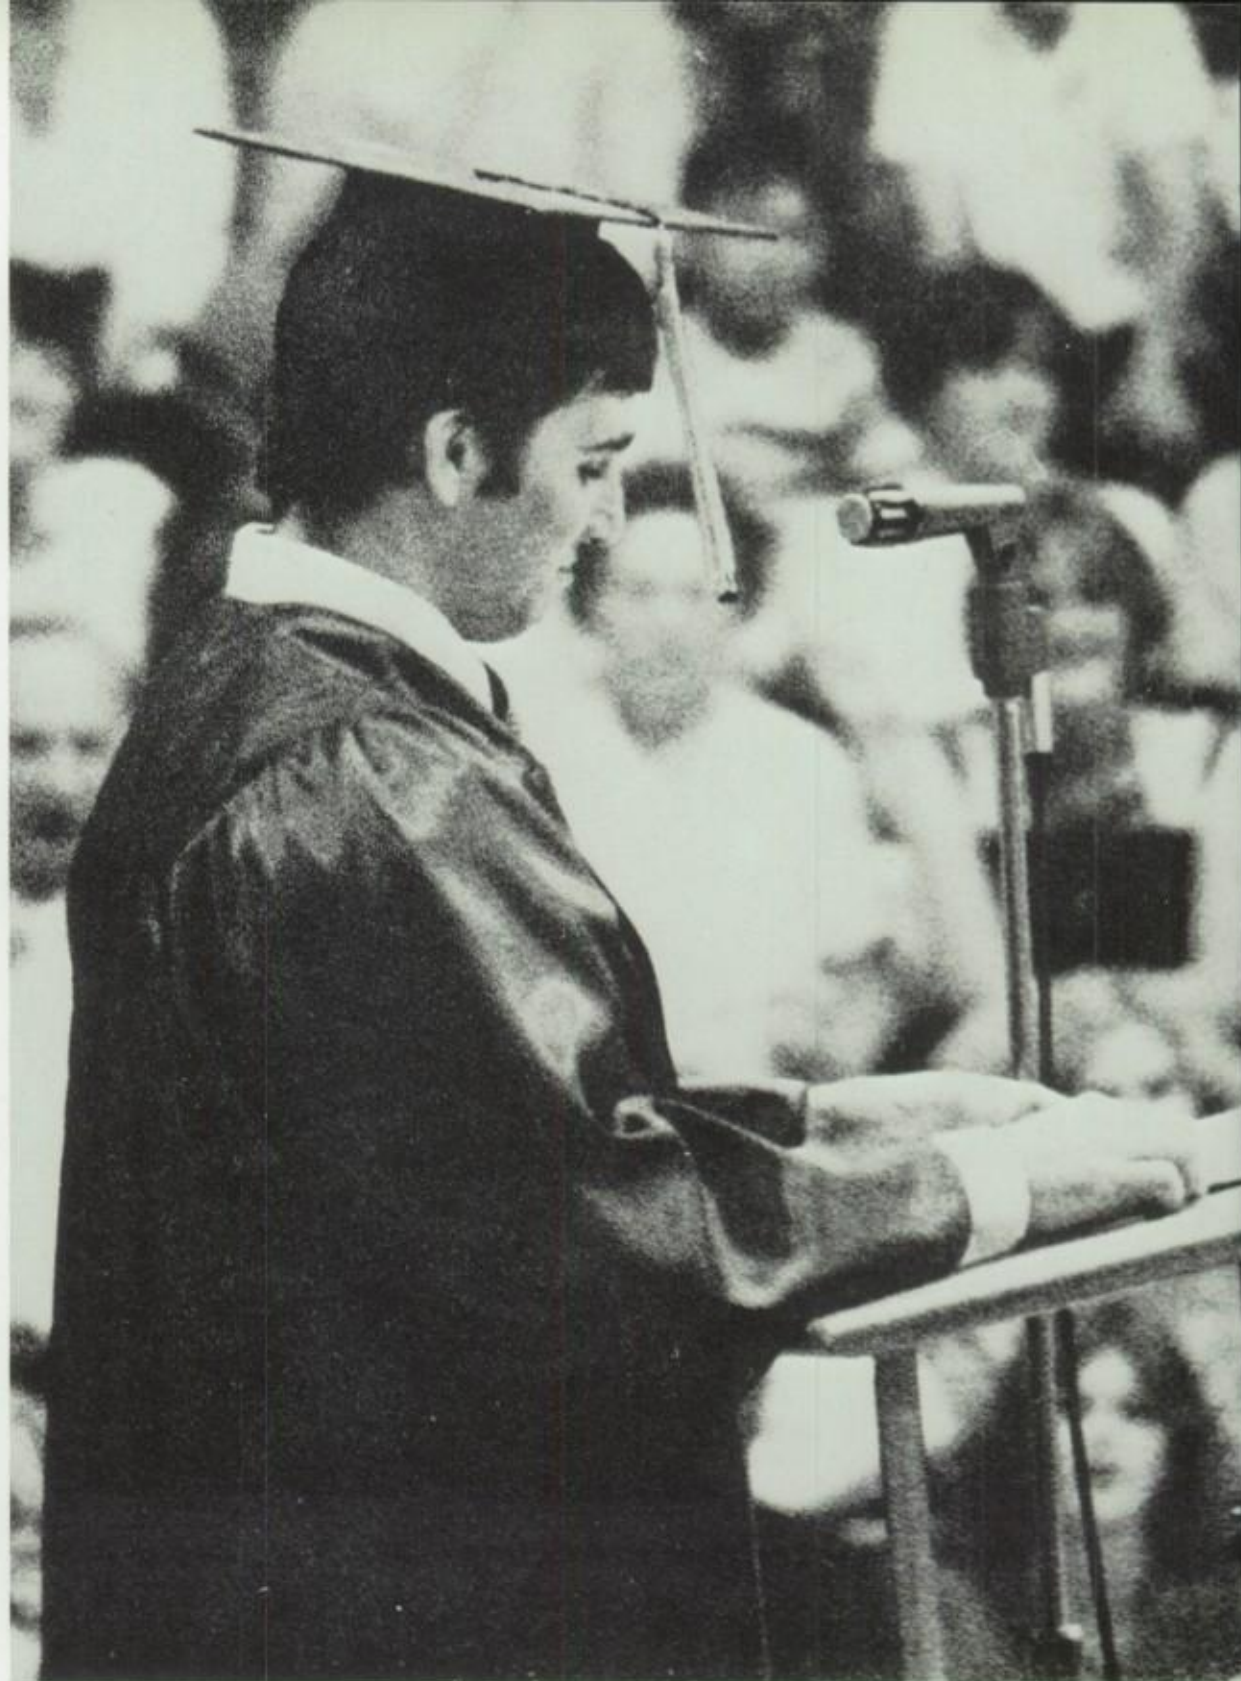

More than 100 outstanding juniors and seniors were recognized at the 1979 Honors Night, which was held May 21 in the Cultural Arts Center. Students accepted scholarships and certificates of merit for their excellent achievements in the academic and athletic fields. Award from Mr. James Bannon.

Completing a puzzle fills a person with a sense of satisfaction, of knowing that they did it, and knowing that now they are ready to move onto something new and untried. This was the feeling many seniors experienced as graduation became more than a dream, but turned into reality. It was a time of knowing that life would change and everyone would be moving on to different things, hopefully better things, and that when the moving was done, many would move farther and farther from friends they had spent those four years growing up with. After four long years of working to finish term papers on time (In one night usually), sharing laughs and jokes with friends, and consoling each other when the going got rough, it was hard to believe that all of that should end in one short night. Plans for the future were discussed and there were a few mixed emotions about going into the real world and leaving behind the familiarity of STC. Party after party, prank after prank (the water tower, tressel, and T.P.-ing the school and Ray Jay's house), celebrated the ending of senior year as good-byes were said and lockers were cleaned out. Graduation may have ended the puzzle we put together here at STC, but it opened up a brand new world of jigsaws, and as the saying went: "Later . . . much!"

Last piece falls into place as seniors graduate

This page (top): Seniors listen carefully to instructions given at Graduation practice, as a few seniors demonstrate how to walk up the aisle on June 8th. Seniors Missy Merkel and Joe Ringhofer, watched by Counselor Orv Jones, leave early after receiving their caps and gowns and practicing for Baccalaureate Services. Graduation was held in the Main Gym Friday, June 8th at 8 pm.

Academics: learning 'by the book'

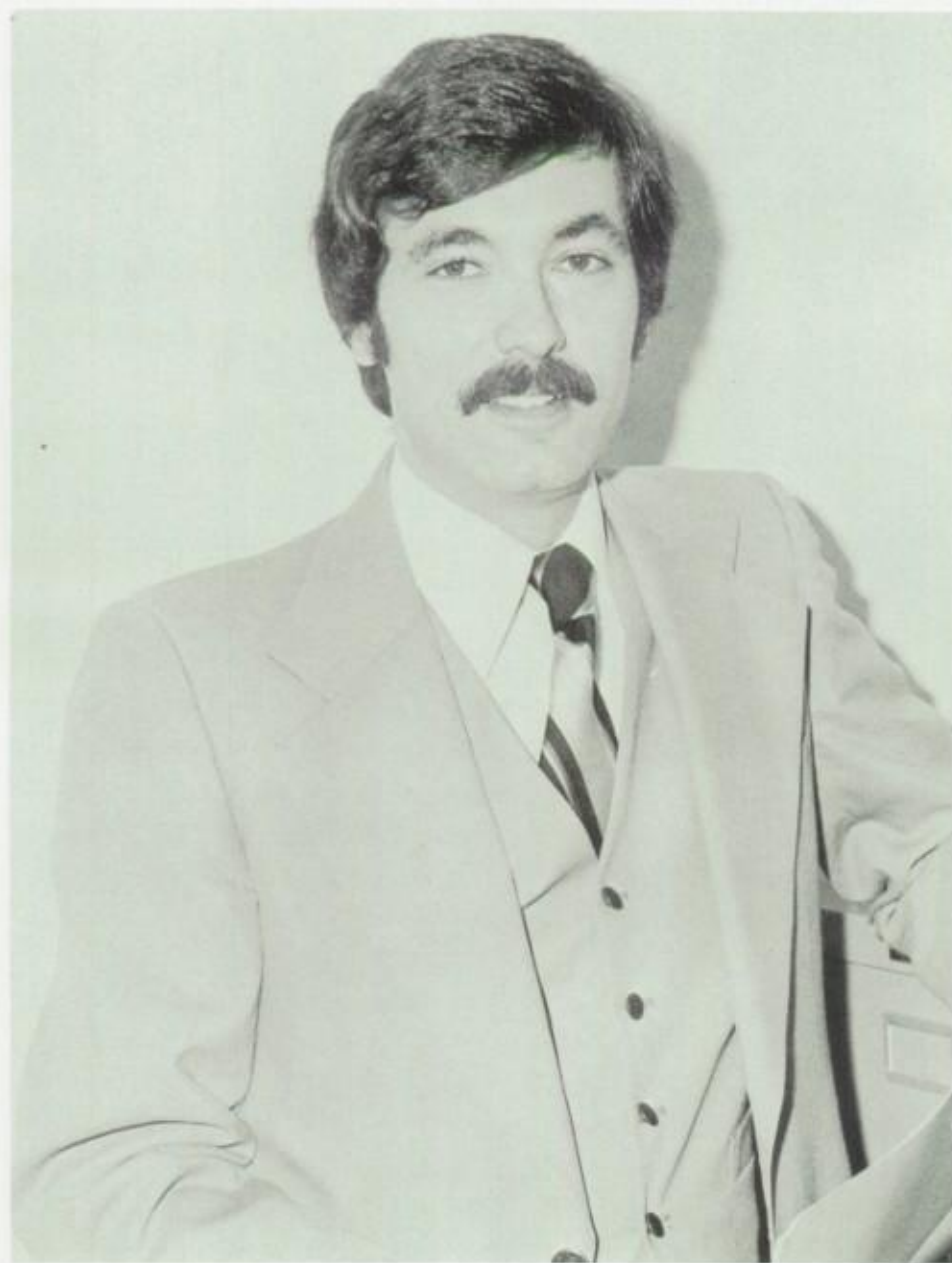

Homework. Even the thought was too much for some to handle. For those who took school seriously, there were many academic challenges - honors classes, extra credit, math meets or similar competitions, or just the struggle to keep up class rank. For others, those who found Trigonometry or Latin mindboggling (it freaks you out), there were class activities like mock trials and Congress, speeches, skits in foreign languages, movies, and even individual projects where you could pick what interested you. Chemistry labs provided a chance for the devil in us all to come out ("accidentally" burning lab books) and there were even days when understanding a tough subject made you feel pretty proud of yourself. Everyone (especially the poor frosh) went through the basic classes — English I, Oral Communications, Algebra I — but each semester brought students closer to electives like Business Law (love those freebies) or Spanish (the vocabulary quizzes were the best). There were always those days when the kid brought in the slip of paper that meant a trip out of class to the Dean's Office or to Guidance. The school was occasionally referred to as a zoo, although students preferred the "Animal House" image. As seen here, books filled an hour during the day and too many hours at night along with the typewriters, pens, markers, rulers, and scissors were used to complete extra work. College information and books about the infamous SAT/ACT tests were soon passed out and STC also had its share of excessive paperwork. Dean's pass, hall pass, referrals, late passes, permits to leave the building, prearranged absences, and progress reports were just a few of the goodies possibly received. And considering how jammed some of the lockers were, it was more than just hitting the books, it was finding them . . .

Administrators help piece together the year

Another new face arrived at STC this year to help put the pieces together. Dr. Paul Leman, (right) formerly an assistant principal at Lyons Township in La Grange and a principal in Arizona, said his first goal was "to help guide everyone through the changes" and adjustments still necessary after such sudden growth as a school. North Central Evaluation was very important to Leman this year, as well as the new set of discipline guidelines he helped develop. With the help of his Principal's Advisory Committee, Leman tried to piece together better attendance procedures, monitor policies and assemblies. Leman and his family say they love St. Charles as he summed it up by saying, "St. Charles is everything we thought it would be."

Three new deans tried this year to sort out the pieces of attendance procedures, in building suspensions and other discipline problems. Mary Gysin (above left) used the background she gained last year as a dean intern to leave the physical education department each day and become a part-time dean. Bob Teichart (above) also left p.e. to add deans' duties to his responsibilities as swimming coach. The totally new face in the group belongs to Norm Widerstrom (left) who previously was at Proviso West High School.

In an effort to keep more students in school, more money coming in from state aid, and fewer "undesirables" receiving occasional days out of school, in-building suspensions were added. The deans, who were to oversee this project, found themselves more involved than expected as IBS monitors were hard to find and keep. Students expressed mixed emotions about the effectiveness of IBS, but the deans and administration termed it at least a monetary success.

New student committees help solve puzzles

New committees were formed to help create peace among students, faculty, and administrators. The Principal's Advisory Committee (PAC) met once a month in the Conference room to discuss questions students might have and also to give the administration some student input. Leader of the PAC Paul Leman worked with Seniors Anne Cordogan, John Ward, Nan Davis, Junior Suzanne Dawson, Sophomores Dave Bayard, Lori Vitali, and Freshman Jeff Ward and discussed topics such as spring break, weighted grades, attendance procedures, the work of the monitors, the North Central Evaluation, and final exams. (See picture below.)

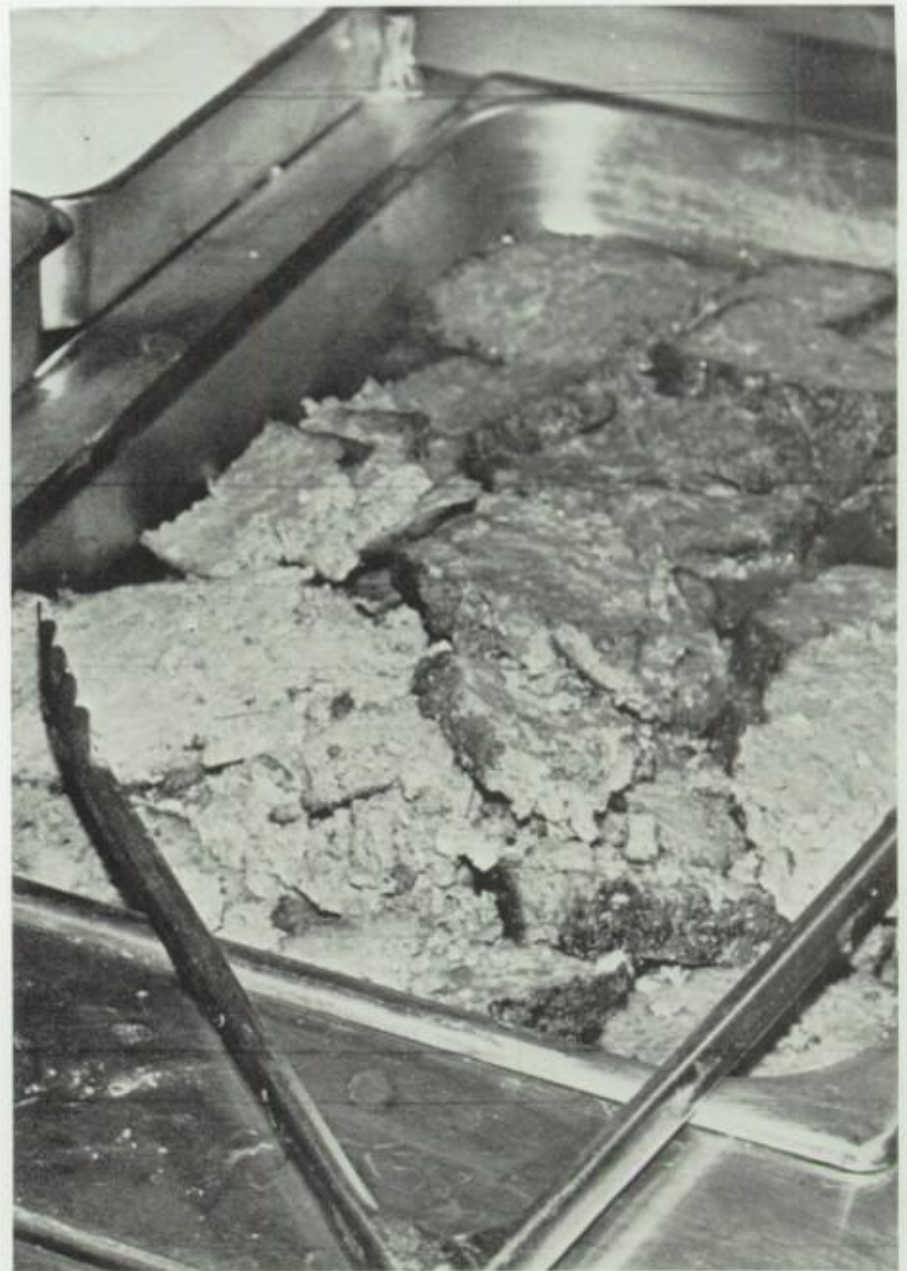

The second new committee was the Food Committee, under the direction of Assistant Principal James Bannon.

Members Sue Hyde and Dave Webb, seniors, Suzanne Dawson, junior, Carol Pope, sophomore, Lori Brungard, freshman, and faculty members Sharon Jaenel and Bob

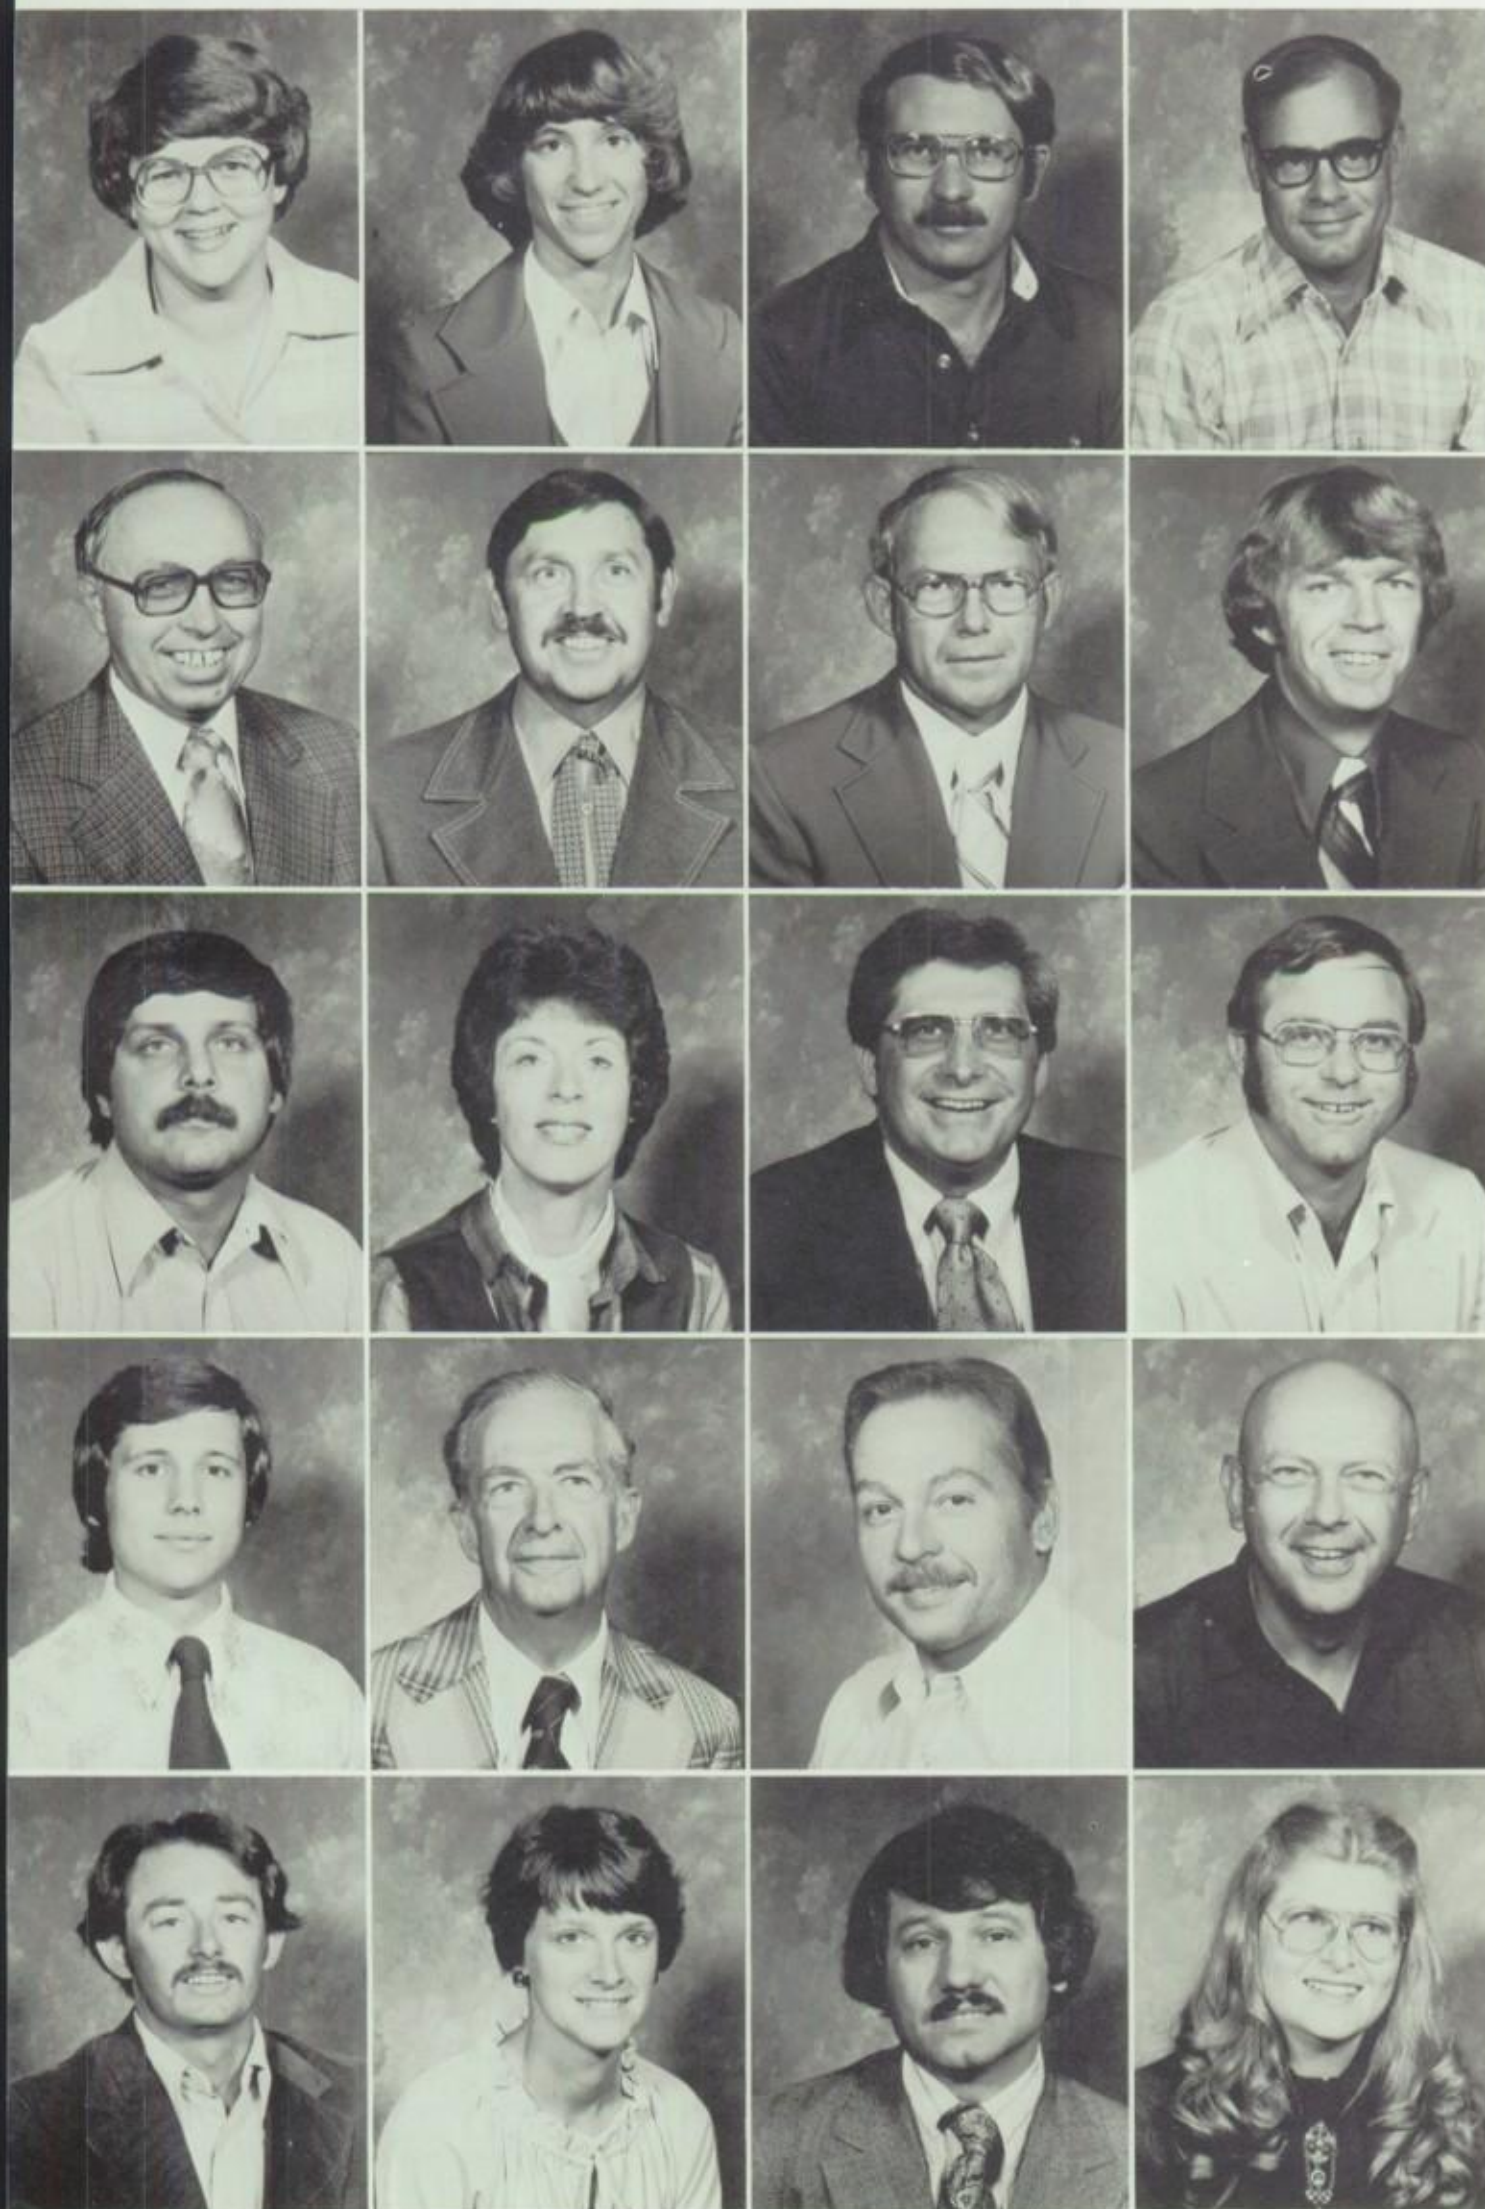

Horlock talked about the ARA food service and also offered suggestions as to what food students would like to see served. Meat loaf (left) received limited approval. The Assembly Committee was the third committee formed and through this committee all of the assemblies were planned. The members were Deb Maren, senior, Suzanne Dawson, junior, and faculty members Jeff Childs, John Stoffel, Kathy Brens, Barb Luckinbill, and Robert DeVoss.

The committee was led by Assistant Principal Robert Wright.

New faculty team suits up, joins the intramural scene

Now at center court, the faculty intramural team consisting of Rick Butcher, from social science, Wayne De Maar, from guidance, Larry Hawkins from the health department, Trent Richards from physical education, and Jim Parker from math. Sound familiar? These were five of the members of the recently started faculty basketball team. The idea for the intramural team developed in 1977 but didn't actually "get off the ground" until this year. The team played in the same league that the student intramural teams play in. The games were always filled with fun, but the faculty members did play seriously to win. The team finished in 4th place with a record of 6 and 2. Other members of the team were Mark Voreis, Joseph Snyder, Ray Rogina and Paul Rodda.

Fancy eggs, nursery tots show up in home ec

A babysitter for an egg? It sounds unnecessary, but not for the students in Mrs. Karen Wuellner's child development class. Feeling that students needed to relate to the problems of parental responsibility, Wuellner devised an assignment to show this. The students became "parents" of a hard boiled egg, chosen by Wuellner because they, too, are fragile, just like babies. The eggs then developed personalities by the way they were dressed and decorated. Sitters had to be "hired" if a parent was busy; eggs could not be left unattended. "Child abusers" who accidentally broke their eggs before the assignment was over were then issued raw eggs so they would be "extra careful."

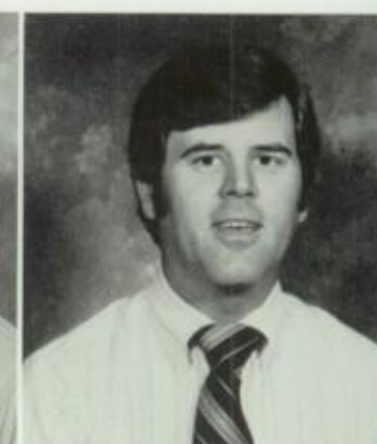

The second semester of the course is unique, too. A nursery is held for 3 and 4 year olds, with a $25 fee charged to cover snacks and materials. "There is such an overwhelming response from the parents that we have to run it on a first-come-first-serve basis."

Is it hard to run this type of thing with only inexperienced teenagers as "teachers?" "Organization is the key," said Wuellner. "You really have to be organized." She also uses a lot of psychology. A mini-graduation ceremony is even conducted at the end of the session with each child receiving a diploma.

Wuellner's only regret about the child development class — that more boys would take the course "because they also have to take care of children when they become fathers."

Class advisors work together with students

Just what does a class advisor do? Class advisors really "got it together" this year with many sales and activities and advisors were there to help back up the group in projects and to keep the people in the group together. The advisors' job was tricky sometimes because although students want to take care of everything, there are times when incentive is needed to get the job done.

Advisors were usually well respected and helped their group of students very much. This was the case of the 4 class officers at STC.

Mr. James Hoover was in charge of the freshman class, and he said that his job included setting up meetings, being a sponsor, and getting ideas put together for money-making projects. This was Hoover's first year of being a freshman class advisor and he feebishly admitted that he took it because no one else wanted it. The sophomore class had 2 advisors, Mrs. Sharon Soper and Mrs. Margaret Birth. This was the first year for Mrs. Soper to advise sophomores although she has done other classes in the past. Birth has been an advisor since she came to STC 2 years ago. Birth said that she enjoys working with kids outside the classroom setting.

Leading the class of '80 was Mr. Gary Mason. He volunteered for any class and was chosen to help the juniors. Mason's job included fund-raising activities for Prom and calling meetings whenever he felt it necessary, and of course all of the paperwork. To get the class out of debt, the juniors sold candy and litter baskets.

Advisors are often asked to put in as much time as the students, especially when floats are being made or when it's time to decorate for a dance and Mr. Tim Dailey was no exception. Dailey supervised activities and helped to sponsor a Student-Faculty basketball game. An advisor for two years, he took the job because he was asked. Seniors held meetings once every two weeks and Dailey said, "The kids are very organized."

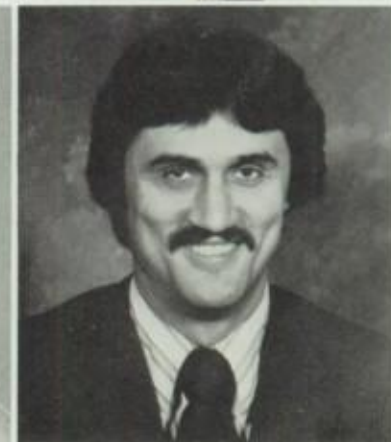

You know the old saying, an advisors work is never done . . .

The four class advisors are at the left, the junior class advisor, Mr. Mason, at the right is the freshman class advisor Mr. Hoover, below left the senior class advisor Mr. Dailey and below right is Mrs. Birth, sophomore advisor. Mrs. Soper also helps with the sophomore. (not pictured.)

Teacher moonlights as 'The Kernel'

Mr. Darrell Thicksten, an English teacher here at St. Charles, is better known as "The Kernel". Thicksten began his own concession business when he bought an old popper from his mother in 1974.

During the summer of 1974, the Thicksten family sold popcorn to the Building and Trades Field in St. Charles. They also popped for the Lassies baseball team and FFA who sold the popcorn during the football games. In 1974 they also bought their first of three vans and turned it into a concession truck. They then began to handle company picnics and horse shows. In March of '76 the Thickstens went one better and bought their second van, and an antique popcorn wagon. The wagon is used for parties and promotions.

In May of '78 Thicksten bought his third truck. The Kernel handles sixteen company picnics and three horse shows, and each year the number grows. The popcorn business works well into Thicksten's teaching schedule. The peak of the business occurs during the summer. What once started out as just a popcorn stand in the late 1800's is now a full line concession stand due to the ambition of Darrell Thicksten.

Moonmaid joins class

Have you ever thought going back into your childhood? Did you ever want to have x-ray glasses? Have you ever wondered what it would be like to talk to someone from the moon? All of these wishes could be accomplished by something called hypnotic suggestion. In November, Mr. Bill Johnson, a hypnotist, visited STC psychology classes.

Volunteers from the classes went through a number of situations. After being hypnotized, students found themselves in a totally different world. A suggestion or two from Mr. Johnson and the volunteers were watching funny movies on blank white walls, fighting off giant ants, or even speaking in numbers. Senior Kim Lewis was transformed into the moon-maid, from, of course, Moon High School. 7-5-3 may only be a sequence of numbers to you, but to the moon-maid and her interpreter, it meant "hello." Johnson was also able to transform people into their early childhood. Stephanie Robinson was seen drawing a picture of herself the time she got caught in the monkey bars in kindergarten.

It is said that all good things must come to an end, and likewise with the hypnotism. The class of '79 was the last class to experience the moon maid and childhood regression. Mr. James Hoover, the classroom teacher, has been told that he will not be allowed for the hypnotism to continue. For the underclassmen, psych will be just another class now.

Mock trials, congress simulate reality And the judge called for order . . .

Once again, the Business Law classes at STC were able to experience legal proceedings as they participated in mock trials. The students themselves acted in all the roles; the lawyers, defendants, plaintiffs, and jury members were all STC students. The cases were presided over by the Honorable Raymond Rogina, judge and teacher of the course. The text book was the traditional channel for learning in the classroom, but the mock trials gave Business Law students the chance to put what they had learned from the book into practical use. In order for the trial to take place, there obviously had to have been a crime. This was not a problem as the students fabricated crimes for the trial. Even those that were not directly involved in the trial enjoyed the experience, and learned quite a bit from it as well.

STC American Government classes also experienced a bit of "the real world" in their mock Congress. With teacher John Mizanin watching over them, students became members of the House of Representatives, formed political parties, and even wrote their own bills. Students learned from experience; they learned how corruption can find its way into politics, and at the same time found out which of their classmates they could trust. A speaker of the House was elected as well as a clerk to assist him. STC's Congress representatives were able to write their own bills, and follow them through the various committees. Learning by doing seemed to be the way, and STC students in Business Law and American Government were able to do so this year.

Coaching no easy job

Although teaching is a full time job, many faculty members at STC go beyond just classroom work. About 90 percent of the school sports are coached by high school teachers, in accordance with the ISHA rule that coaches should be employed by the district.

The 78-79 school year has been an unfortunate one for two varsity sports. Two teachers who have been coaching for several years have resigned from their positions.

Varsity head football coach Leo Vitali (below) has been replaced by Russ Anderson. Fred Bruder, (right) another important member of the coaching staff as head wrestling coach, also resigned from his position at the season's end.

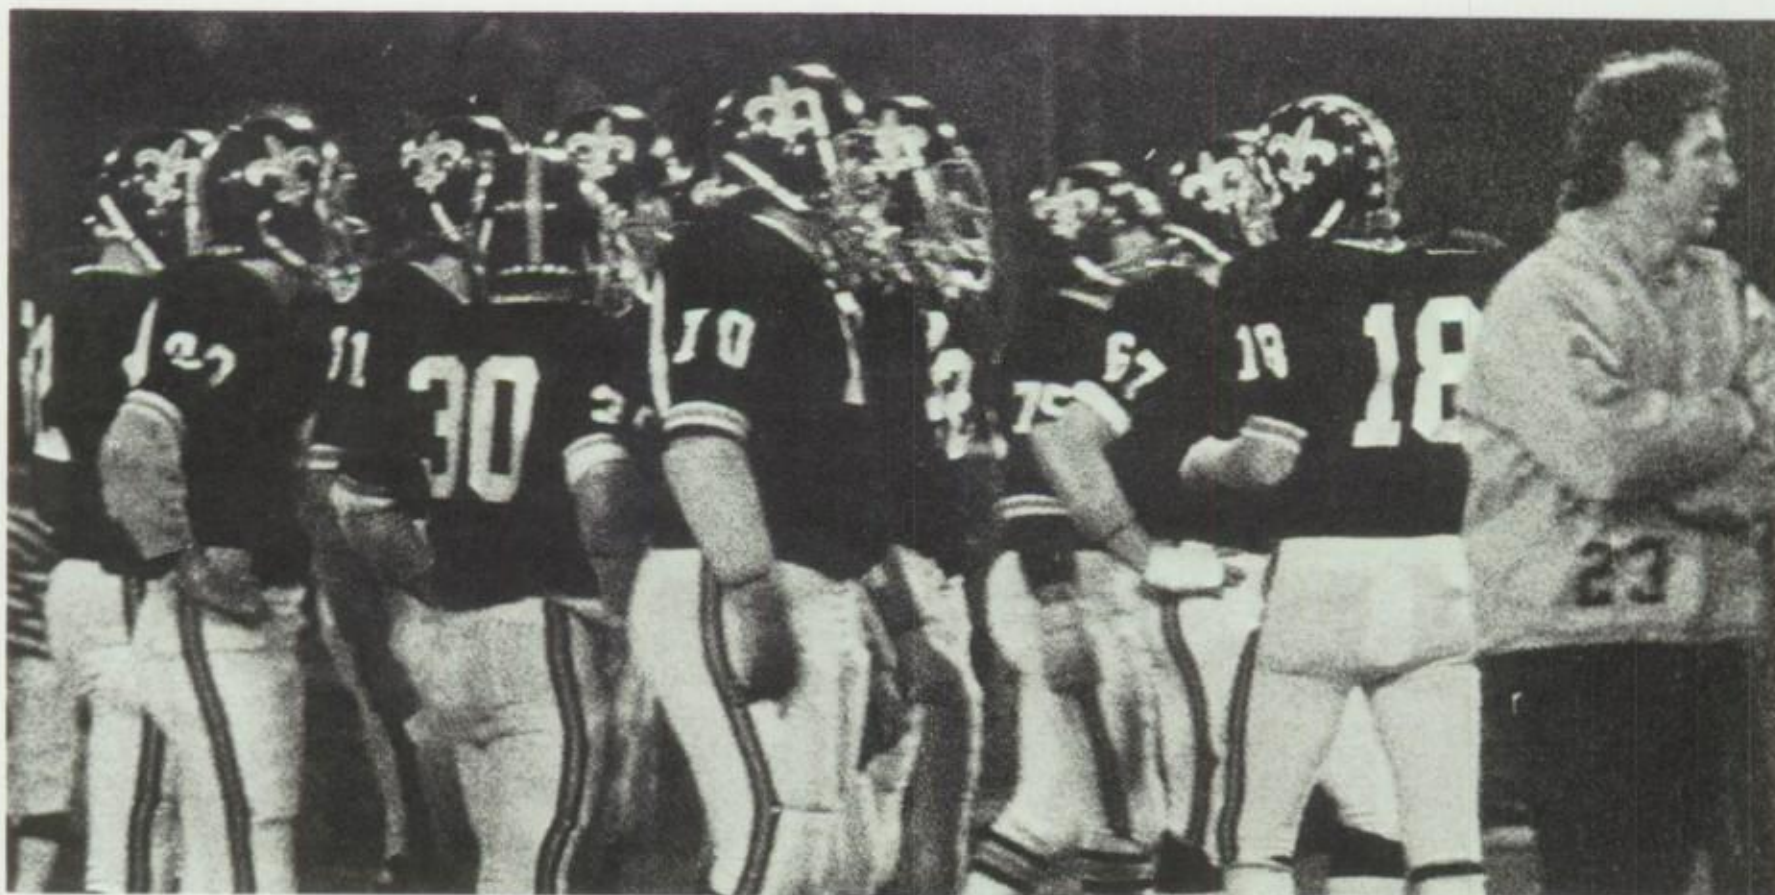

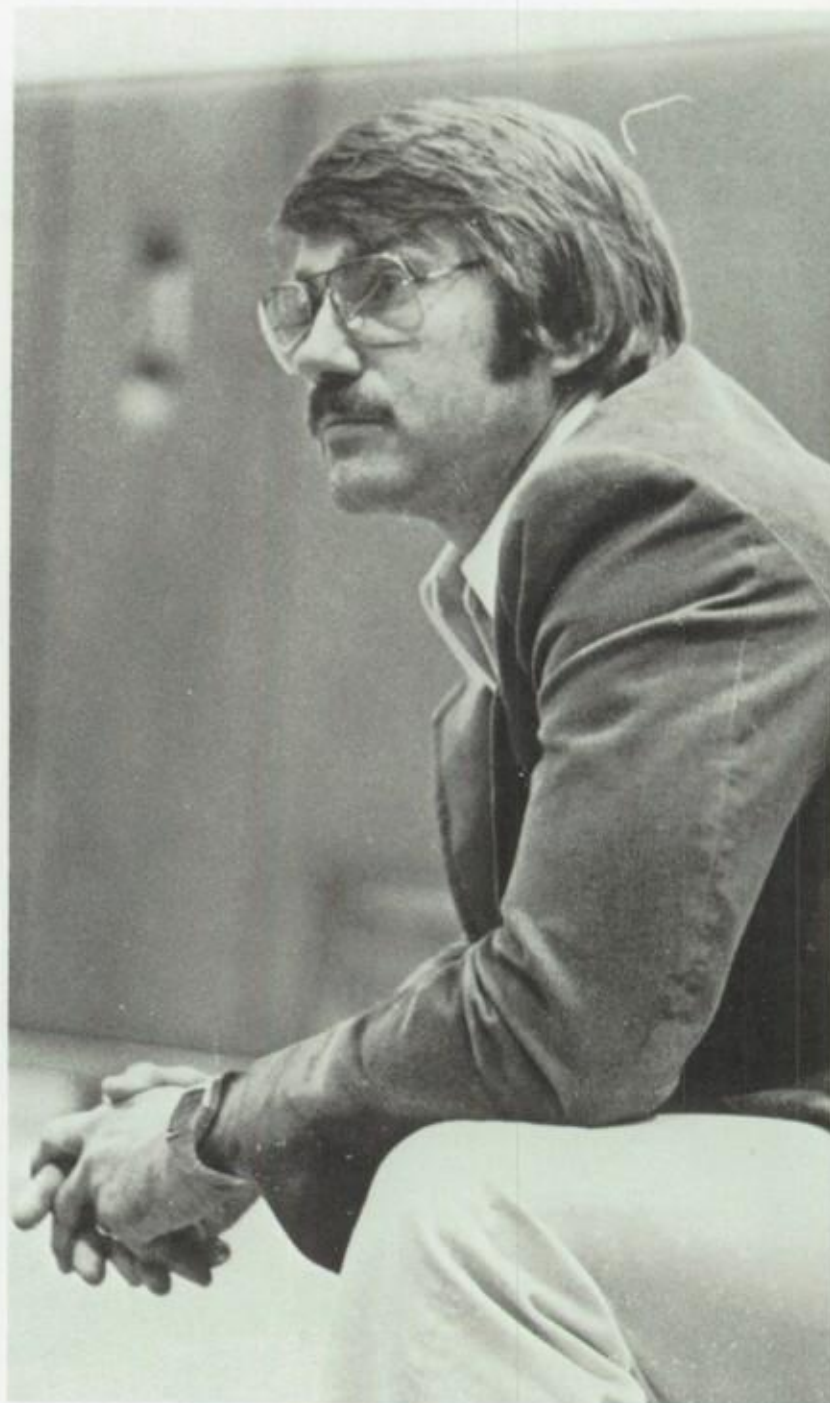

Bruder has been coaching the wrestling for the last 15 years.

As for the other coaches in the school, there are many that have coached a down team into winners. Many have brought what people thought of as losers into the winners circle, such as head basketball coach Ron Johnson. This year's team was the same guys that warmed the bench last year.

But this warmed over team led by the quickness and shooting of Greg Cudworth and Jerry Holtz got as far as the superstar team of the year before. Starting totally from scratch this year, girls' softball head coach Shirley Vargeson led the team to a respectable season for a first-year coach and team.

Coaching is not all glory though; Volleyball coach Bonnie Hajek is aware of that as the team hasn't had a winning season for several years.

But you must take the bad with the good, the defeats along with the victories, and take it play by play.

Besides approving budgets, purchases and personnel, the school board was responsible for making plans to renovate Reid Field and reinstate spring vacation.

The plans to renovate Reid Field came after a survey in which the majority of people choose to have to the football games continued to be played at Reid Field at night. Spring vacation was taken away after seven snow days. It was then returned after State Superintendent of Public Education, Joseph Cronin, granted four free snow days citing the blizzard as an "act of God."

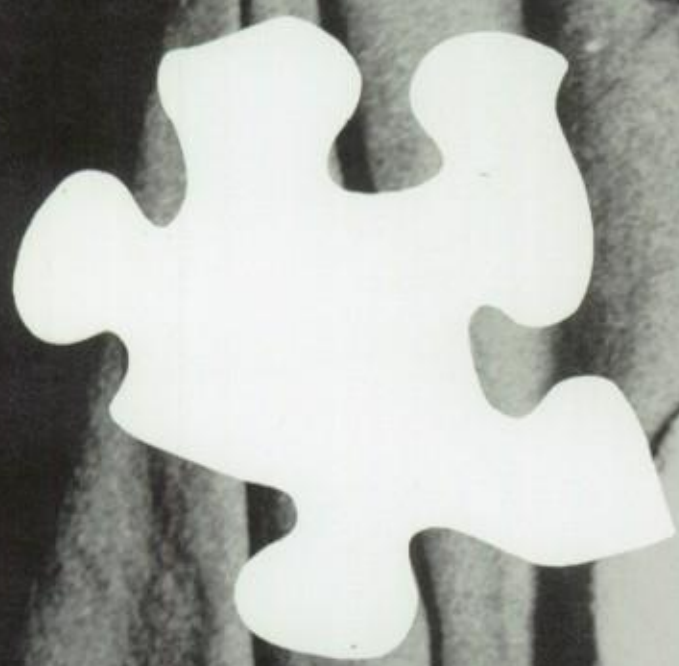

The school board was also responsible for the new road to the high school, new additions to the grade school, solar heating and bus CB radios.

I Love You This Much

People: many faces in the crowd

Familiar faces in the hallways, new people sitting in different classes, lunch time with old friends, or even with some new ones. Days filled with writing notes or meeting at the lockers, nights filled with parties (beer?), movies, cruisin' Main Street, or just meeting at Mac's and talking to friends. People-crowds at basketball games-starting out at the beginning of the year not knowing that many students and meeting more and more until the crowd was filled with faces of friends or people we knew. Togetherness was especially those times spent at pep assemblies with all 2500 of us filling up the bleachers listening to clicks and clacks or clapping to the Budweiser song. Names became personalities and greeting locker neighbors in the morning became a daily habit. Exchanging class rings was for those couples who were "married" and for sophs, April 18 was the exciting day that their own class rings came in. Seen here with rings are things from past events, those things that help us to remember people . . . senior pictures, postcards, pictures of friends, student ID's, penants from college visits, Powder Puff t-shirts, and a tin from a night spent "pigging out" at Poppin' Fresh Pies. Christmas and spring vacation, week-ends, days off school were spent with friends driving around town, shopping at Fox Valley, and of course party-hopping. Where once we knew a few, nicknames and hello's flew through the halls and students went from class to class, each hour meaning new friends or gossip with the old ones. We were all part of the same crowd . . .

TP popular at STC

"Oh no! Not again!" This was the feeling you got when you realized that you, too, had been a victim of the TP-ing craze. It was a harmless prank, and the only problem TP-ing presented was cleaning off the trees that had been decorated. Once a person found out who had TP-ed his house, it was likely that he would do the same thing back. This usually kept going on between groups of friends and every time someone got TP-ed, it had to be a better job than the last time.

College life appears appetizing to seniors

A game of hoops, followed by a few hours of beaching, and then it's time to rally. Sound like strenuous exercise? Actually it's an example of college life as shown to visiting seniors. A day or a week-end spent at a college or university gave those students about to graduate a taste of the life to come for those continuing in school. The five days allowed for college visitations gave seniors a chance to take a drive to campuses and it also gave them a short vacation from home.

Besides giving students an opportunity to see old friends, visits opened up new aspects of college life. A few seniors explained their reactions to college by saying:

"Drinking is the magic word at Western, it starts out in Drinking 101 and then continues on to more advanced classes."

"When they said it was a party school, I never expected it to be a Party school." Senior Anne Cordogan stated that "drinking is a sport at Eastern and you can even get a varsity letter." There were other reasons for visiting besides the Party aspect. Senior Dave Hunt said that it is valuable to see a college, visit some classes and that it was a big help to him.

Julie Wood, senior, agreed with Dave by saying, "College visits helped me to make up my mind about where I wanted to go to school, it really helped a lot." Visits to colleges were a lot more than a chance to tour, it was a chance to play a game of hoops (basketball), followed by a few hours of beaching (lying around), and then we're ready to ramble . . .

JUNK FOOD

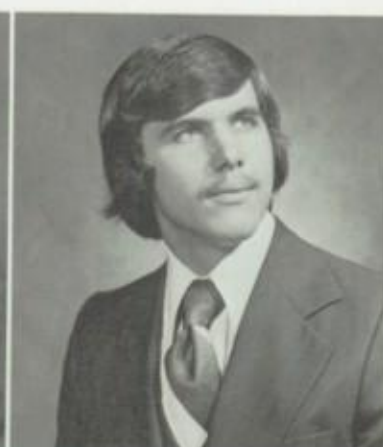

Supermarkets and stores everywhere are just filled with junk food. Stacks and stacks of candy bars, Hoho's, pizza, canned pop, ice cream, potato chips, and the list goes on. If that isn't enough to tempt anyone off a diet, bowls of these goodies could be found at parties, too. If these attacks were not enough on a person, fast food places like McDonald's, Poppin' Fresh Pies (love the banana cream), Cal's, Wendy's, Pizza Hut, Carm's and Kentucky Fried Chicken kept popping up everywhere.

Although most knew that junk food was doing them no good, who could resist one Jay's potato chip (but remember, Ruffles have ridges) or just a few plain or peanut M & M's. Soon those innocent taste tests led to buying boxes of Girl Scout cookies and candy bars galore.

Weeks of pouring this food down led from you getting the junk food to the junk food getting you . . .

Girls found on the grid for the first time

The Super Seniors squashed the dumbfounded Dwarfs (sic) 28-7 in the first annual Powder Puff Football game. Over 1000 interested parents, students and otherwise interested people came to view the beginning of an STC tradition, and they were rewarded very well. Anyone that thought girls don't know how to play football, soon found out that they were wrong as the girls showed their expertise on the field. Darcy Brown's amazing catch proved that even girls can run a successful "bomb." Seniors Tim Wade and Jim Buck coached the Super Seniors and the cheerleaders' section was well practiced and delightful. Cory Webster's baton twirling act was just one of the highlights of the evening, which was enjoyed by all; it felt good to start out a new tradition right!

DIET, diet, diet...

What did we do in 1979 as means of losing weight? Diet of course. Many students at St Charles High School used starvation as a means of losing weight, but we all know that didn't last long. Many took up jogging or bike riding. With the blizzard of 79 some people had to hold off on the exercise. A few people went on a water diet, they would drink 8 glasses of water a day. Some didn't starve but they cut down to two meals a day. There are many different ways to lose weight make sure it's the right diet for you, check with your doctor. St Charles has a lot to offer for exercise with the swimming pool, tennis courts, racquetball and the weight lifting room. It seems like every one is always dieting but when warm weather comes panic hits and everyone wants to lose some pounds for the summer. Exercise and dieting isn't fun but if you look to the future you will be happier with the new you plus you probably be healthier. Feeling and looking good is worth all the suffering you go through to lose the pounds.

Yogurt, Tab, Diet Pepsi, Slender, and salad are just a few of the things students ate while trying to stick to their diets. Temptation was often put in the way as students visited Mac's on week-ends vowing that they would start their diets "tomorrow."

Irons repair, help keep STC pieces together

"What am I going to do with my hair?!" and other expletives were often heard in the girls' locker room after swimming. With the new curly hair styles of '79, girls found swimming to be a pain as it tended to ruin their carefully curled hair. But for every problem there was a solution, and flopping curls at STC were no exception. Compact curling irons that whipped out of the purse and into the nearest electrical outlet were the solution. Everyone had the same idea and brought their curling irons, which presented a new problem. With only one outlet in each washroom, it was very difficult to find a place to plug in a curling iron, and often times once an outlet was available and the iron was finally hot enough, there wasn't enough room at the mirror, and you couldn't see what you were doing anyway. All in all, curling irons proved quite useful, and an important part of every day.

Senior class raises money

The senior class officers had quite a job ahead of them when they were elected in the fall of '78. The class was in debt from prom the year before, and before anything new could be accomplished the senior class had to erase the debt from last year. Under the leadership of officers Randy Wright, Karin Marshall, Gail Livingston, and Sandy Johns, the senior class launched various money-making projects, bumper sticker sales and concessions at the basketball and football games being among the most prominent. With all the obstacles the year brought for the senior class they were able to pull through successfully, bringing the class out of debt.

Rip-offs seen at STC

"Oh #%$@, my gascap is gone again!" This was a saying commonly heard among St. Charles students and several other people. Other times people would suddenly notice their license plates were missing. Street signs, along with road work signs were also often found missing. As one walks through the halls at school, conversations could be heard pertaining to how many letters were stolen off Grimm's marquee, or how they finally got that license plate with the initials on it. Many bedrooms along with lockers were plastered with stolen signs, letters, and various gascaps. And who are these "criminals?" Well you would hardly recognize them during the day. They are even athletes, student congress members, and yearbook staffers. But on the weekends, they sometimes turn into Dr. Jekylls.

Coffee pots boil, students toil to stop the term paper syndrome

April 30: Term paper assigned today. I really don't think it's going to be hard at all to do this paper. It may even turn out to be good for me. I'm going to get started on it right away. I need a topic by tomorrow.

May 1: I turned in my topic today. The teacher said that our final papers are due on June 1. He's giving us a long time to do it. I'm glad because I have a lot of other things to do too. I think I'll go to the library tonight and work a little on my paper.

May 8: I'm glad we're only doing a term paper in my English class. I don't have to worry about any work that way. I've still got almost a whole month to do this paper!

May 22: There is a party tonight at my friend's house. It should be fun. I guess I should go to the library and get some more stuff for my term paper. I need ten different sources and I only have two. Oh well, I can do it tomorrow. I have two weeks yet! No problem.

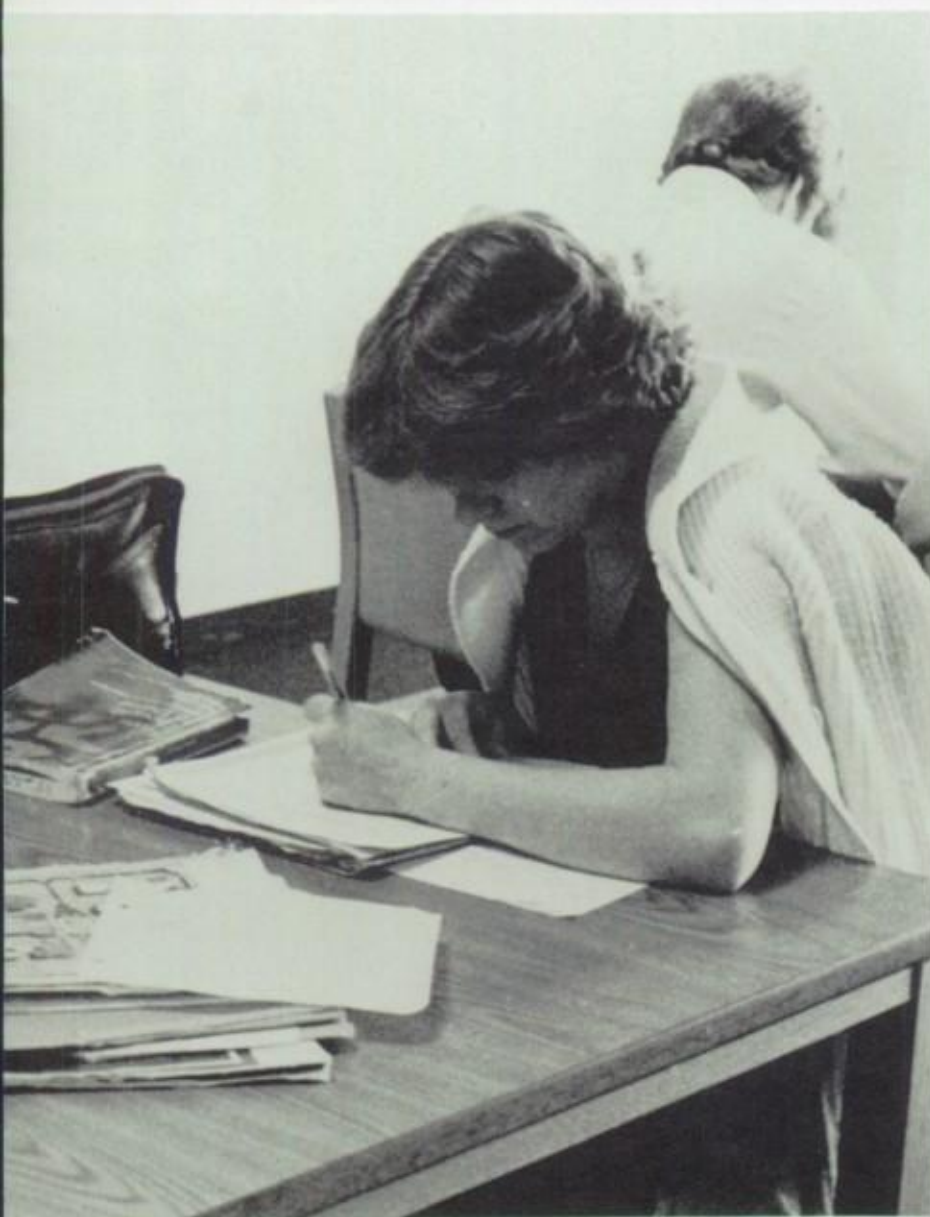

May 29: I went to the library tonite. I got all the sources I need now for my paper.

Now I can relax for a while. There's another party tomorrow night that I don't want to miss.

May 31: Only five more days of school left. I can't wait! No more work. Work. Hey, that reminds me! I've got a term paper due tomorrow! Oh no! I haven't even started writing it yet! Well here goes . . .

June 1, 3 a.m.: I'm so sick of coffee, I could throw up. I'm almost finished, but I'm so tired. Oh, why did I wait until the last minute? . . .

Nineteen-hundred-seventy-nine meant the end of high school for the seniors, but it also meant the end of the decade for everyone. Seventy-nine was the last year in the seventies, and the end of a period that most of us remember well.

In 1970, John Wayne won an oscar for his performance in "True Grit" and "Room 222" was voted Best New Series by the Academy of Television Arts.

Nineteen-hundred-seventy also saw the deaths of rock performer Janis Joplin and Green Bay Packers' football coach Vince Lombardi.

Eighteen-years-olds were given the right to vote in 1971, postage stamp rates jumped from 6 to 8 cents and "All In The Family" won an Emmy as the Best Comedy Series of the year.

Richard M. Nixon was elected to his second term as President in 1972, and he travelled to China making what he described as the trip that "changed the world." Alabama Governor George Wallace was paralyzed in an assassination attempt that almost cost him his life. STC's own Rick Wohlhuter competed in the 1972 Olympics where he fell during the semi-final heat in the 800-meter run. Mark Spitz won seven gold medals in swimming events, and Olga Korbut captured the hearts of America with her gymnastic routines.

Watergate came into the public eye in 1973, making America aware of the scandals involved in politics. "The Waltons" won an Emmy as the best Dramatic Series, and Marlon Brando refused to accept his Oscar for his performance in the movie of 1973, "The Godfather."

Nineteen-seventy-three saw the passing of rock composer and singer Jim Croce, who was killed in an airplane accident, and the passing of the 36th president of United States, Lyndon B. Johnson. Cass Elliott of the Mamas and Papas, also a musical group, died in 1974, as did comedian Jack Benny and Ed Sullivan.

Morris the Cat made his television debut in 1974 selling 9-Lives cat food, and Gerald Ford became the 38th president after Nixon resigned his office. Patty Hearst was kidnapped from her home in San Francisco by the Symbionese Liberation Army, and John Houseman won an Oscar for his supporting role in "Paper Chase." Another STC alumna, Karen Morrison, became famous as Miss USA for 1974.

The death of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in 1976 shocked many, and Dorothy Hamill's wedge hair cut became popular as a result of her success in the '76 Olympic games. The $2 bill was re-issued in 1976 as America celebrated her 200th birthday.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors was seen on the chests and in the dreams of most American males in 1977, as she became the most popular pin-up girl of the year. Seventy-seven also brought the death of Elvis "The King" Presley, leaving the country shocked at his passing.

GOOD-BYE to the Seventies: another completed jigsaw puzzle...

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times." Everything from the hilarious Saturday Night Live comedy to the tragic death of Elvis Presley. The 70's were the start of CB radios (10-4 good buddy), John Travolta and disco dancing, pet rocks and test-tube babies. The fads were as crazy as ever with streaking starting it off followed by food fights in '78. Animal House portrayed the zany college life and high schools such as STC caught on fast. Fashions changed drastically from the skirts going from fingertip length to above the ankles. Clogs and "Candies" came into the scene right after earth shoes went out. Archie Bunker was the male chavenist pig with Mary Tyler Moore being cutsy Mork-n-Mindy proved that in '79, spacy isn't so bad.

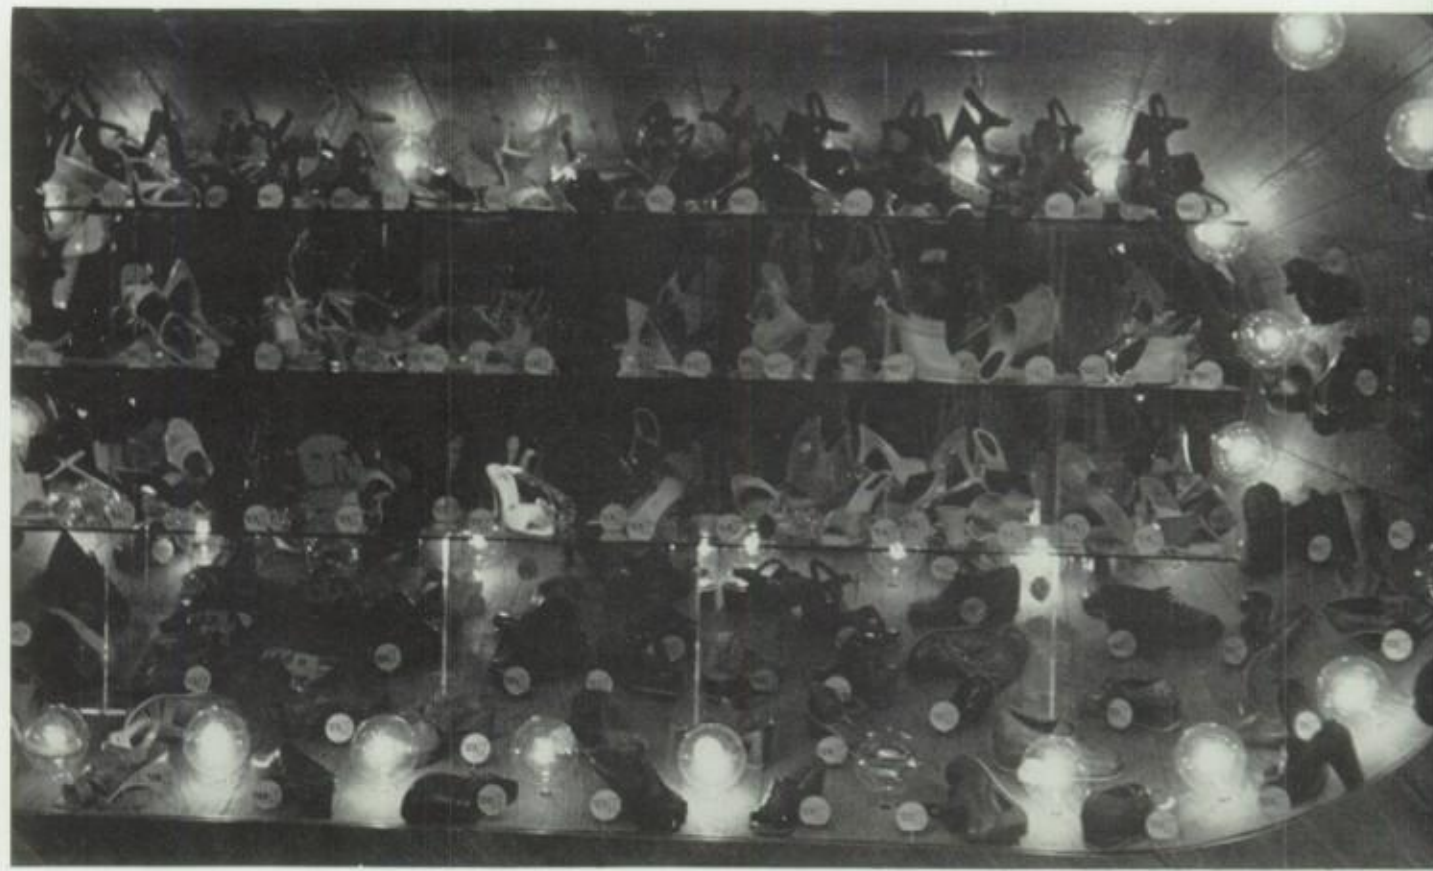

Do you remember when . . .

The 70's brought many changes in St Charles, including an increase in population and the move toward commercialization.

Events such as the night Colson's burned down or the days in the early 70's when St Charles was called 'Smile City, USA' are part of a past which includes the building of a solar-powered high school and the move from Thompson. Star athletes such as Rick Wohlhuter and Mark Vitali made names for themselves in the "real world."

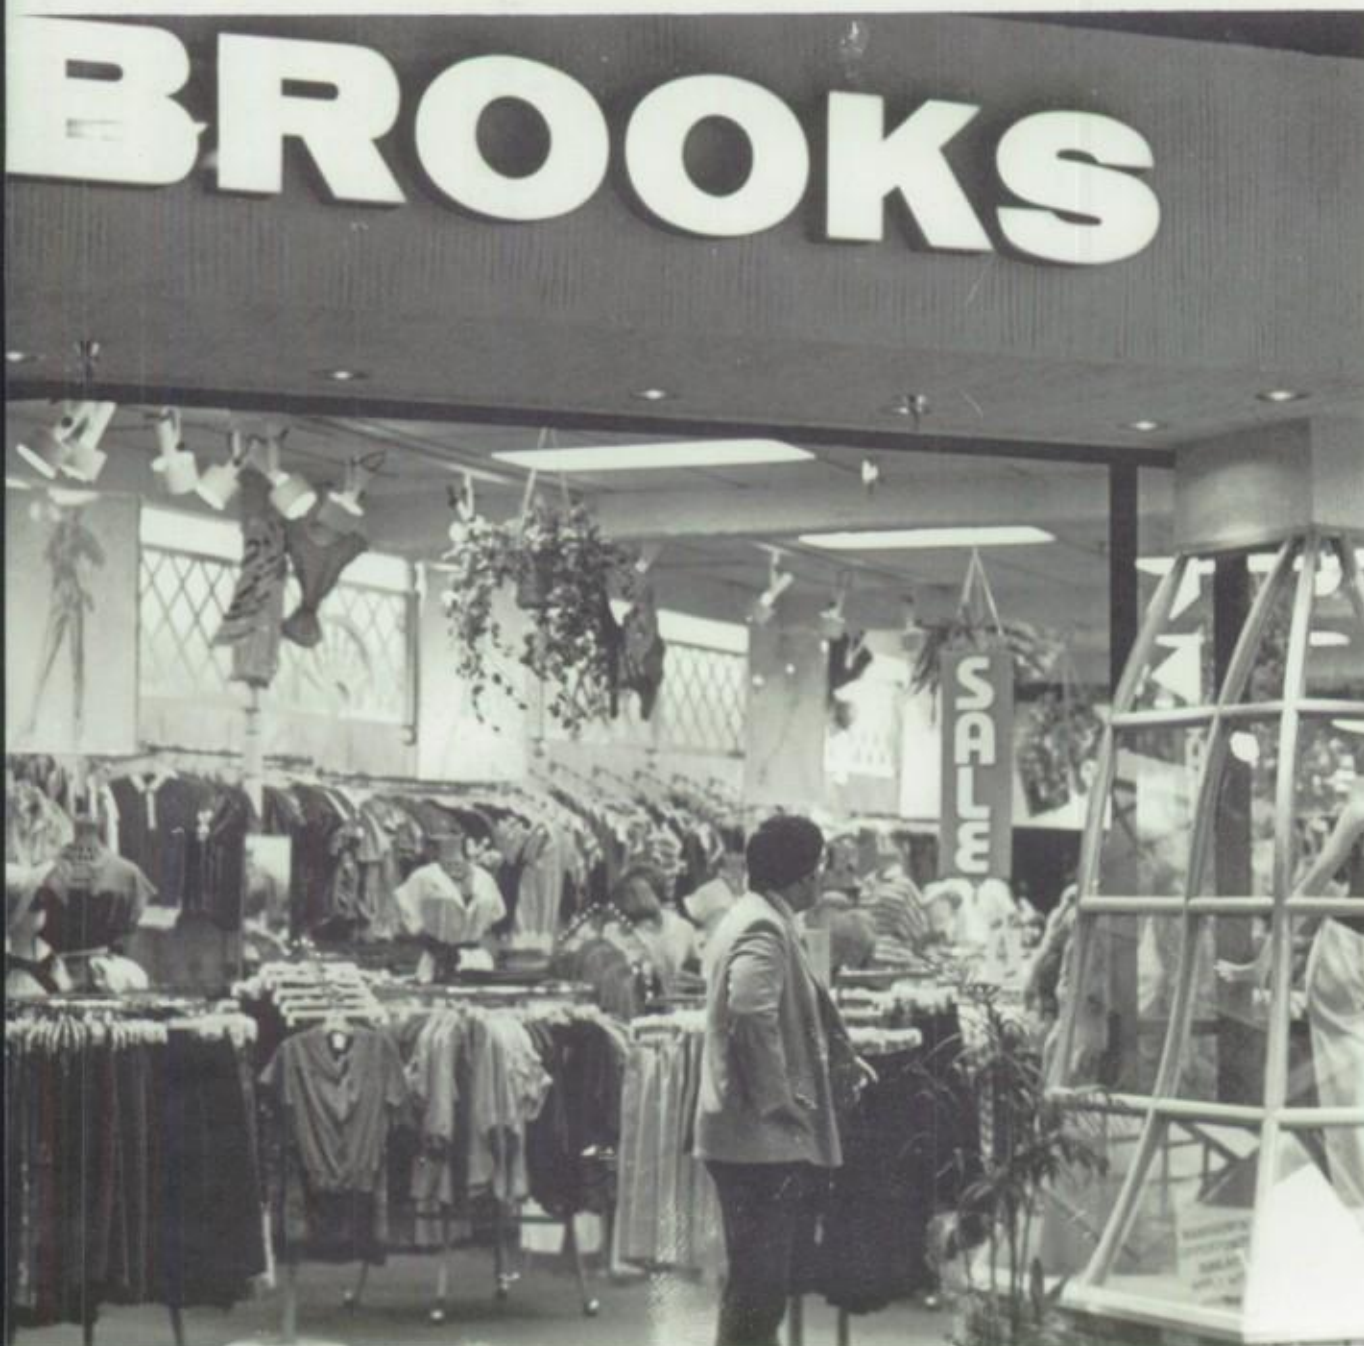

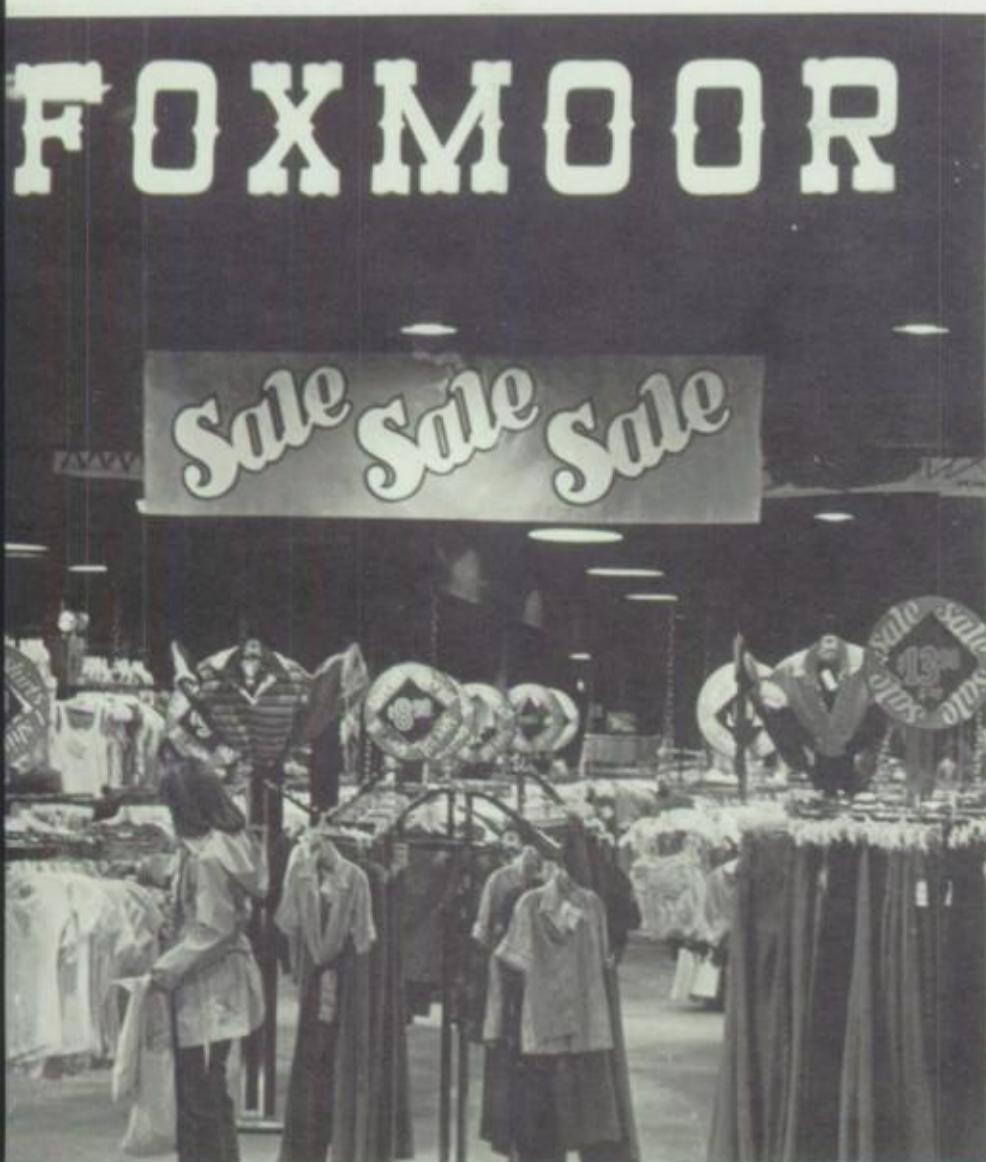

YOU BETTER SHOP AROUND

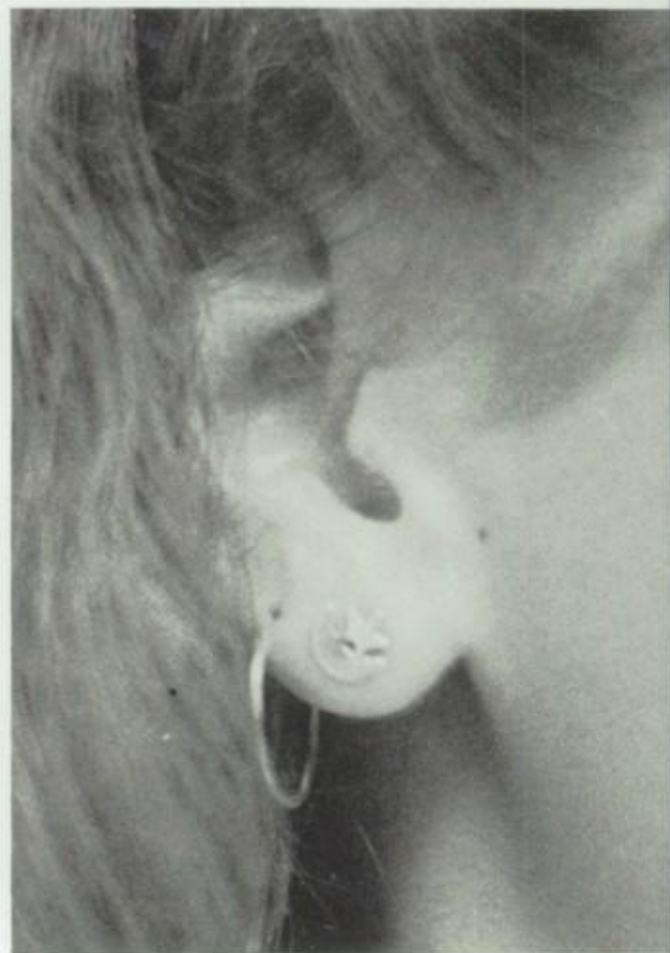

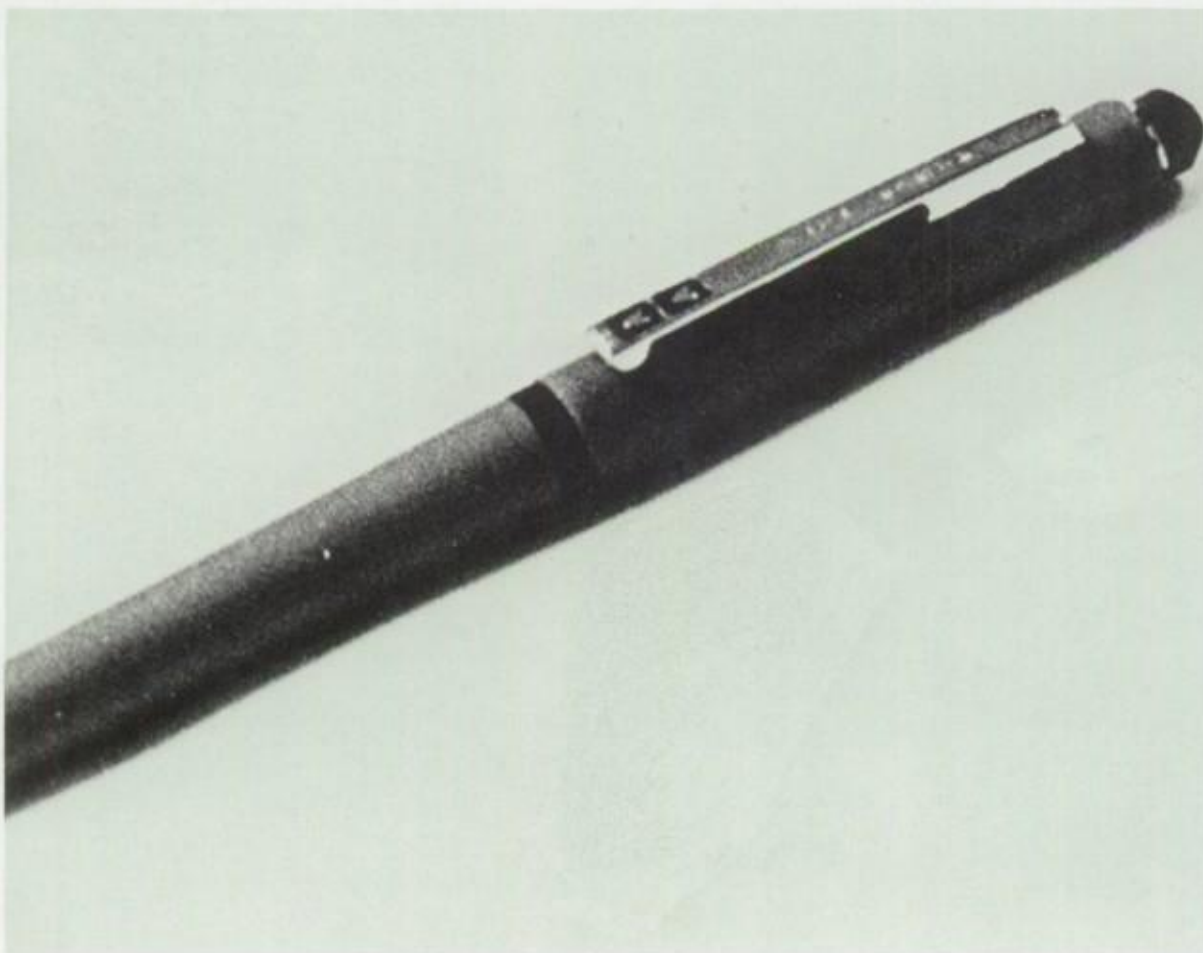

Fox Valley, Woodfield, Oakbrook, Yorktown, and even Watertower Place were favorite places for STC students to shop. Kids waited for vacation days, free time or even "took time off" to go to their favorite malls. Malls, most popular because of their wide variety of stores, had everything to offer and made for a great day of shopping. Students waited anxiously for paychecks that would be spent at their favorite stores. With everchanging trends clothes stores like Casual Corner, Chas. A. Stevens, The Limited, Foxmoor, Marshall Fields, or Lord & Taylor were the places to shop for up to date fashions. If feet were your fancy, places like Bakers, The Sole Hole, and The Athletes Foot were popular. When students weren't shopping they were eating. Malls provided perfect places to "pig out" after a full day of shopping. With the years high prices one thing was for sure "You better shop around!"

For fancy feet, clogs, strappy sandals, and slip on spikes like Candies were favorites with STC students. They could be found at stores like Bakers (above) and The Sole Hole (above right).

FADS: IN OR OUT?

Double pierced ears, Candie shoes, knotted scarves, and clutch purses all played an important part in school fashions. Fads have always been important in the life of many STC students. They may take awhile to catch on, but soon, almost everyone has fad fever!. Girls run all over trying to find that well-wanted pair of shoes and finally find them — just when they go out of style. Or maybe they finally get up the nerve to get their ears pierced once more, when one of their friends says, "Don't be stupid, they're on the way out." One junior girl stated, "It's a waste to spend all your money just on fashions, when it could be saved for future needs." One senior boy said, "They shouldn't spend their money on clothes that won't stay in fashion long. Something in style this month might be our next month."

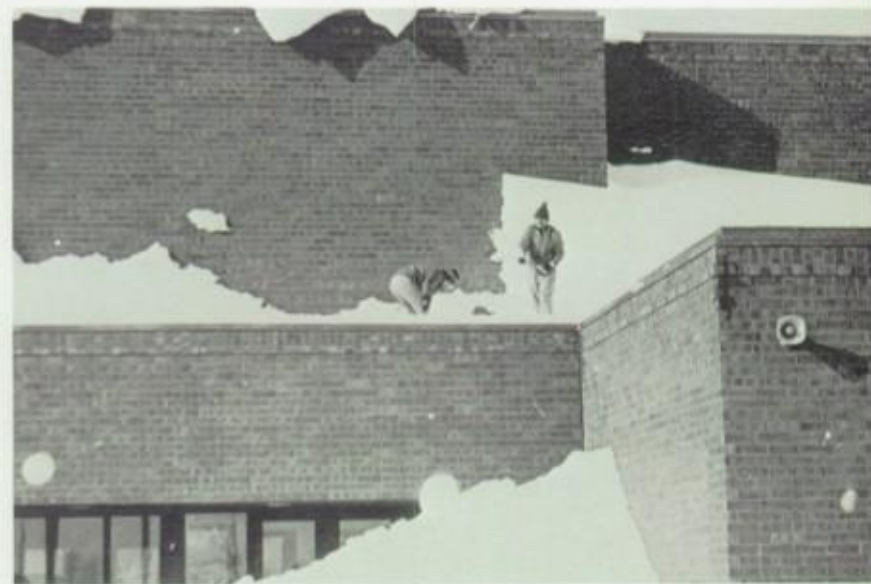

Winter '78-'79: buried in the snow

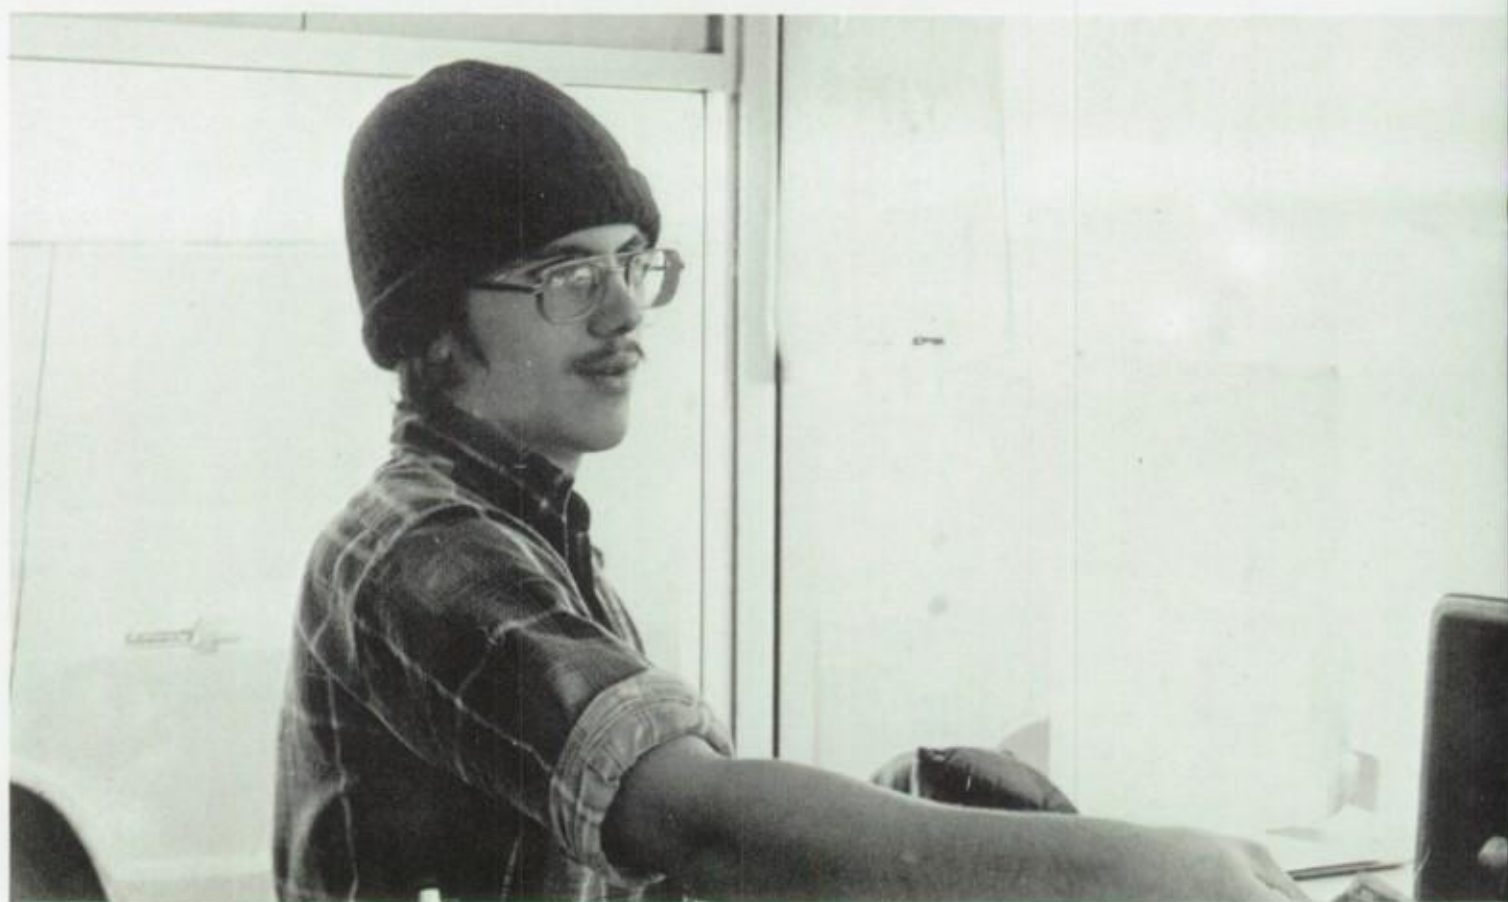

This page: (far above) Snow pile-ups around the school and all over Illinois caused school to be closed for a total of 7 days and pushed back graduation for 3 days. (right) Busses leaving school took students on a cold ride home, although rides home were better than waiting in the morning for the bus to arrive at the stop. (above left) Volunteer teachers and students spent much time clearing the roof of potentially dangerous drifts. The damage done was described as mostly "cosmetic," although cracks in the Resource Center's ceiling caused school to close early one day. Opposite page: (above left) This snow-covered tree, outside the front of the building, was a sight often seen during the blizzard of '79. (above right) Snow on the gymnasium roof led to water leakage in the locker rooms and delays of a few of the basketball games. (bottom left) Piles (and piles) of snow covered a majority of the "new" parking lot and caused many parking problems for those who could drive to school.

Car troubles, snow days, cancelled plans, and problems with the school roof were a few of the things that came up because of the 100 plus inches of snow that fell in the winter of '78-'79. For those who "get into" winter sports it was a good time to do some snowmobiling and skiing. Six o'clock every morning meant waking up long enough to turn on WGSB and listen for the announcement on school closings. Most enjoyed the days off until it was threatened that there would be no spring break. A total of 7 snow days were spent either shovelling snow, recovering from shovelling snow, or getting ready to shovel more snow. Some even found time to watch t.v. (catch up on the soaps) and call friends. If one likes being snowbound, then this was the winter for him . . .

Jobs at STC were a must for many students. Those active weekends had to be financed and unless the folks were willing to chip in, employment was the answer. All types of jobs were handled by students, from waiting on tables to serving the fire department. Wages for students varied widely from minimum wage to more than double the standard $2.65 hourly. For the vocationally minded, Co-op was the answer to problems. A student could go to school half the day and then work the rest of the time. The student also attended a class that dealt with the functions of the working world. Jobs were a way for students to gain some experience and also make a little extra spending money. Many times new friends were made from new jobs and Ward's, Grimm's, Mac's, Poppin' Fresh, Wendy's, and Colonial were just a few of the opportunities for students. Jobs: more than just employment . . .

Juniors go from rags to riches; prom a reality

This year's prom put on in the West Commons May 12, had a theme of "Just You and Me." After a hectic year with more problems than you could count, juniors could give a sigh of relief because their puzzle was finally complete; they sponsored a successful prom.

The Commons: some even called it a zoo

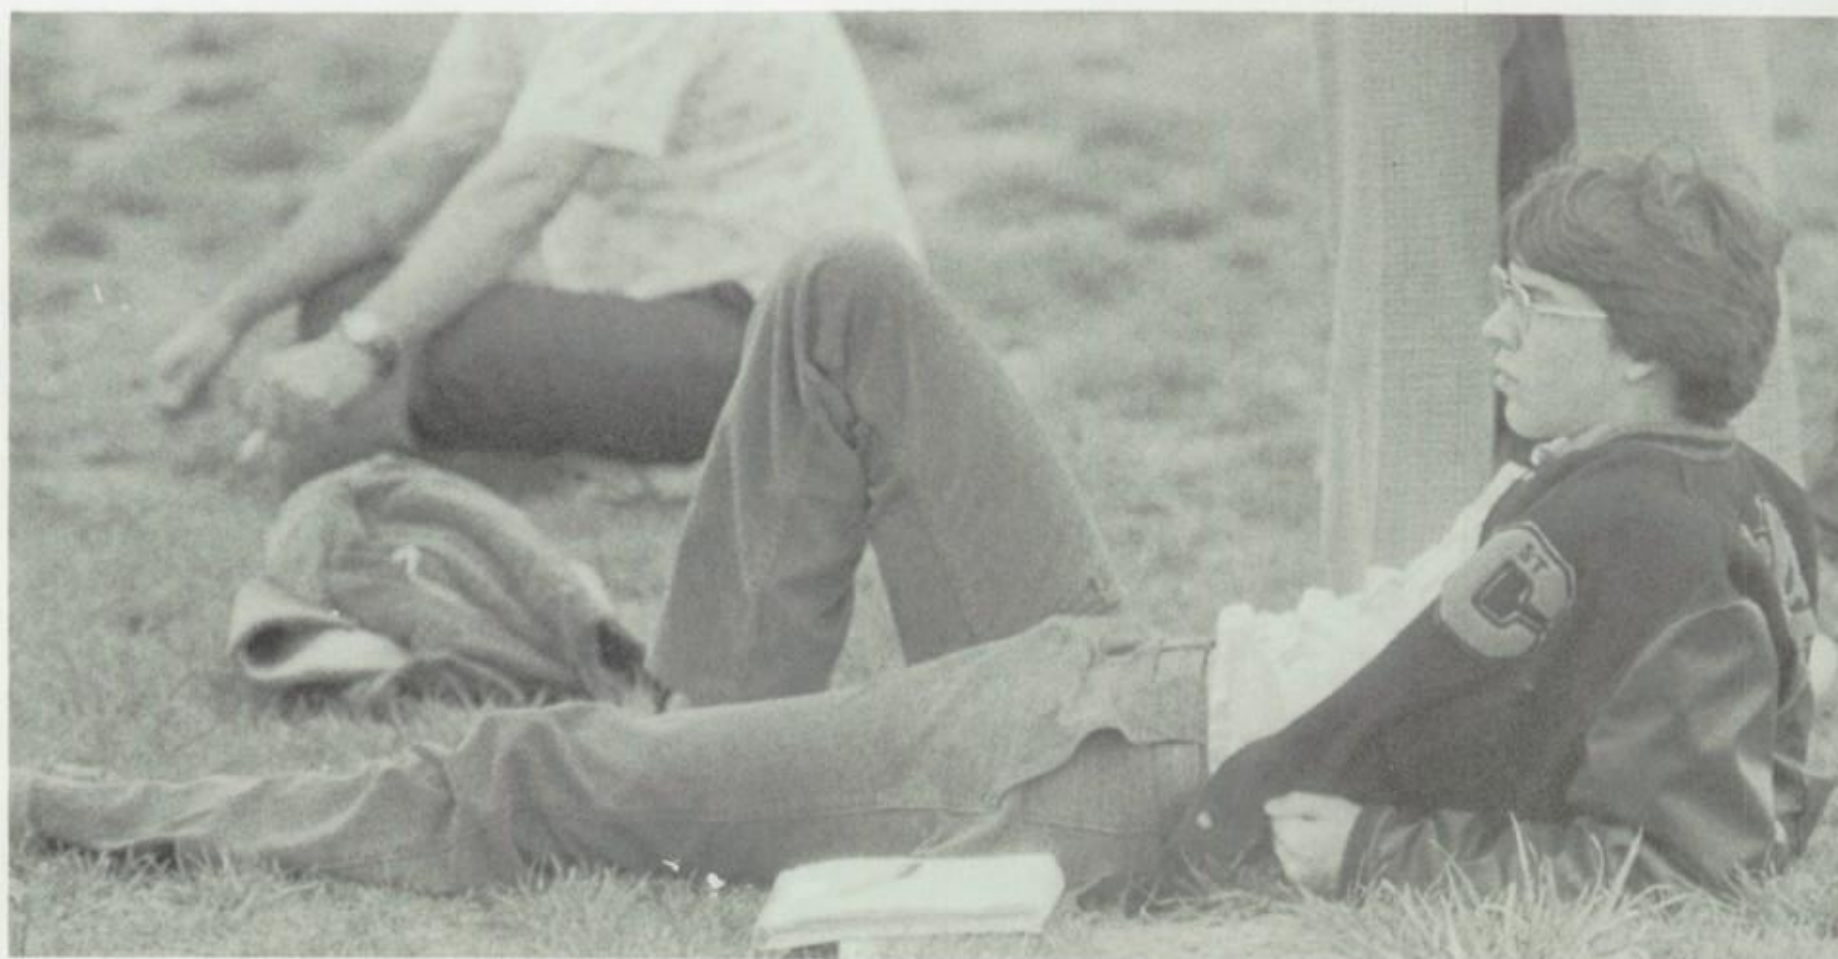

"What's for lunch today?" A question often heard around 4th and 5th hours although the answer was rarely looked forward to. Many students spent 55¢ for a lunch which was not always the best, but a Food Committee (see page 38) was formed to help make suggestions and to give student opinions. A survey was taken in the X-Ray and besides pizza and French fries, changes were made to soup and sandwiches. Meat loaf, turkey, BQ beef, beef, burritos, tacos, and hamburgers were just a few of the "goodies" served to those who ate the lunchroom meals. Food comments were heard throughout the Commons and often the food that was not wanted by students was found flying through the air or lying on the floor (sometimes it even ended up on the wall, like peas). Every "clique" had their own special lunch table and places were established where each group sat day after day. The monitors, and especially Mrs. Denise Thorsen and Mrs. Lena ("Ma") McNeil, spent most of their time either asking people to "clean up their messes" or making sure that "culprits" were caught when food was being thrown or deflected. Besides the food line (which was usually too long), there was a line containing a variety of Hostess foods, potato chips, pretzels, corn chips, and ice cream. For those who spent their time on a diet, there were expensive salads and yogurt, although that's the price you have to pay. Breakfast was also served during 1st and 2nd hours, and for a price (a high price) it was possible to buy sweet rolls, donuts, juice, milk, and coffee. Freshman Eric Metz said, "The food was better than last year at least . . . not much," although Jim Hyde, freshman, admitted that the food was "adequate." There was always a mad rush to get in line before it became too long, although a sign that said "Enter at own risk" was never seen.

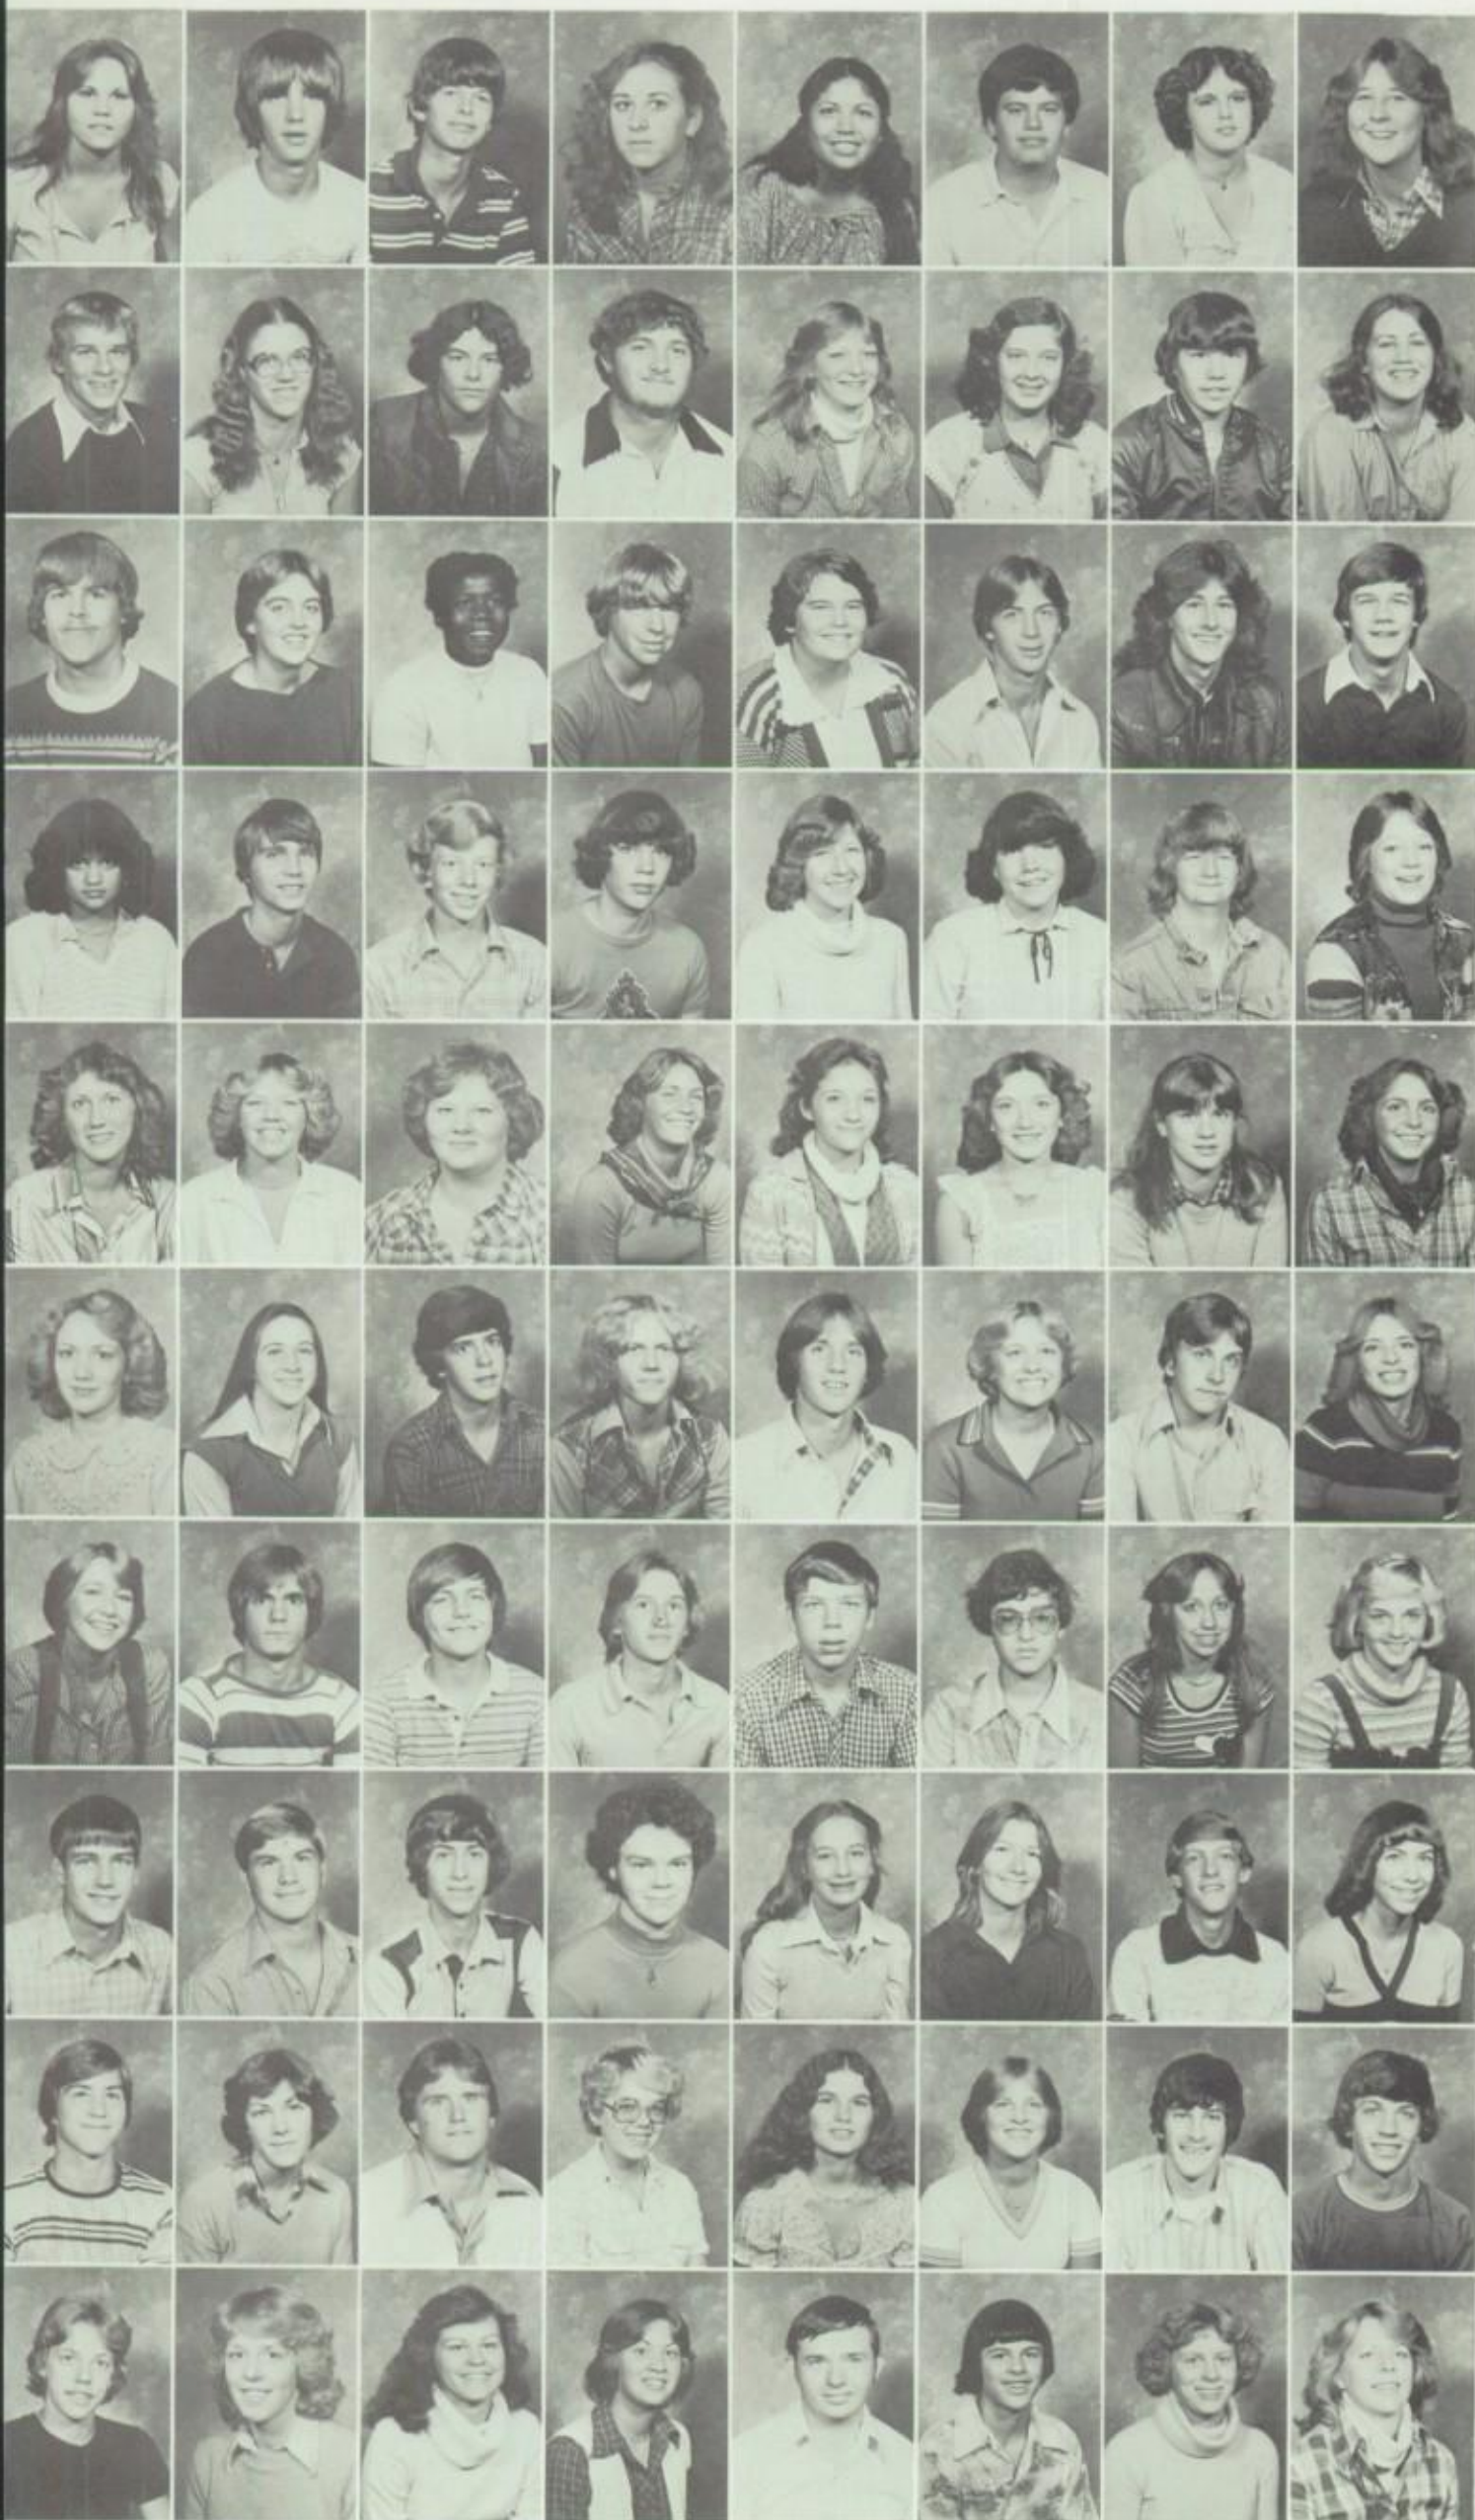

Fans, too, part of game

They come in all shapes, sizes, and ages. It seems the STC baseball team drew quite a loyal fan following despite last-minute field changes and no grandstands.

On a clear day, photographers could be seen lining the foul fences in attempt to catch some of the action on film and parents braved the wind and dirt to help cheer the Saints to a respectable season. No matter what the conditions, the Saint nine maintained a loyal following throughout the season.

Top: Anxious fans survey the action at a varsity game. Above: X-Ray sports editor Bob Rosene makes himself comfortable as he takes notes on the game.

Jr.-Sr. Choir goes south; It was a real "trip"

"I can't believe we're finally going!" This comment was heard as the STC Junior-Senior choir left town Georgia bound. Preparations for the trip to the Six Flags Open Choral Festival months before, the hard work and effort was all worthwhile. After a 15 hr. bus ride the choir arrived in Atlanta. Greeted by 85 degree temperatures, choir members took immediate advantage of their surroundings. Some souls braved the motel pool's chilly waters, others too keyed up to go to bed plotted shaving cream and squirt gun fights for their evening activities. The afternoons were spent poolside "soaking up the rays", goofing around, and baking to a crisp (000, that hurts!). On Friday night the choir made STC proud by giving one of its finest performances and bringing home four first place rankings. Nights were spent at Six Flags where rides were the main attraction. The favorites included the Mindbender (OH MY GOD!), the Scream Machine (Look at her face!), the Twirlie (I want to go on again.), and the Gasp (I can't take it!). Friday night was capped off with a toga party that featured 9 gallons of lemonade in the motel tub. There was more fun in the sun on Saturday and all too soon the trip came to a close. The choir came back a closer group with a lot of memories to share of great time in Georgia. Atlanta will never be the same!

Atlanta will never be the same. At right, Junior Kathy Anderson makes up for lost sleep in Atlanta by catching a few winks during the long trip home. Below, one of the more popular rides at Six Flags, the Scream Machine, was even more Frightening at night.

Practicing in the parking lot, and marching on an unmarked field were problems the marching band had to cope with. There wasn't a real field to be found to practice on, so the band had to make due with what was available. Songs like "Peg", "Saints in Concert", and "Get it On" kept the fans at football games entertained and added extra spirit when it was needed. STC attended Northwestern University's band day, where nearly 50 schools combined their sounds at half time. The drill team, flags, and twirlers were all part of the marching band, and together they went through hours of practicing and working to become an important STC activity once again.

Double

As students grew tired of seeing the world through frames, contact lenses became even more popular this year. With the arrival of soft lenses, contacts became more comfortable for many who couldn't wear hard ones. Senior Carrie Christoffers commented, "Contacts have come a long way. You used to have to boil the old ones. Now they're a lot easier to take care of, and the little extra work is worth it."

There are some problems, though, especially when you're extremely tired and put both lenses in one eye, as one weary STC teacher did. Most people agree contacts are a good alternative to the hassels of glasses. Many athletes took advantage of contacts because of the convenience, and others chose contacts to have a more natural appearance. A few students even added truth to the song "make your brown eyes blue" as contacts gradually replaced glasses at STC.

Many students abandoned their frames for the "natural look." Although there was some discomfort at first for some wearers, most agree that the traumatic initiation period was well worth it.

Glasses like these were seen on many faces at STC this year. The different styles and colors enabled students to choose from a wider variety of frames than in previous years.

... Vision

At STC you no longer heard names like "4-eyes" sounding through the halls. Glasses were no longer a sign of a "brain", in fact glasses even became a piece of the fashion world. In recent years designer frames came into styles, with a broad spectrum of colors available. Turned down frames were one of the more popular styles. Even if students didn't wear prescription glasses you could find "shades" in the same great styles putting the finishing touches on a super outfit.

Sophs gain cash for future prom

The main job of the sophomore class is to sponsor post prom, but this year's officers did what was required of them plus a lot more.

They sold candy to start raising money for prom next year, and earlier in the year, they helped organize and build a first-place float for homecoming.

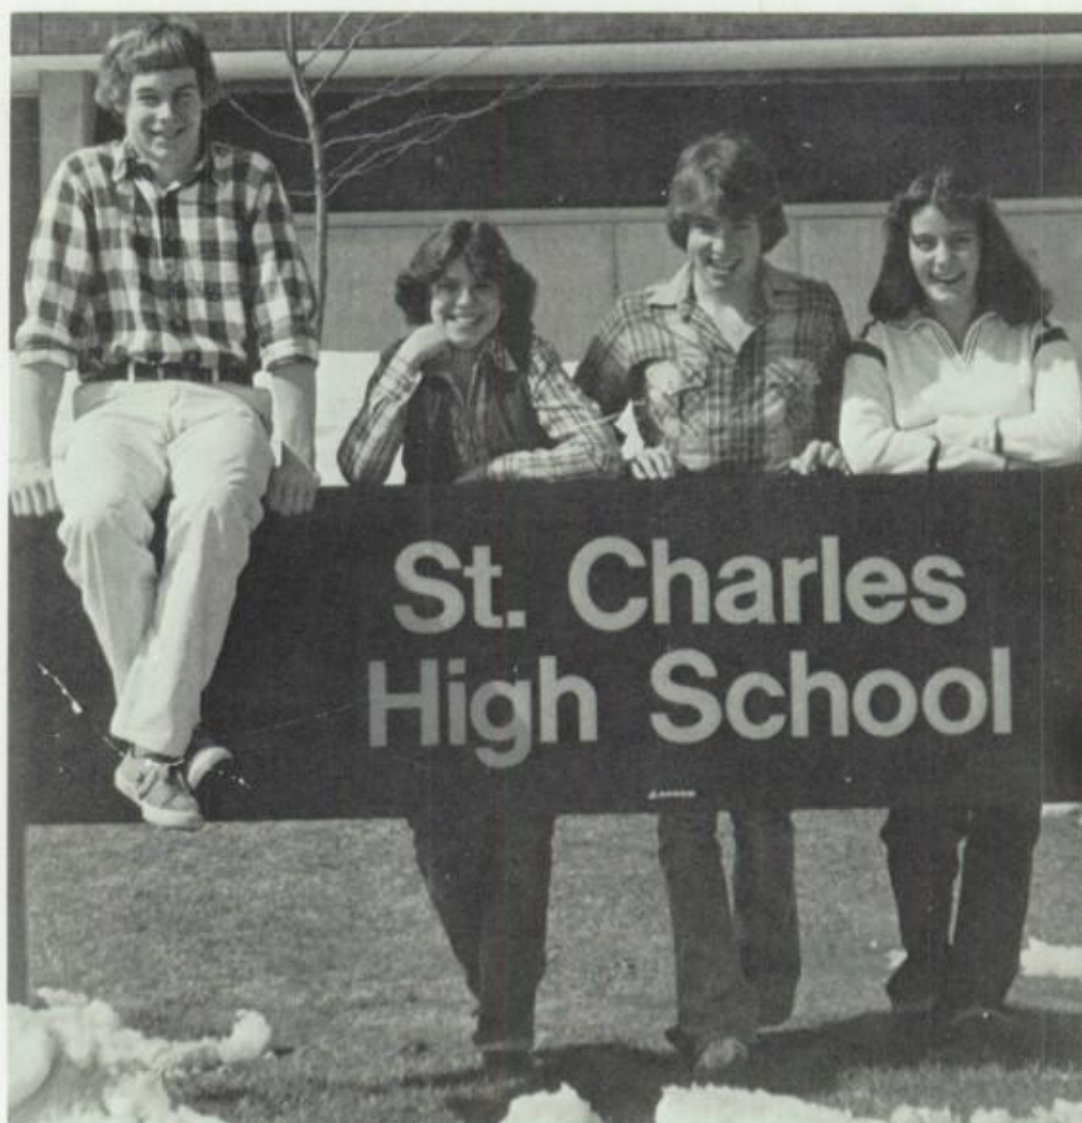

The sophomores, with their advisor, Mrs. Margaret Birth, had a successful year in which a lot was accomplished.

Poms and gloves piece together drill team's year

Twenty-four STC girls tried to put the pieces together with short black uniforms, orange gloves and pom pons. These drill team members, who practiced at least twice a week, could get the crowd to its feet with enthusiastic shimmies and two-steps to "Old Time Rock 'n' Roll." New routines were devised regularly from members' ideas and those gained from summer workshops and competition. One such popular routine used stools, all 24 of them painted by squad members who got as much paint on themselves as they did on the stools. Could the boys' basketball practice going on in the background be at least partly to blame?

"And they're off"; students rush to beat bells

"On your mark, get set, GO!" It's between classes at STC . . .

More things can be done in just five minutes than one could imagine!

If you had a class in the Dunham section and your next class was all the way on the opposite side, it was quite a task to make it there in five minutes. But with practice, it was possible. You could go to your locker, talk for a minute, drop off something in the Resource Center, and make a trip to the bathroom all in a short five minutes.

Routes had to be planned out ahead of time so you could avoid jams in the hallways and make it to class on time. Stricter attendance procedures forced students to hurry up before the "beep" sounded.

Keg dances part of weekend life

This year the Keg dances didn't seem to go over as well as in previous years, since students couldn't move, much less breathe, in the sardine-packed room. Upperclassmen found other things to keep them busy rather than standing at dances watching the sophomores play kissy-face in the corners and get sick in the bathrooms. Even if you did go to a dance, it usually ended up that you and your friends left early because the band wasn't the best or your friends weren't there. During football season, everyone zoomed to the Keg to get warmed up and to celebrate game victories by dancing up a storm to their favorite songs. This year, the "Windy City Disco Movement" made another appearance to teach students the latest disco moves. A common scene at regular dances would have the girls herded in one section of the room, while the boys played pool and fooseball. But once people finally dropped their inhibitions and started boogying to the band, the dance was over and it was on to McDonalds.

Swimming class endured by all

Amidst kickboards, pull-bouys, and straight hair, swimming classes won't be forgotten. There were problems that had to be dealt with, like getting a suit with both strings, finding an outlet for a curling iron, or fighting for a spot in front of the mirror. But after these small details were worked out, most people got used to swimming in P.E. class.

Learning the different strokes was a big part of swimming, but there were other activities like water polo, diving, using masks and fins, and lifesaving, too.

It seemed students either liked swimming or they hated it, but they usually learned something or at least had fun once in a while. But even if one doesn't enjoy swimming laps, practicing cross-chest carries, or working on your back stroke, swimming classes will be remembered by STC students.

Depression at STC: studying

According to the American Heritage Dictionary, depression is the act of being in low spirits; dejected. What is depression to you?

At STC, there are many different meanings. Here are a few: Sitting through formal study hall in the West Commons is definitely depressing. Surprise vocabulary quizzes in Spanish, and English test in Mrs. Bernardi's class, or going to government are other students' ideas of depression.

Some more examples include waiting in line to get your schedule changed ("I've gotta see Orv!"), riding the bus home, or going late to Mr. Mizanin's class without a pass.

Every student at STC had something about school that depressed them, but they usually had at least one class that they almost enjoyed going to.

A few of the more popular elective courses included business law, journalism, typing, yearbook and photography.

'Alarmists' active; false drills common

Picture a normal classroom. A teacher is at the front of the room taking roll. All of a sudden . . . "Bbbrrrrnnnnntt . . . " The fire alarm sounds, warning the students of potential danger. The class continues without interruption. As flames spread throughout the building, nary a person budges from his seat. The entire population of the school is burned up in an hour.

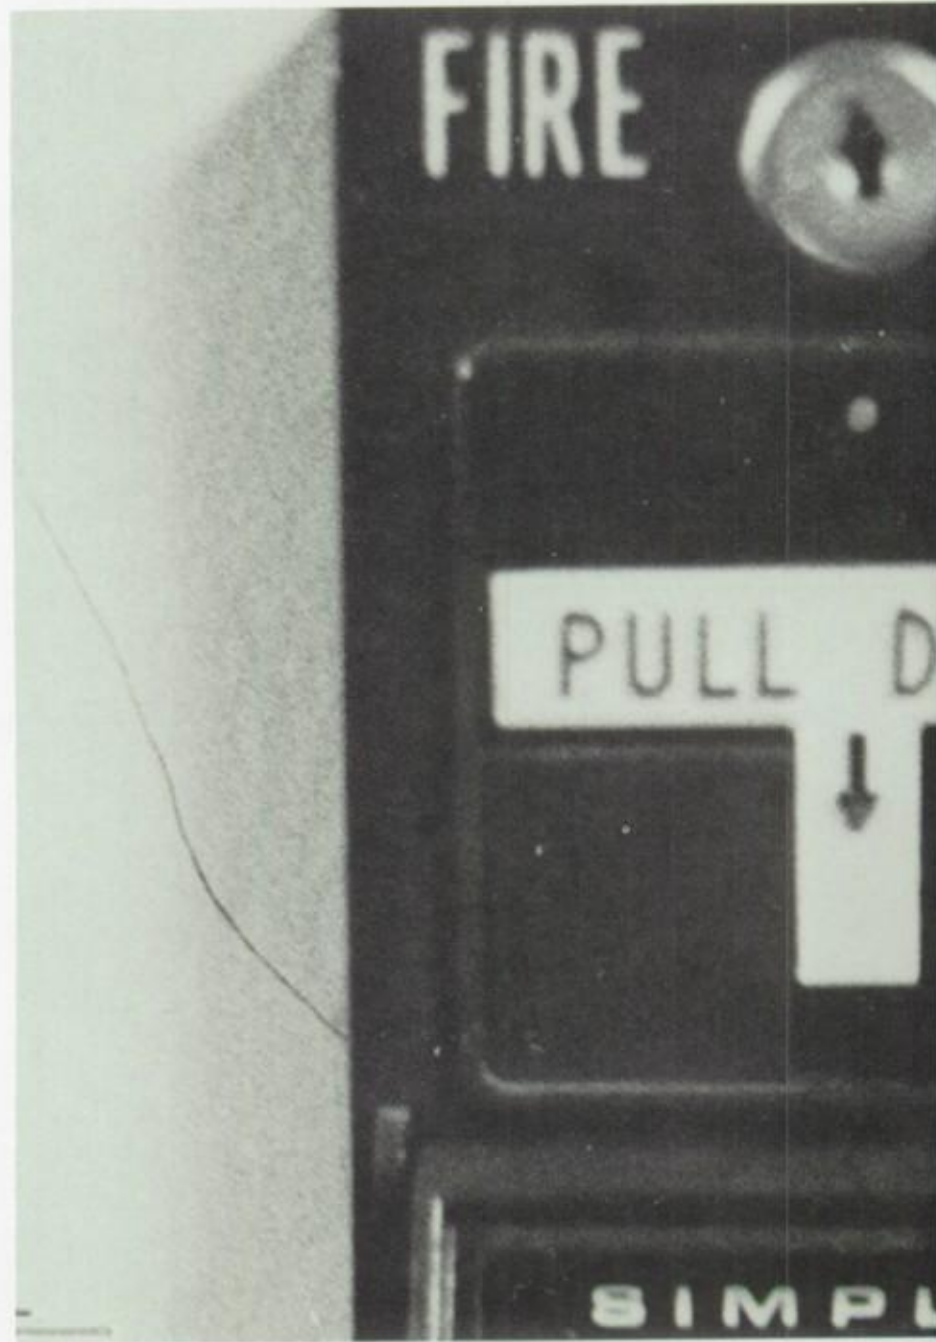

Sound like a scene from a new disaster movie? Maybe, except the "disaster" could well have been right here at STC as a new disease cropped up this year. False fire alarms plagued students and faculty members alike as false alarms rang for what seemed like a trillion times.

Although the students developed a rather apathetic attitude towards the alarms, there was always the reassuring "Please disregard the fire alarm" from Mr.

Wright well after the buzzer had stopped.

Despite frequent threats of the seriousness of sounding false fire alarms, the disruptions continued as nobody was ever caught in the act.

The alarms provided a nice distraction from class, but students were lucky the joke was never on them.

'Bouncers' patrol STC

The campus monitors, better known to STC students as the "bouncers", were a new addition this year. The idea behind the "bouncers" is that they can be places the deans can't. There were, at one time, a total of four, but due to conflicts with several of them, the number dwindled to one. The monitors could be found doing any number of things including checking passes, helping out in the deans' office, or just talking with groups of students. The "bouncers" definitely seemed to help the overly-crowded dean's office. (bottom) Jose Mazeriegos, the only monitor left at the end of the year, watches the grounds for any violations. (left) Mazeriegos checks freshman Missy McCord's pass.

Frosh conquer problems

The first problem the freshman class officers and representatives had was organizing a class float for homecoming. With the help of their advisor, James Hoover, events were planned to make money for future activities the class will undertake.

Freshmen find home in West Commons

The freshmen's "territory" was located by the yellow or orange lockers in the Dunham section, and in the West Commons. Before 1st hour, between classes, and after school, most freshmen could be found talking with friends around their extra small lockers. ("Why'd we get stuck with these?")

. . . a head rush

Listening to "Mountain Ash," talking with friends, or trying to find your stolen coat were all part of a Roundabout dance. The board planned dances every month and many other activities such as a hay ride, trips to Old Chicago and Funway, and ski trips to Majestic. The people chosen to serve as Roundabout board members for the class of 82 were Missy McCord, president; Becky Bumgarner, Donna Costanzo, Craig Lillibridge, Debbie Pillar, Patty Sweet, and Jeff Ward. The board met every other Tuesday at the Keg to make plans for the various events. Roundabout also sponsored several special dances throughout the year. The farmer dance, Halloween dance, Christmas semi-formal, and the sweetheart dance were all successful. The crowds at the dances made the popularity of Roundabout evident. Freshmen are looking forward to going to Keg dances next year, but will remember the Roundabout dances as being a place to see friends and have a good time. (Left) Board members make plans for an upcoming dance.

Clogs: noisy or comfy?

High heeled, short heeled, buckled and tied — all are characteristics of this year's shoe fad — clogs. In an informal student body survey, 83 per cent of those asked said they liked clogs because they can be removed during class to "relax and wiggle the toes." Another 14 per cent were not as impressed with the new style, though, claiming they disliked clogs because of the "unappealing stomping and snail-like slowness" they caused for the wearer. The wooden heels did make resounding clomps as students clambered up and down stairs between classes. But the clogs were definitely accepted in 1979, and, as one senior girl commented, "At least it isn't as embarrassing to have noisy clogs as it was to trip over the carpeting with the crepe-soled shoes that were 'in' last year."

Powder puff football games reverse traditional roles

When one thinks of a cheerleader, a girl probably comes to mind and not a guy. But the role was reversed this year when the powder-puff cheerleaders entertained the crowds at the game by attempting difficult pyramids and gymnastic stunts, along with cheers like "Party Hearty".

Practice sessions were held so by the time the game was played they had formations worked out, cheers learned, stunts perfected, and they really looked experienced.

What made them look complete was the fact that they wore uniforms, sweaters and skirts included!

The senior team (Super Seniors) defeated the junior team (Dwarfs) 26-6, and the sophomores beat the freshmen 16-6.

The cheerleaders won't forget the experience of "being on the other side of the fence," and the crowd won't forget seeing the group of guys either.

Freshmen are still 'hingin' in there'

Spirit means different things to different people, but to the freshmen, spirit meant "hingin' in there." Freshmen had to cope with being cut-down by everyone just because they were the youngest in the school, not being able to drive to dances and parties, getting stuck with smaller lockers than everyone else, and many other things.

But the freshmen were proud of who they were and, therefore, were full of spirit. Even though they were without cars, freshmen managed to get to various sporting events with older friends or by the pep bus.

The cheerleaders were a big part of freshman spirit. "Their maturity and ability to practice long and hard made the squad excellent," said Ms. Geri Kernz, advisor. The freshman athletic teams had a difficult year, but didn't give up and managed to finish the year with respectable seasons.

The float had many problems, however, including being wrecked only one night before the parade, which meant it had to be re-built. The theme of the float was "Beat the Royals Disney." The idea was good, but due to the fact that it had to be re-done at the last minute, the float ended up placing last in the competition. The day of the parade, the class officers and representatives tried to quickly fix the broken float. This is a good example of the class of 82's spirit!

BOREDOM EPIDEMIC STRIKES

Have you ever been sitting in a class, wondering what you were doing there and why you took such a boring class? Many students suffering from intense boredom were found in epidemic proportions at St. Charles High School.

Spring brought a cure for this disease by allowing students to go outside during study halls. And of course, there's the old favorite way of eliminating that boring class by skipping out. (Clockwise from left), Underclassmen use their study halls to catch up on their sleep. Even teachers get bored, as shown here by Mr. John Stoffel and Mr. Jeff Childs. Junior Tim Willing takes his daily nap in his creative writing class. After the NHS trip to Chicago, senior Dave Jahn takes a snooze. Fans patiently await the upcoming wrestling match. Room 216 is always a madhouse but, Ms. Candy (Ma) Perkins manages to find a boring moment.

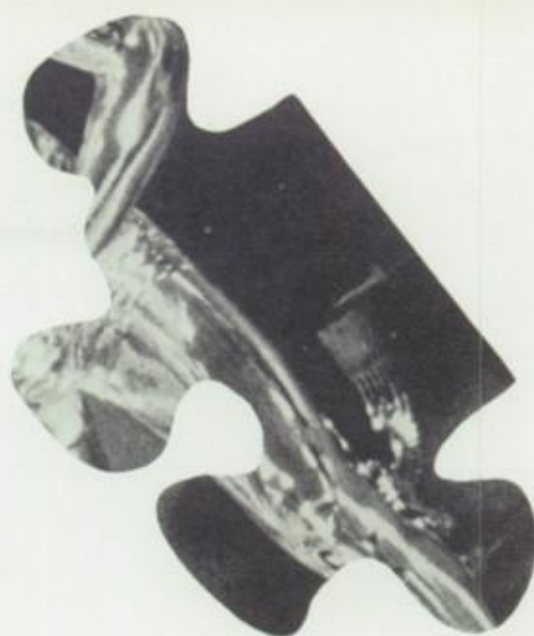

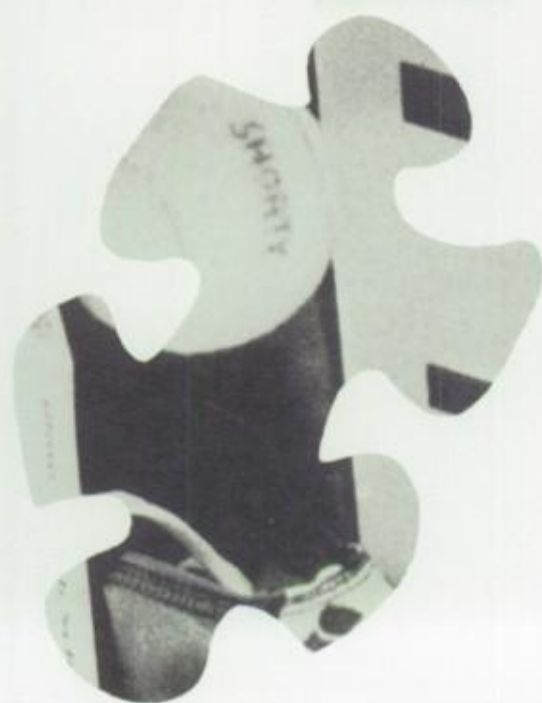

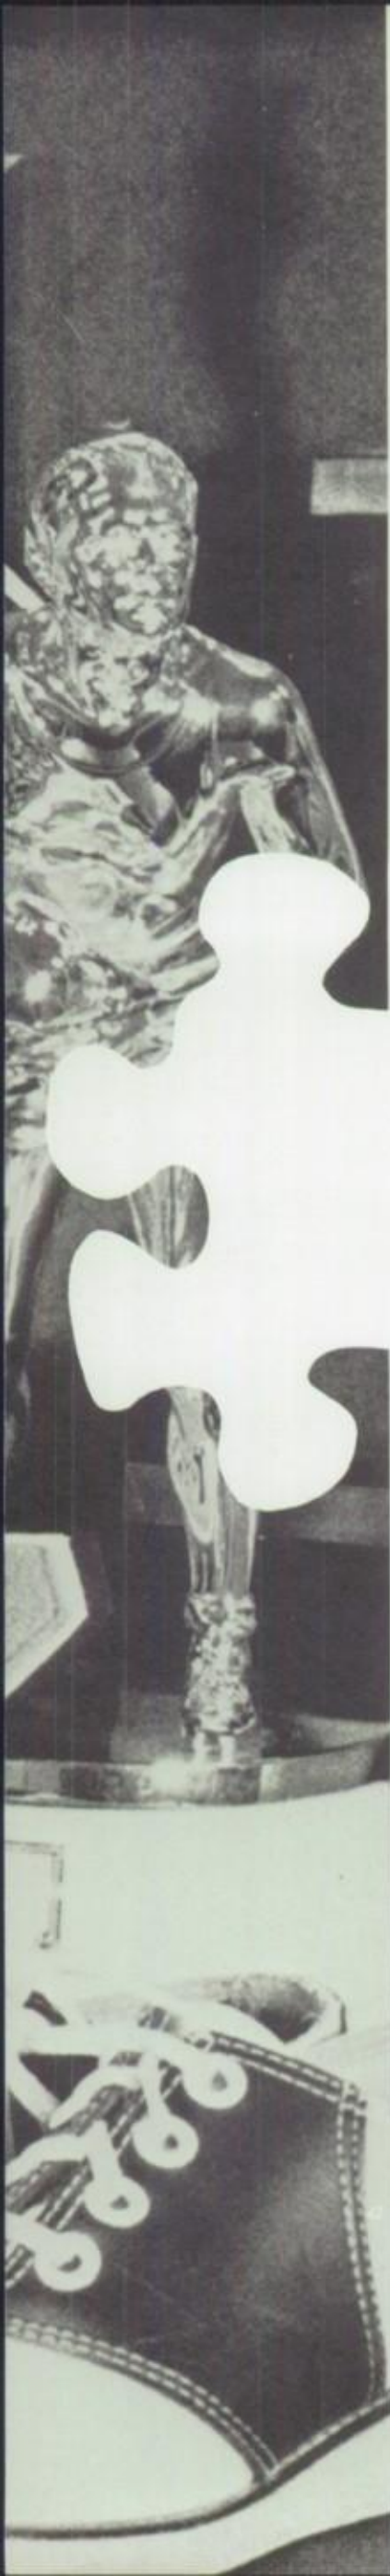

SPRING . . . HERE?!

After the record high snow fall throughout the past winter, more and more people looked forward to the end of cold weather and the beginning of a new season - SPRING! Although Spring Vacation didn't offer much spring weather, students were ready for a break and many welcomed trips to warmer climates. When the first day finally appeared, people of all ages raced outside to do whatever they liked best. Among these activities were: baseball, skateboarding, rolling skating, jogging, playing frisbee, and just catching some rays. Spring also brought a gas shortage which made gas prices rise considerably. This situation caused many people to check into another means of transportation-bicycles. Many days were filled with 70° and 80° temperatures and the flowers came in force.

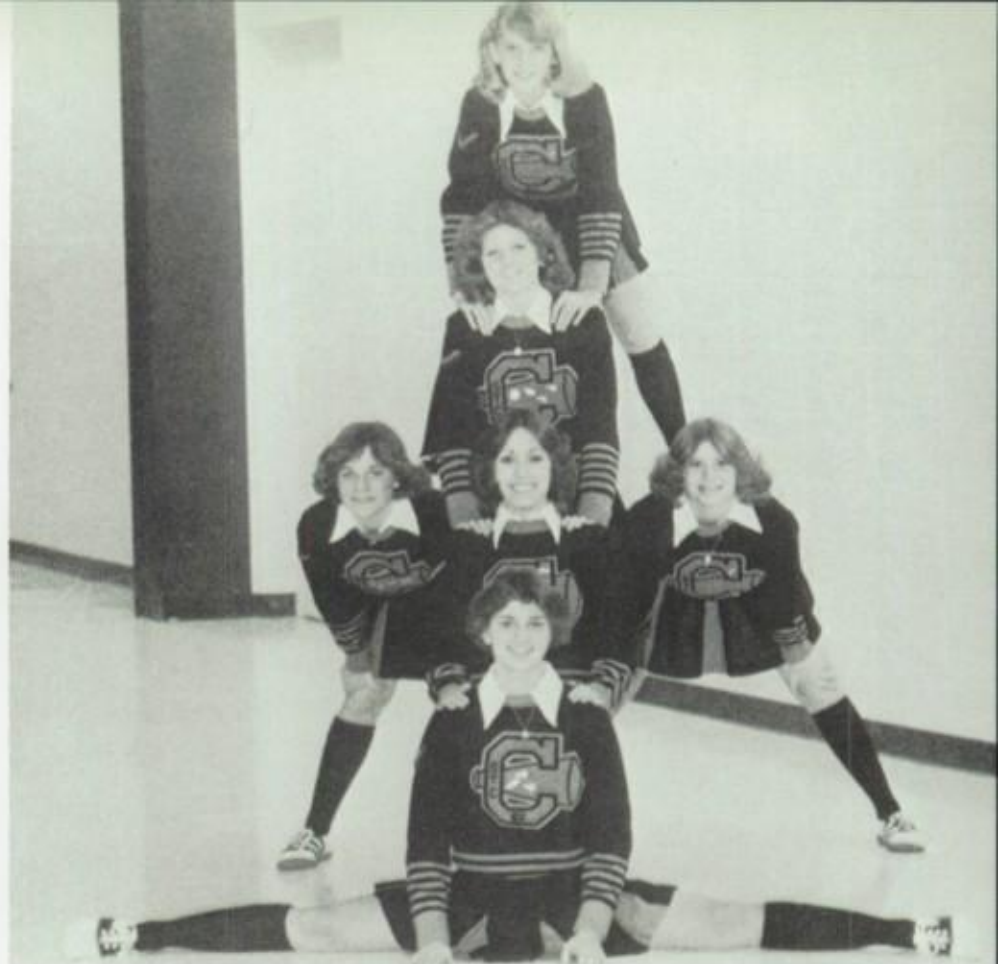

Sports: new, old athletes combine

Practice for new seasons does not start with the opening of school; for those participating in fall sports, practice took place not only at school (even at Thompson) and various camps but also just for fun. Early morning practices during August and over spring break gave team members time to improve and to work together to do their best. Each season welcomed new arrivals from other schools (who is that new guy?) and "old" athletes worked with new to combine better STC teams. Football saw many new players from other places and helped to win many conference honors and the games played at Reid Field (again) filled up those Friday nights. These players were the last to have the coaching help of Mr. Leo Vitali also. The wrestlers sent Tim Beebe, senior, down state, and basketball won the Regional tournament again-much to the surprise and thrill of everyone. Swimmers rarely received enough credit for the honors they pieced together-the girls' won 8th in State and the boys placed first in State competition. The tennis team sent Senior Todd Wendling to a tournament in Australia and this was the first year for a girls' softball team to play for the Saints. Baseball players had to suffer through a very cold beginning before the warm weather came around. Indoor track team was started, and the other track teams were able to use the new track located at our high school (who needs bleachers anyway?). Trophies and plaques seen left were just a few received during this year, which were presented at various pep assemblies. A wrestling pin, cheerleading and track shoes, a swim suit and goggles, a tennis ball ("Shorty") and a baseball cap were just a few of the signs of achievement received during '78-'79. It was part of the jigsaw that athletes combined.

Besides needing a loud voice, skills in gymnastics, practicing Monday and Wednesday afternoons, and battling cold weather at outdoor sporting events, cheerleading requires hard work and dedication. Tryouts for the 78-79 cheerleaders were held during April. The sophomore squad had a total of three tryouts due to the fact that two of the girls originally chosen moved.

The varsity cheerleaders this year consisted of eight girls instead of the usual six. "The addition of the extra two creates more spirit and is more impressive," said Ms. Geri Kernz, advisor.

The squad attended a cheerleading camp at Knox College in Galesburg where they won a blue ribbon, 12 red ribbons, and a spirit megaphone. Varsity cheerleader Sherry Miller said, "Going to camp is a lot of fun, but you also work hard and it's competitive."

The cheerleaders raised school spirit at pep assemblies and games where they had to lead a sometimes hostile crowd. They cheered their teams through victories and defeats and managed to keep a smile regardless.

Saints lose Vitali; place second in UEC

The 1979 edition of the fighting Saints' football team posted a season record of 7-2. The highlight of the season saw the Saints defeat Elgin Larkin in the homecoming matchup 19-12. The Saints closed out the year with a romp of the DeKalb Barbs to end Leo Vitali's coaching career. Members of the team named to the all-conference list were: offensive players, Tony Grossklog, Kenn Mitchell, Brian McGovern, and Randy Wright. Defensive players included Ray Foster, Andy Gusman, Mitch Mulch, and Joe Ringhoffer, Bill Arloff, O'Dell DeBerry, and Tim Wade received special mention. Sophs take 2nd in UEC

The Saint Sophs of 78 posted an impressive 7-2 season mark and placed second in the conference. The highlight of the sophomore season occurred Oct. 20 when the saints overcame a strong Larkin team 20-14 coming back from a 12-0 deficit in the first half. The win represented a break in the Larkin four year winning streak established by the rival sophomores. The Saints were led by sophomore quarterback Bill Bartell, and relied heavily on the strong running of fullback Andy Panettiera and tailback Rich Bridges. Other standouts of the season for the sophs included split end Rod Cregier, Kicker Tim Clancy, safety Bob Zenker and a small but strong defensive line. The sophs were under the direction of head coach Tom Kerner and assisted by Coach Lee Mirabelli.

Coach Vitali retires

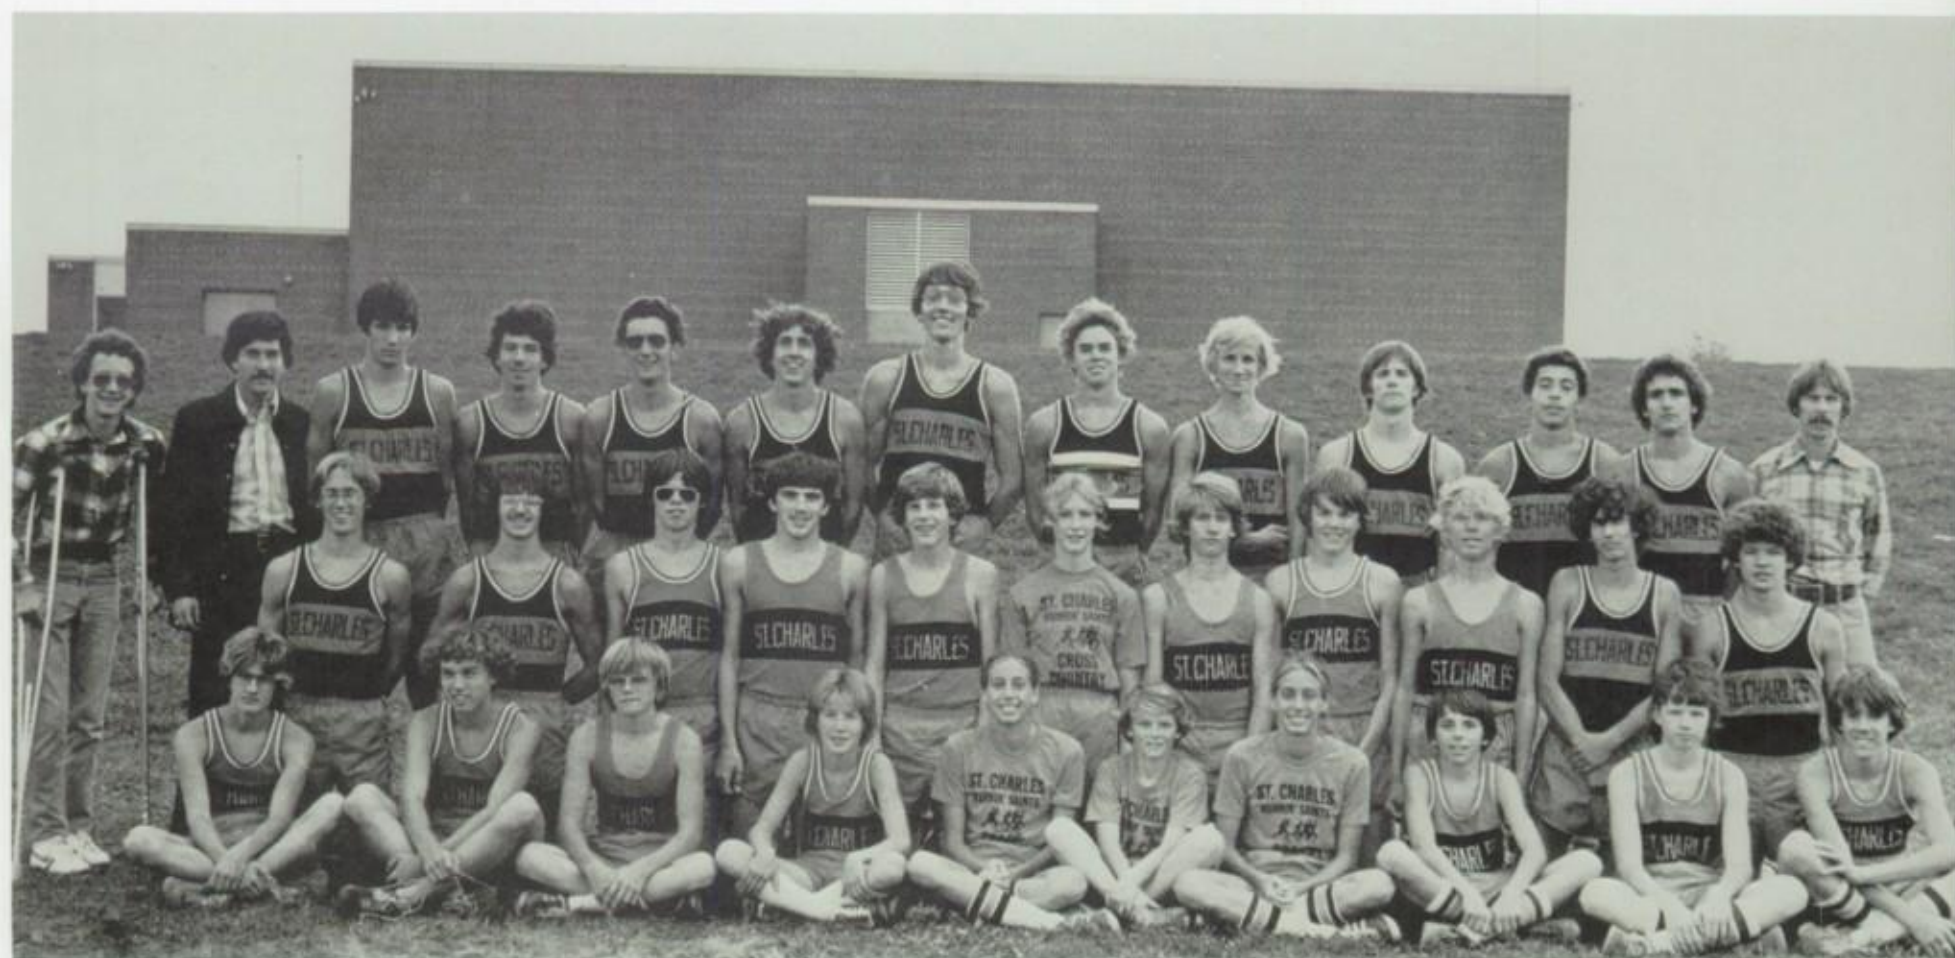

Friday, Nov. 3, 1978, marked the end of 25 years of coaching for Leo Vitali with his team crunching the DeKalb Barbs 46-14. Vitali refused to take credit for the victory, as was his custom. "This was a great team," stated Vitali. Before the season finale against the Barbs, Vitali was awarded the game ball by senior co-captains Randy Wright and Kenn Mitchell. Vitali stated that his goal was to win three conference championships. He won two, in 1971 and 1975, and definitely had the talent to capture his third this year but starting quarterback Wright was injured and the Saints were edged from conference honors by West Aurora. While Vitali has coached for 25 years, 13 of these have been spent at St. Charles. In this time he has compiled an impressive 103-72-4 record, which includes eight conference championships and four undefeated seasons. Vitali started his coaching at St. Theresa High School; from there he went to Mayhomet Seymour and then on the St. Charles. While at St. Charles Vitali had many "ups and downs." Through the first five years, Vitali was confronted with hard times as the team's 8-36-1 record would indicate. After these rough times, Saint fans were to witness many years of fine football. In 1971, under the leadership of Vitali's son Mark, the Saints won the conference with an undefeated mark and Vitali's son earned all-state honors for his efforts. Vitali added, "Watching my son grow up through football was probably my most satisfying and enjoyable experience." A heart attack in 1973 started Vitali thinking of retirement, something he hadn't given much thought to up until this time. "I decided after the heart attack that I couldn't go on forever," said Vitali. During the '73 campaign, Vitali's assistants ran the club. Vitali returned to his familiar position on the sidelines in '74. As far as the educational aspects are concerned, Vitali said, "The athletic contest is an educational tool and the taxpayers would be making a great mistake if they stopped supporting athletics." Vitali also added that the fan and student response over the years has been "excellent." As Vitali was carried off the field by his team after the DeKalb victory, people were bidding their final farewells to a great coach. "I guess I'll miss working with the kids more than anything else," concluded a weary-eyed Vitali.

Cross country places 11th in state competition

The STC cross country team advanced further than any other track team under coach Trent Richards as the Saints ran on to an 11th place finish in the state meet. STC finished 2nd in the conference behind West Aurora. The Saints also won three invitationals this year. It was the first time in history that the Saint cross country team qualified to go to the state finals as a team. Defending state champion Deerfield was 12th with 300 points. A total of 30 teams competed in the state finals. In order to qualify for the state finals, the Saints had to finish in the top five at the Lockport Sectional. In that meet, the Saints finished 4th. "It was our greatest performance team-wise. We proved we were one of the top teams in the state," said cross country coach Trent Richards after his team finished 11th in state meet in Peoria.

individually, breaking Rick Wohlhuter's school record which he set in 1967. Jones' other achievements during the season included an 8th place in the sectional in Lockport, 2nd in the conference meet, only 5 seconds off the first place time. He also finished 2nd once again to West Aurora's Steve Gramsch in the county meet and another 2nd place in the Dixon Invitational. Jones wasn't the only contributor to the best CC team in school history. Other seniors included Tom Clarke, Mark Peltier and John Leonard who consistently contributed to the lopsided STC wins in most dual meets. Junior Evan Clarrissimeaux ran behind Jones all season and is ready to lead a fine young team next year. Sophomore Ken Jones and Freshman Chris Brandli will join Clarrissimeaux next year after getting their first experience at the state meet this year.

Spikers improve

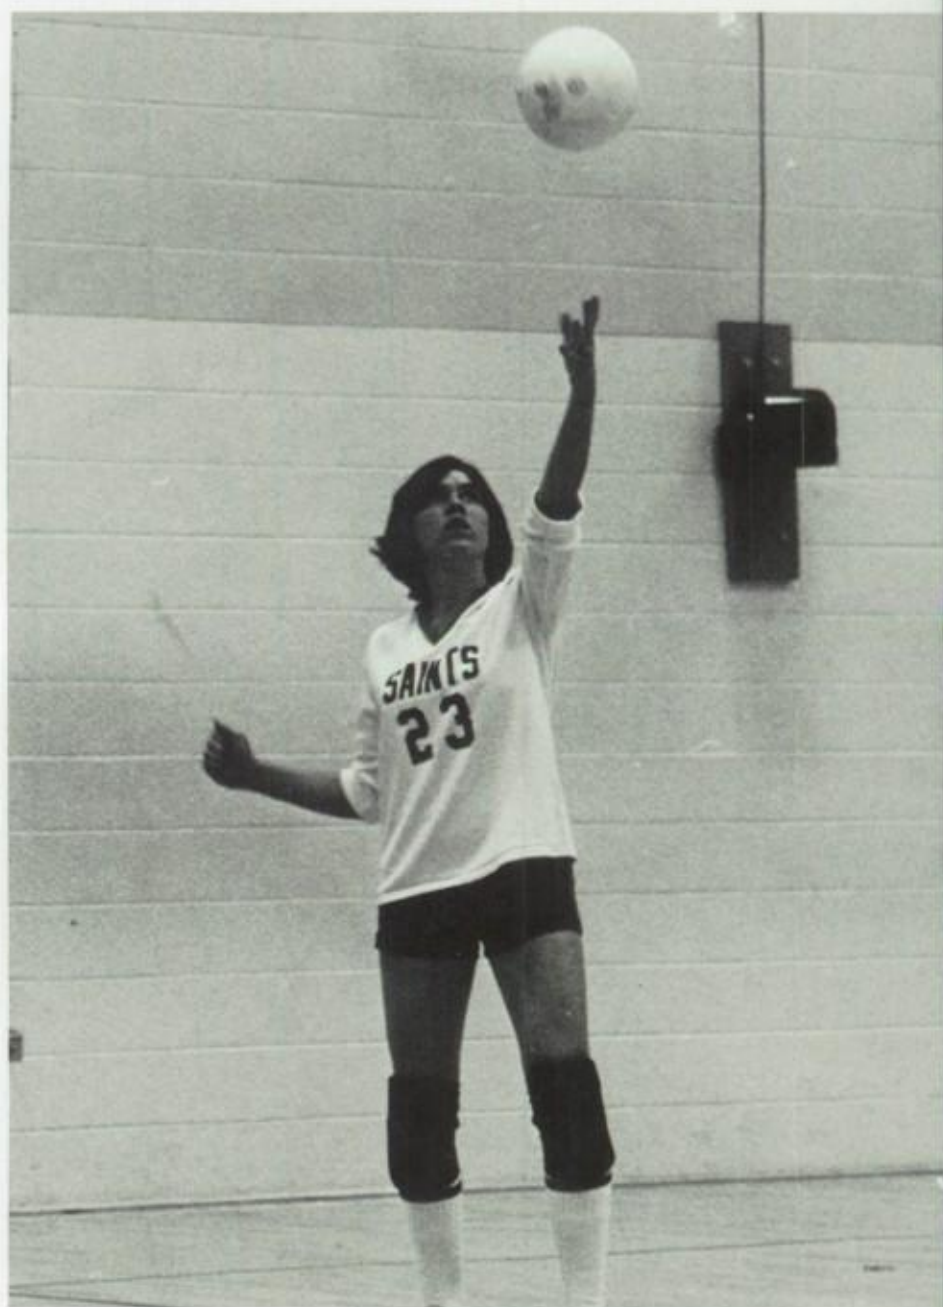

Girls' sports began the year with a young and improved volleyball team.

Returning from last year's 0-10 conference record, the Saints had only two seniors, Karen Campbell and Kathy McLaughlin. Saints' spikers posted a 1-9 conference record and a 4-11 overall mark.

Despite a losing record, Juniors Cristy Carlson and Patty McLaughlin were selected as members of the all-conference team.

The Saints ended their season by hosting the district tournament which included Geneva, Batavia, and Lake Park. The Saintspikers bowed out in the first round with a defeat from the Batavia Bulldogs.

Optimism is high for next year's Saints who will return with 11 players in addition to a successful J.V. team.

Netters post 9-1 season record, place second

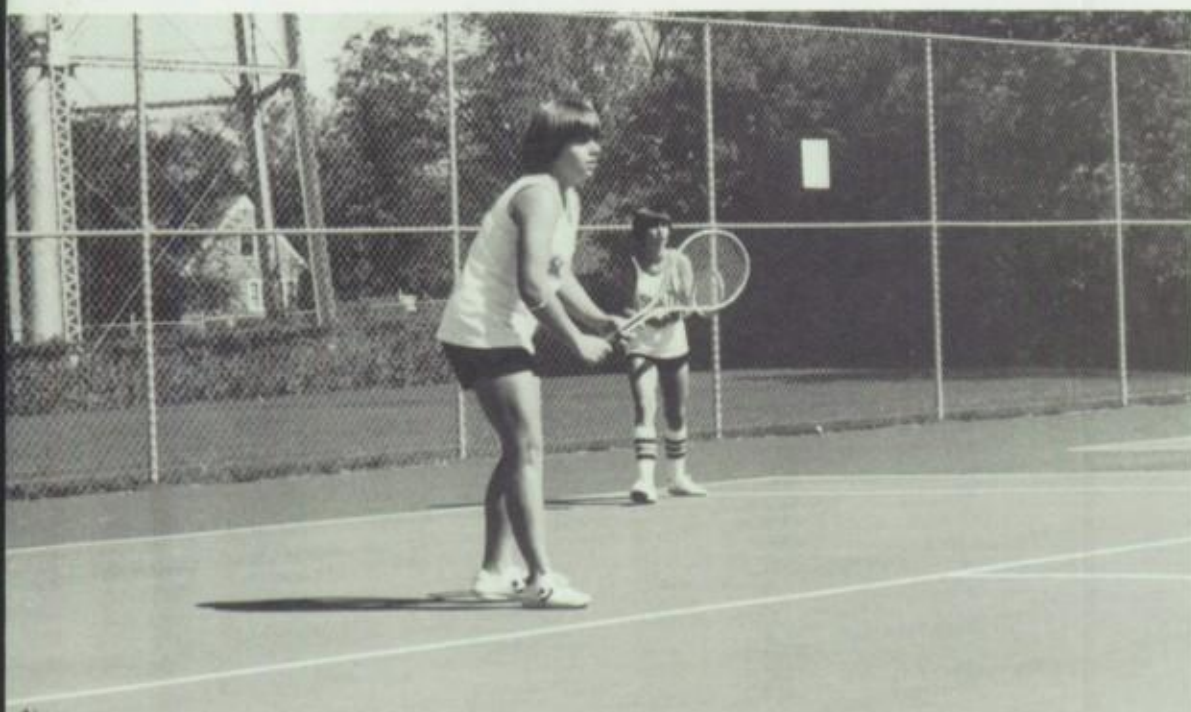

No one from the girls' tennis team in the history of St. Charles High School has ever made it to state. But Sue Sanborn, junior, changed that in the '78-'79 season. Sue had only one loss, finishing the year with a 5-1 record. The team ended up with a 5-1 conference record and a 9-1 over all record. However, in the conference meet, West Aurora barely defeated the Saints. "It was a close second," said Coach Dee Christoffers. Only losing two players, Senior Caroline Carlson and Senior Elaine Kuhn, the team will have most of its letter winners returning next year. "We hope to take first in conference next year," said Christoffers. She believes that with a little more work, the girls can accomplish that goal, since it was almost in reach in the 78-79 season. Golfers unbeaten in Conference

This year the Saints' Golf team won it's fifth conference match by defeating a strong DeKalb team 157-165. The sophomore team also won conference, to remain undefeated in conference play. The varsity team ended its season with a 6-0 record in conference. They placed 5th at the Lake Park Invitational, and then placed 5th in the district golf tourney.

Swim team finishes 6th: keeps up trend

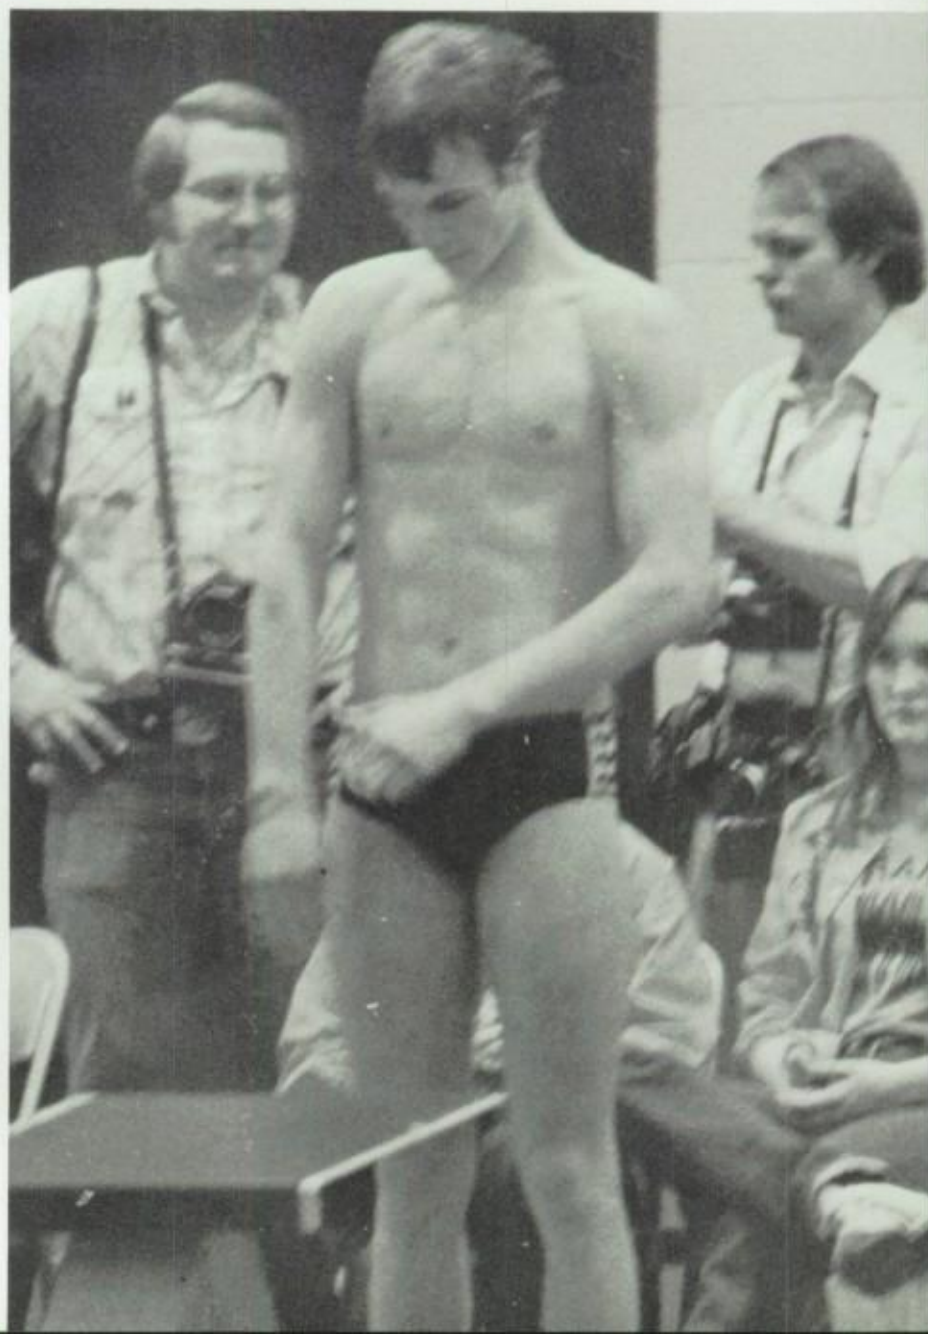

After finishing 2nd in conference behind DeKalb, and placing 1st in the district meet, the St. Charles girls' swim team went on to finish 6th in the state. Senior Captain Sue Westhoff was 5th in state in the 200 IM, along with Amy Daniell's 7th place finish in 50 free and 2nd in the 100 fly.

Jenny Leonard finished 5th in the 500 free, and Amy Selleg was 8th. The free relay team of Karen Westhoff, Wendy Martin, Leonard, and Daniell captured 5th place in state. Coach Bob Tiechart said, "With only one of our state qualifiers from this year leaving, we should have a comparable season next year." (Below) Sophomore Amy Daniell prepares for her start in the 50 free in the state swim meet. (middle) Senior Captain Carrie Christoffers executes her winning style with a back dive. Swimmers take state title

Winning the state title was the highlight of the year for the swim team. It ended a 12-year dynasty of Hinsdale Central by out-scoring them 169-88. Both relay teams (medley relay and 400-yard. free relay) placed first, and senior Glenn Henry won the 200-yd. IM and also the 100-yd. free in 46.37, which is a new state record. STC finished their year 8-0 in dual-meets, won conference and district, placed first in two invitationals, and were defeated once by Hinsdale Central in an invitational meet, in which STC placed second. STC frosh, soph basketball teams stay respectable

The Saint Charles Saints freshman and sophomore basketball teams both had respectable seasons. The freshman team was lead by center Eric Carlborg. Along with Carlborg, Eric Metz, Kevin Green, Bob Tolf and Jerry Page all compiled several stats. Carlborg led the team in field goals shooting 49 per cent. Tolf and Page followed Carlborg each shooting 46 per cent. Green led the team in free-throws shooting 81 per cent. Metz shot 71 per cent at the line with Tolf next with 61 per cent. Leading the team again, Carlborg got 149 rebounds with Metz taking 118. Carlborg also led the team with total points shooting 258, with Metz at 190 and Page with 129. Coach Gilmore was pleased with the teams showing. Meanwhile the sophomores were playing a game of their own. Led by players Dave Potter, Trey Johnson, Jay Torry, and Mike Penny, the team wound up with an overall record of 8-17. The team won two tournaments and were 4-4 in conference play. Jack Yack, led the team in field goals, with 48 per cent. Coach Rachow was very pleased with the boys, he commented that they couldn't have done it without their forwards.

Inexperience no handicap for varsity basketball

The 1978-79 edition of the Fighting Saints basketball team turned in a surprising, somewhat "Cinderella" season. Led by the shooting of 6-3 forward Jerry Holtz, along with returning letterman Greg Cudworth, the Saints managed to be 7-3 in the UEC and 19-8 overall. Halfway through the season the Saints were 4-1, only one game off East Aurora. The Saints then dropped two games on the road, first to Larkin in three overtimes, and then to West Aurora by 2 points, to give the Tomcats the conference title. The Saints' peak was when they beat the Tomcats at Aurora in overtime. The 79-76 victory marked the first time a STC team had beaten the Tomcats on their home floor in 13 years. Entering the regional playoffs on a good note, the Saints tromped over Kaneland who had previously knocked them out of the DeKalb Holiday Tournament. Geneva was the next team to fall to the Saints as they won the regional title. In the sectionals, St. Charles again met Barrington in the finals. In the opening half of the game it looked as though the Saints would pull it out, holding on to three ten-point leads. But a powerful Barrington team soon took possession and won 66-51.

Head varsity wrestling coach Fred Bruder stepped down from his position at the conclusion of the 78-79 season. The Saint coach notched many impressive seasons including the 78-79 squad. The squad was unusually young having lost ten wrestlers to graduation last year. Conference championships were held by Beebe and DeBerry. The Saint team posted a season record of 9-9 overall and placed third in the UEC. The Saints also posted a 4-1 conference mark. JV conference titles were collected by Joe Gonzalas Lance Zahner, and Ralph Locher.

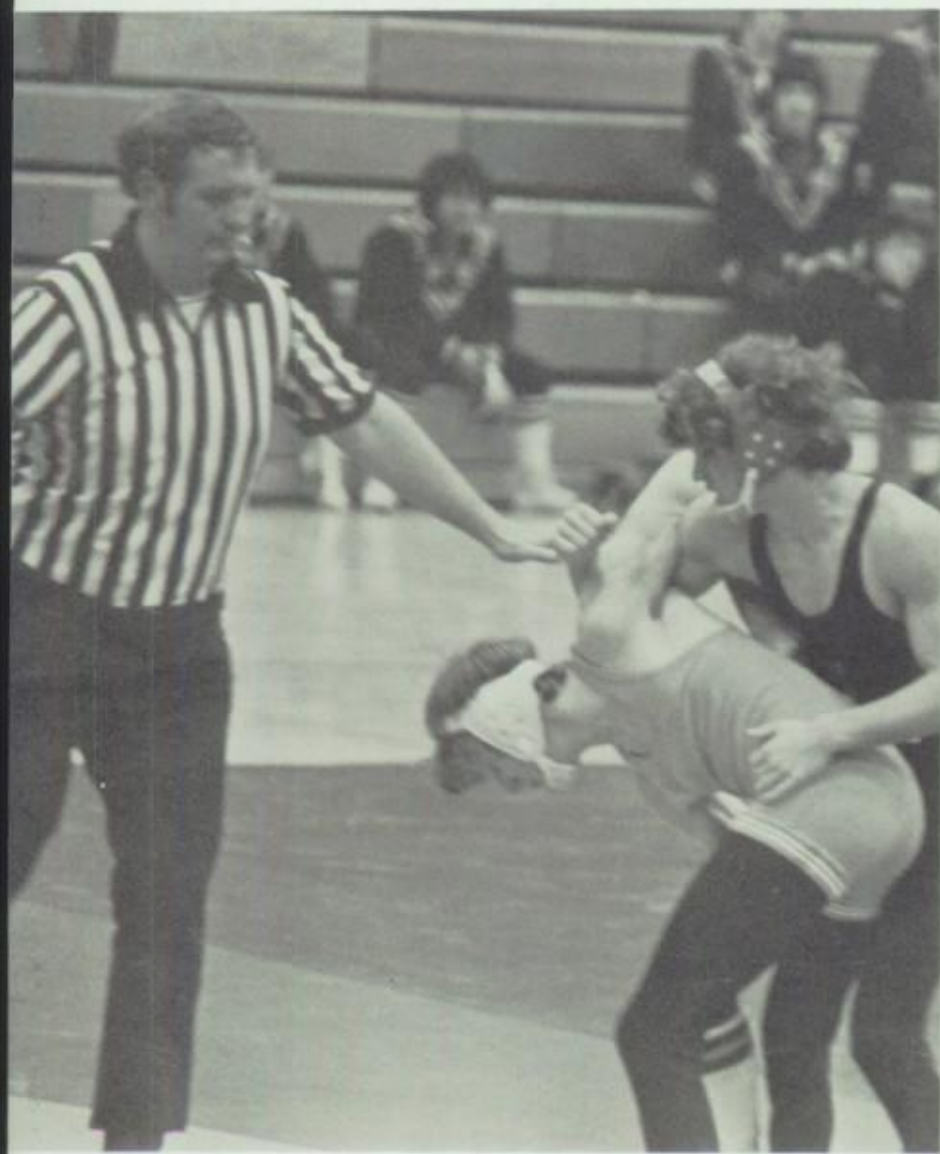

Soph-Frosh grapplers post winning season

A hard-working and dedicated sophomore team chalked up a final 9-2 record for the underclassmen. The sophomores were led by Jeff Kerner and Jim Mzhickteno with 15-1 and 13-2 records respectively. The Saints co-captains each placed first in the conference and were the teams' most valuable players. Bill Peterson was the most improved wrestler and fired the team up before each match with his famous soft shoe. The highlight of the sophomore season was a victory against the DeKalb Barbs by a score of 32-30. The sophs were also 4-1 in conference and took second in the St. Charles-hosted tournament. Joe Gonzales and Kerner both took first in the tourney. The underclass Saints were coached by Chuck Robinson. Freshmen Rich Brown (right) struggles to escape from his sophomore opponent. (Below)

Able teams look for future success

The girls' basketball team began a new season this year with three teams instead of only two. For the first time a freshman team was added to the girls' athletic program. Coached by Shirley Vargeson, the freshman team put forth a great amount of effort and ended the season with an undefeated record of 9-0.

The junior varsity team, coached by Linda Sherer, had an excellent season even though the team was very young and inexperienced. The team ended the season with a 10-5 record and a third place finished in the conference.

The varsity squad, coached by Mary Fasbender, ended the '79 campaign with a 10-14 record. Caroline Carlson, the only returning senior of last year, was voted on to the all-conference team unanimously by all the coaches of the Upstate Eight. Erin Fabin and Celeste Combs were voted onto the second team.

Saints' bowlers take second in district

Girls' bowling team returned with their bowlers from last year, Anna Kroesen, Sheryl Kerley, and Barb Schlim. The varsity team consisted of five girls, their overall record was 36 wins and 20 losses. The JV team also had five girls but their final standings were 42 wins with 14 losses. The team had five alternates. District competition was hosted by St. Charles Feb. 3. Varsity rolled to a second place finish. Top three bowlers were Junior Jeanette Biddle with a 149.7 average, Sophomore Sheila Vincent 147 average.

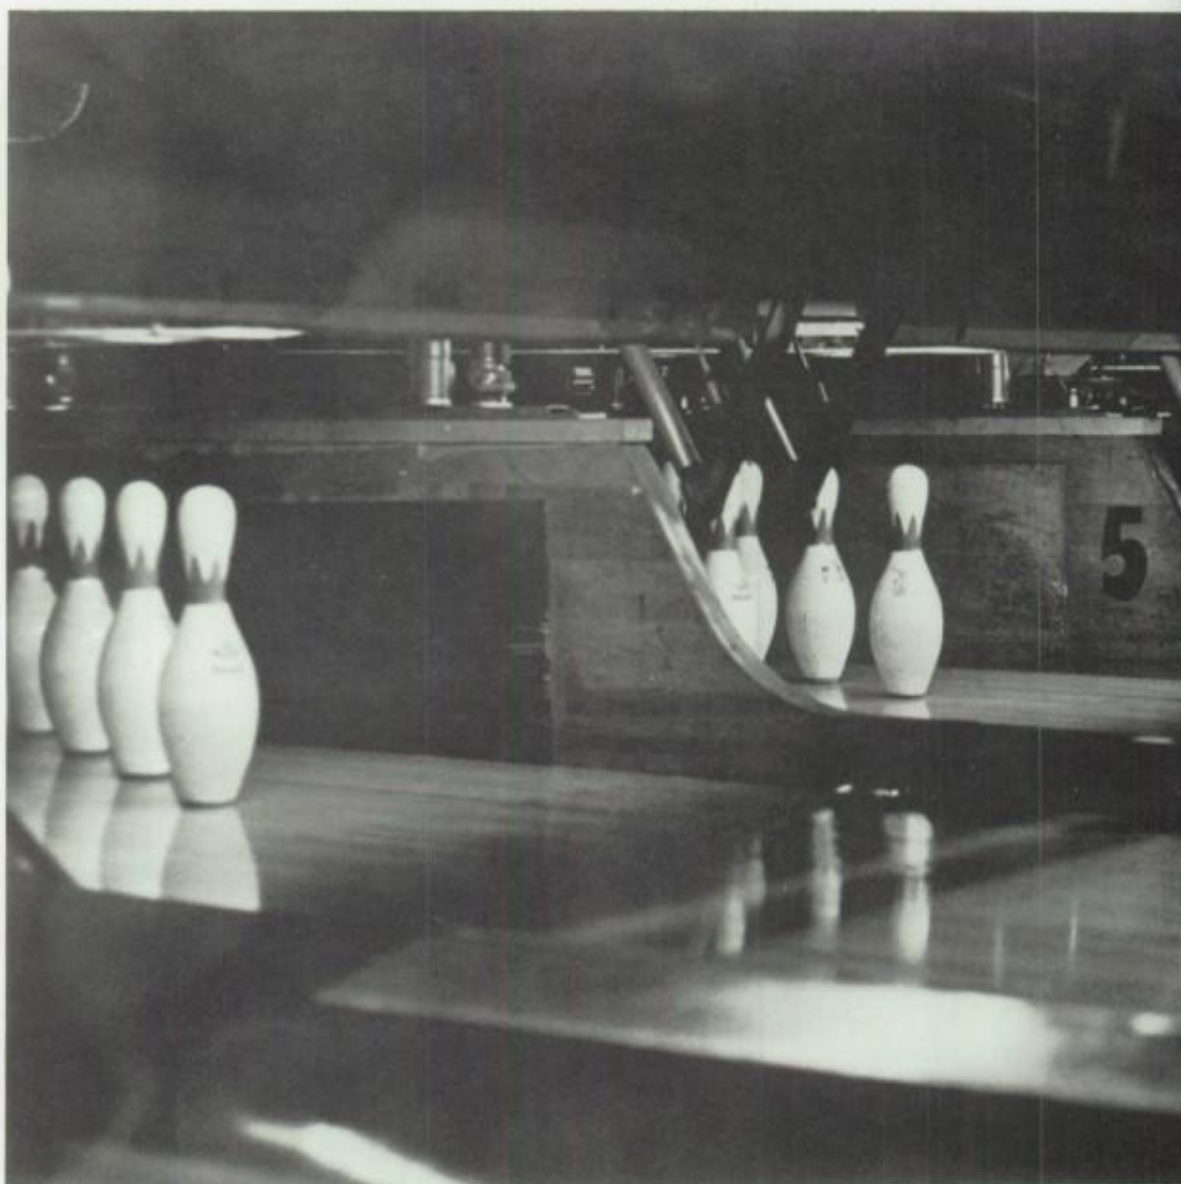

Vincent also had a high game of 228, Freshman Vicki Karametsos had an average of 146.9.

1979 introduced the first year of girls' softball brought to St. Charles High School, as the varsity team ended up with a 5-12 record. The junior varsity battled strong teams to an 8-8 finish, under the coaching of Ms. Judy Umbdenstock. Coach Shirley Vargeson brought the varsity team to a building year as pitching was stressed and defense was strong. Despite the many injuries throughout the season, the varsity squad gained experience for future years. Home games were played behind Haines Junior High, while they traveled to such schools as East Aurora, Elgin and Dekalb. Both teams consisted of eighteen players chosen from the approximately 45 who tried out. Next year's teammates are hopeful of a successful season as many experienced players are expected to return.

The varsity boys' tennis team members led by Coach Dan Hall finished their season with smiles on their faces this spring. Their 11-5 record didn't seem phenomenal to the uneducated bystander but considering their last year's season of 2-10 with the same boys, the outcome deserved applause. Senior Todd Wendling earned an extraordinary 31-4 record, becoming first in district before making his trip to state competition where he won three matches.

The sophomore squad won the Upstate 8 Conference with a 15-0 record. Their determination and hard work paid off in the top position in region. All the gentlemen's efforts helped bring the first place trophy home. Both groups and Coach Hall deserve congratulations for this outstanding year, and good luck wishes for the next.

Saint nine break even in Upstate Eight race

The 1979 edition of the Saint nine posted a final conference record of 10-10-1 for an even 500 mark. The Saints got off to a good start with a sweep of Streamwood, but later had to face the likes of West Aurora, East Aurora, Elgin, and Larkin before getting back on the winning track. The team was the first to break in the diamond as it was completed just prior to the start of the season. Senior Bruce Lawyer (lower right, facing page) sprints to first after laying down a successful bunt, Lawyer was used as a designated hitter for the Saints. (below) senior Rob Kohlhausen scores as the ball arrives too late for the play. Kohlhausen was dubbed all-conference at third base. (left) Senior Jeff Cassens slides safely into third as Coach DeMaar looks on. The Saint catcher was captain and spark plug of the team.

Sophs go 10-8

With only the DeKalb series remaining in the season, the St. Charles Sophomore baseball team managed a 10-8 overall record after a give-and-take season. The Saints see-sawed throughout the 18-game season while juggling the team's six pitchers in and out of the starting spot. Leading the pack was Pitcher Jay Torry, who started in seven games and earned a record of 5-2.

Brian Peterson led the team at the plate with a batting average of .435, with Tim Clancy following at .380. Clancy led the team in put-outs with 103 and also in runs-batted-in with 12.

St. Charles freshmen were divided into two teams this year. The

"A" team accumulated an 8-3 record and the "B" team went 4-1-1 for the season. Pitchers Mike Tobin and Andy Songer led the Frosh "A" squad with 5-0 and 3-1 records, respectively, while Tom Richards led the "B" team with a 2-1 record.

Head Coach Richards says team 'best ever

After completing a successful indoor season with a second place finish in conference and winning the NIU Invitational, the Varsity Track Team went on to an undefeated year with a 9-0 dual-meet record. The Saints won the Conference Meet, the IHSA District Meet, the Kane County Meet, and the Fox Valley, Panther-Viking, and McHenry Relays. In the Fox Valley Prep Invitational Meet, the team placed second out of 29 teams. Twelve people qualified for the state meet held at Eastern Illinois University, and the two-mile relay team of Tom Clarke, Mike Stahulak, Bono Gonzales, and Evan Clarrissimeaux went on to finals and were 9th in the state in the event.

From start to finish, the girls' track team had an excellent season this year. All of their strenuous daily practices of running miles at a time payed off for the hard-working team. Astounding their audiences by breaking all except two school records, the girls gave it their best effort to please their coaches, Barbara Luckenbill, Laura Sharer, and Phyllis Swin. Despite the unusually cold weather, the team had a consistent season with a conference record of 6-1 to prove it. They also placed first in the Conference meet, and second in Districts. Karen Bailey, Jackie Hanson, and Sue Manier went down state for STC Manier won state in the shotput, throwing 42'4½ in front of the completely full EIU stadium.

Saints hockey team seventh in state

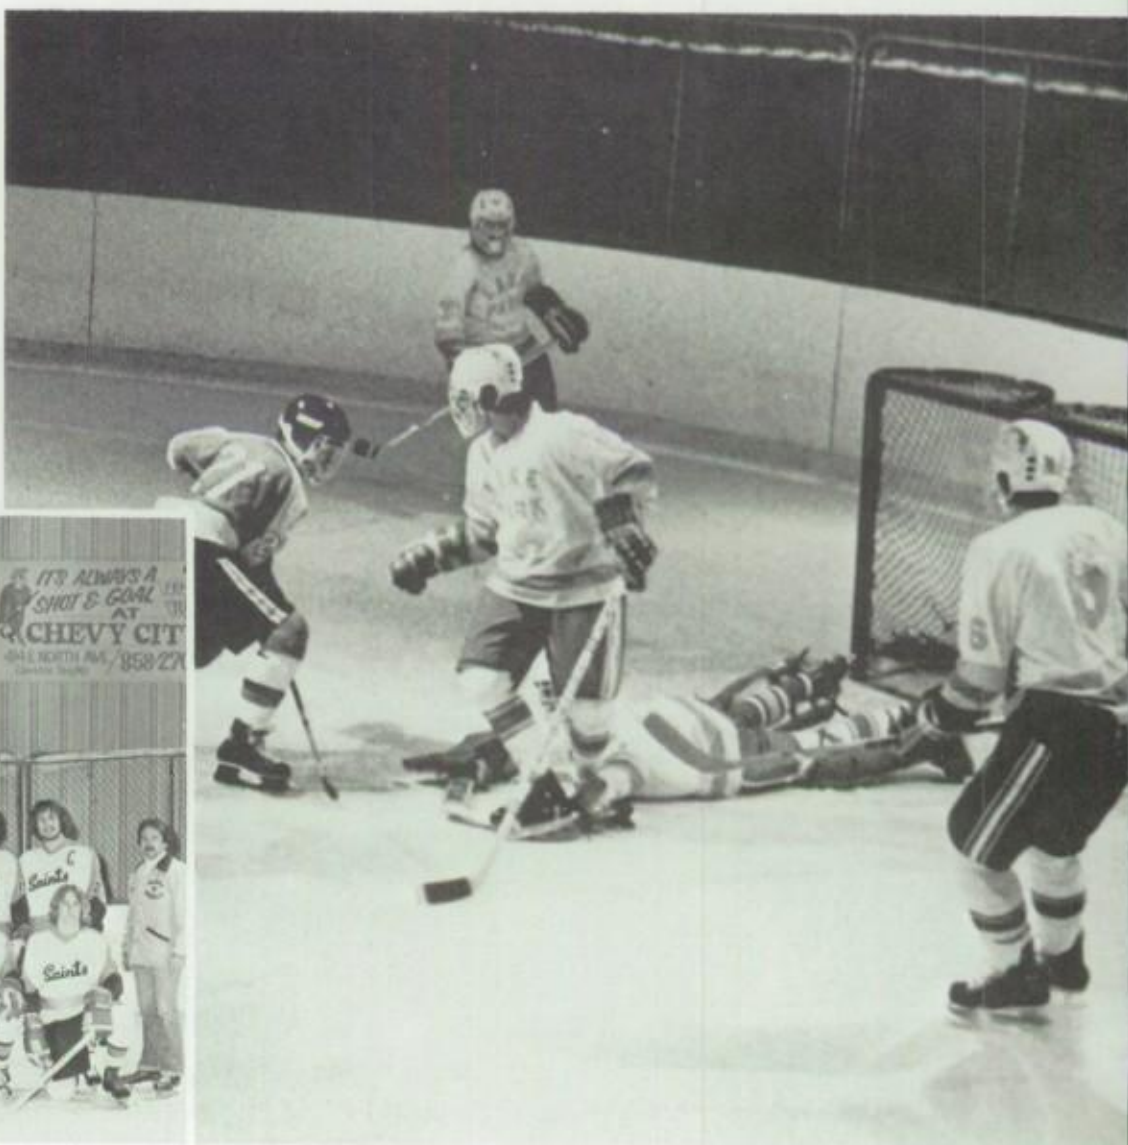

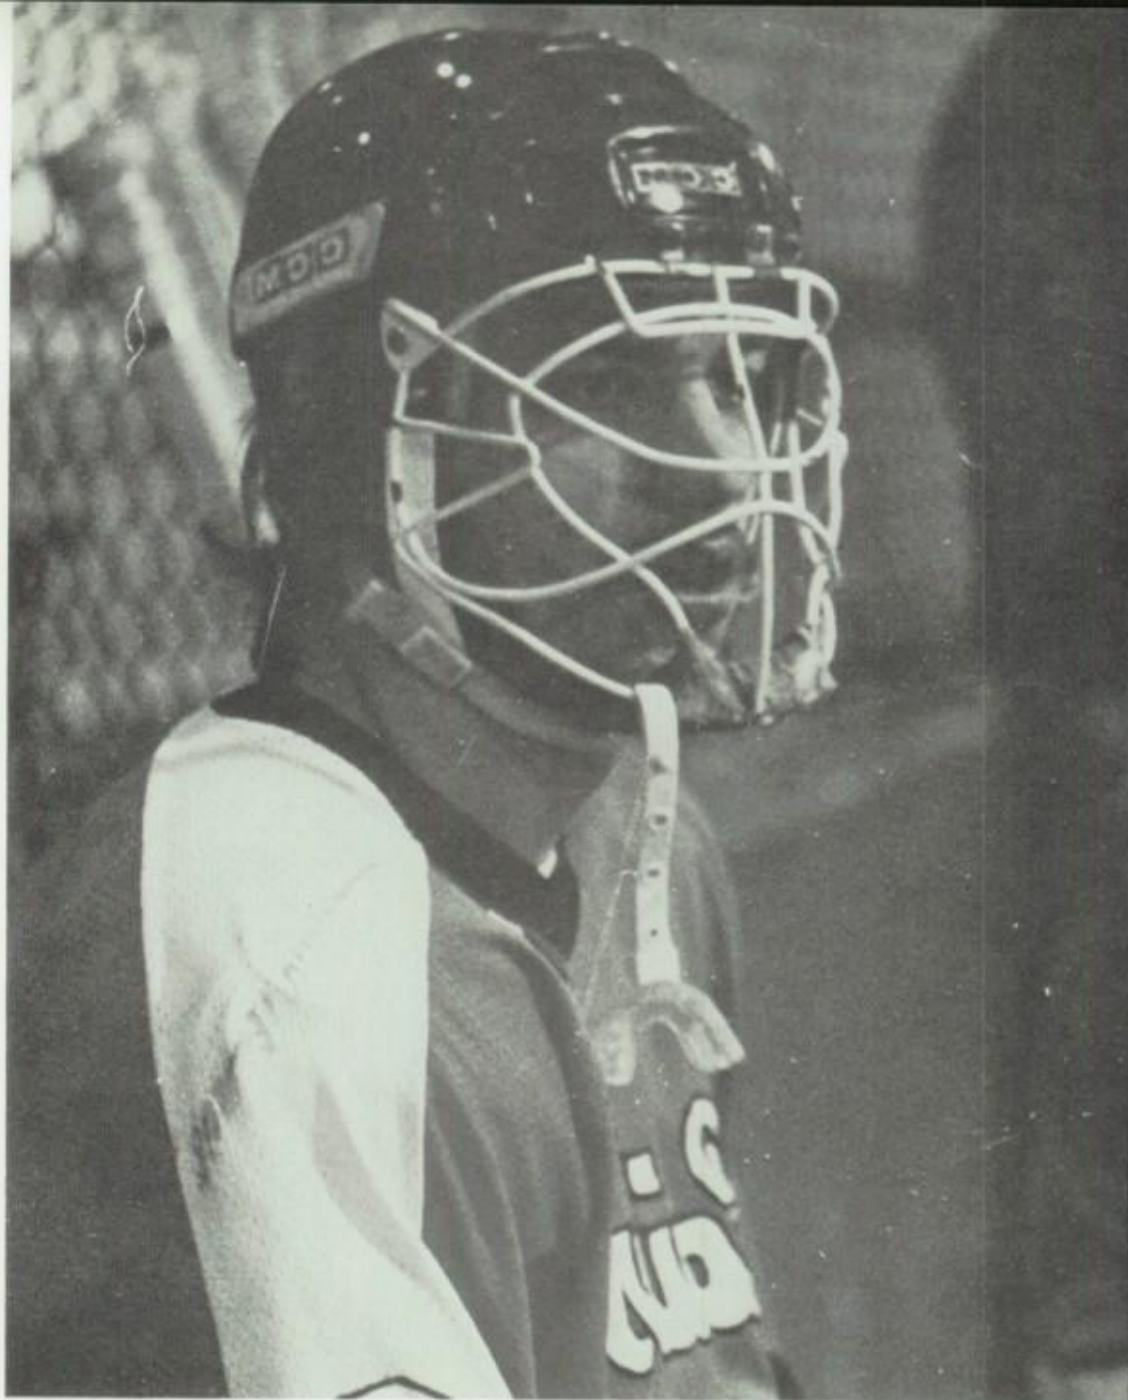

The Varsity Saints hockey team had one of the best seasons ever, finishing up with an over-all record of 36-12-5. The team was led by six seniors, along with senior captain Joe Ringhofer and senior alternates Mark Key and Scott Leesberg. The team had a lot of experience, "one of the best teams we've ever had," said Coach Tom VanBergen.

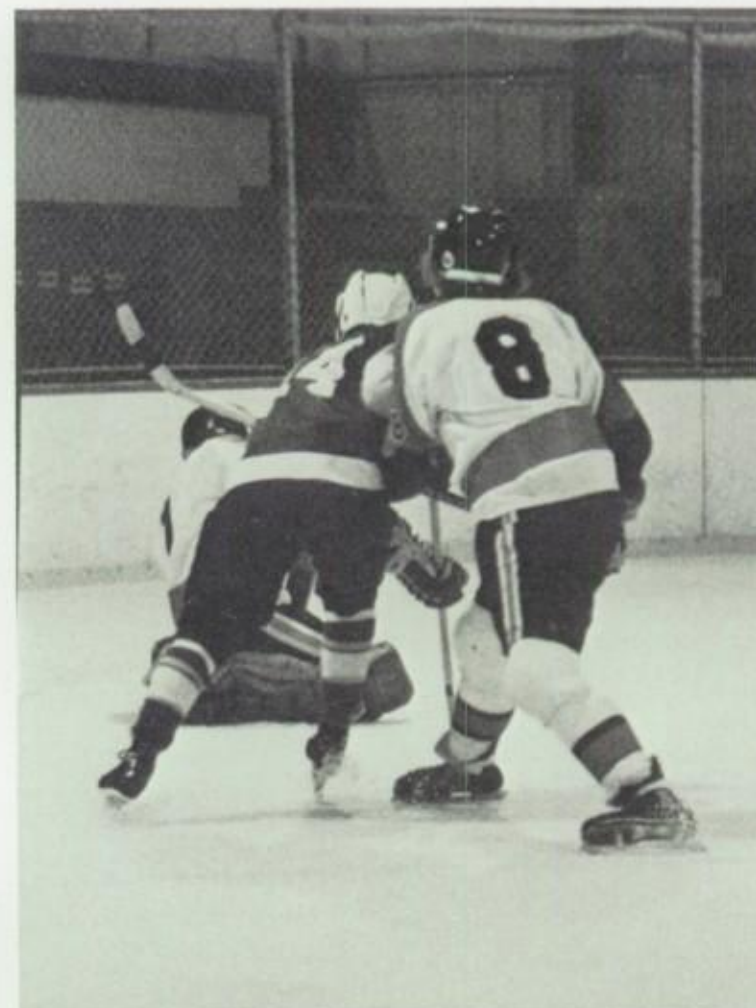

The Saints finished up first in their sectional play-offs after defeating a tough Addison Trail team. In the State competition the Saints finished ranking seventh, after losing to St. Lawrence and a fine Maine South team.

Included in the Saints schedule this year was a trip to Minnesota, to take on some of the toughest teams in area. Most members felt this was a very good experience, as they got to see some good hockey being played.

Shortly after their return, winger Scott Leesberg was injured in a game against East Leyden, a loss felt by the entire team. Saints' hockey has next year to look forward to, the Captain is Scott Clancy, with alternate captains Chico Kappele, and Tim Clancy.

Organizations: after-school fun

Participation was the key. Club members pulled together past ideas with new moneymakers and projects. Selling garbage cans (litter baskets), m&m's jewelry, buttons and penants, bumper stickers, concessions, and having bake sales was only part of it. It was caramel apples during the lunch hours, giving out St. Patrick Day carnations or Drill Team mums, and decorating the Commons and office on a Sunday. It was staying up all night tying 3200 candy canes, practicing new songs until the sound was what you wanted, working to meet X-Ray and Halo deadlines (you mean I have a class this hour?), making posters, preparing spaghetti dinners, throwing parties, going on field trips (Chicago!) and of course those winning and wonderfully witty words of wisdom from the Chess Team announcements. Meetings filled up Thursday nights for Key Club, or even a Tuesday night eating a 40-foot-long banana split, or a Wednesday night with Powder Keg in the TV Room. Clubs were more active than ever—each day more meetings and projects were being announced as organizations worked to sell raffle tickets (Atlanta here we come!) or put on a Student Congree Convention or put together a good pep assembly. Remembrances from club work — a Key Club calendar, music from Band, a camera, a trumpet, a Drill Team sweater, an X-Ray newspaper, a Halo from '78, a Spanish sombrero (the trip to Spain over Spring break!), the Student Congress gavel, a Powder Keg letter (would you believe?) and a streamer from Pep Club — just a few of the pieces of the club puzzle put together during '78-'79.

Choirs combine Ho hos & hallelujahs

Both freshmen and sophomores found ways to keep busy this year. Freshmen spent 5th hours both eating and singing (not at the same time, of course). On any given day freshmen could be seen consuming mass quantities of spaghetti, pizza, Ho Hos, Twinkies, Fruitpies, milkshakes or chips outside the choir room doors. After walking through those doors, the mood was totally changed. Being in Freshmen Choir presented many problems and challenges which the freshmen met head on. Their hard work and talents showed through in their performances. For the sophomores there were concerts to prepare for as usual, but this year was different for the sophomores in many respects. The sophomores had to prepare for their first recording. In addition to the Junior Senior choir and choral the sophomores sang on the 79 STC choir album. Another new piece to the choir puzzle was the addition of sophomores to the choral. For the sophomores' work was a hard part of choir. Hard work was worth the end result as the sophomores gave many fine performances. At right Joan Marshall watches attentively as she awaits direction from Mr. Stoffel.

Atlanta: Beware! STC is on the way

In addition to the traditional fall, spring, and Christmas concerts, the Junior-Senior choir found themselves working hard to raise money for a trip the choir would not forget. The money was made so the choir could enter the Six Flags Open Choral Festival in Atlanta, Georgia, in mid-April, '79. The choir held many money making projects such as holding a raffle, a benefit concert, cutting an album, cooking a spaghetti dinner, and doing miscellaneous work at various households. They managed to accumulate the money with the help of nearby business donations. The trip was a success! Aside from receiving four 1st place rankings, the members thoroughly enjoyed themselves by spending their time at the OMNI shopping plaza, braving the rides at Six Flags, swimming and soaking up the sun in 85 degree temperatures, and just having a good time. One of the highlights of the trip was throwing Director John Stoffel in the pool after a hard day's play. It was just nice to get away. A lot of hard work payed off in making this year one of the best for STC choir members. At right: 85 degree temperatures and sunny skies added to the poolside fun in Atlanta as Seniors Jeff Elliott and Brad Karl "toss" a friend in the drink.

Chorale members spent many a Monday night practicing for special performances throughout the year. For the first time ever at STC, sophomores were allowed to audition for chorale. With the expansion of the chorale came an increased number of performances. This year the chorale performed at many church luncheons as well as at a Christmas dinner. Other performances included a funeral, Christmas caroling downtown, and of course concerts. In the spring came the recording of the 1979 STC Choir album for which chorale sang several numbers. Members of the 78-79 Chorale were: Front row: Dave Jahn, Sue Daneck, Carol Monteleone, Barb Pfitzinger, Mary Angerer, Dave Hunt, Becky Adams, and Jane Wray. Second row: Jill Childs, Darcy Brown, Sheryl Kurly, Kathy Anderson, Anne Cordogan, Lucinda Cole, Mark Côté, Bruce Heidlauf, and Suzanne Dawson. Third row: Tracy Triptoe, Kim Lewis, Brad Schneider, Anne Bullen, Mike Bollero, Michelle Stoffel, Debbie St. Pierre, Val Heinkel, and Mary Webb. Fourth row: Mark Plante, Clay Kelley, Gail Bilter, Scott Stevenson, Tom Smick, James Roots, Brad Karl, Kris Brown, and Bill Murphy. Fourth hour was spent eating a quick lunch, tuning-up to B-flat concert scales, and practicing "Chorale and Shaker Dance", during band practice. The STC Concert Bands practiced throughout the year and performed at the Christmas, Tri-City, and Spring Concerts. Mr. Childs taught in his own special style, and his jokes ("Go for it!") kept the band laughing as well as playing.

The bands sold greeting cards to raise money for new uniforms to replace the present ones, which are 20 years old and outdated. (A bow tie?!) The concert bands, under the direction of Jeff Childs, had a successful year. The Presidents of the bands were Ted Thull (Senior band), and Jim Hyde (Freshman band). 'Lettuce entertain you'

"Why do those people have salads on their heads?" Pep band members drew questioning glances from the crowd as they donned lettuce, beach towels, bermuda shorts, and Arab headdresses, in an attempt to rile-up the fans at home basketball games and promote a form of spirit.

Without the help of the band, most of the pep assemblies would not have served their purpose. Songs like "Rock 'Em", "Budweiser", "The Stripper", and of course "Saints in Concert", kept the fans and players alike fired-up.

Special events such as the "Limbo" and the "drum thing" drew even more glances at the games.

The Pep Band, under the direction of Jeff Childs, didn't just play good music. Their goal was to "raise the roof" off STC's gym with yelling and cheering.

This is the second year the Jazz Workshop has met during the school day and, according to director Mr. Jeff Childs, the results are "fantastic!" The 25 members acquired positions in the band either through audition or recommendation of the director. This year the workshop performed at such places as Thompson and Haines Junior Highs, Elgin Community College, the O'Hare Inn "Chicago," Baker Hotel, the Annual Jazz Concert, and wound it all up by cutting an album. Studio Band (sometimes referred to as Jazz Band II) is a first for St. Charles High School as student director Tim Bowser conducted an ensemble of studio musicians including saxophones, trumpets, trombones, piano, flutes, clarinets and percussion. Studio Band members met weekly after school, working on specially arranged charts for studio bands, hoping to prepare them for Jazz Workshop, in years to come as most of the group members are freshmen and sophomores.

National Honor Society guides the school, town

To start off its year of representing and assisting in school and community activities, the National Honor Society (NHS) acted as hosts for "Back to School" night this fall. Among other events, NHS students were guides when the North Central Evaluation Committee visited the school and at College Night. During the induction ceremony, 61 new juniors and seniors were welcomed by Dr. Donald D'Amico, Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Paul Leman, principal, Dr. Carol Bannon, advisor, and the NHS officers, to add to the previous 37 NHS club members. The pieces finally fell in place when the club got together for its winter field trip to Chicago where the members visited the Art Institute and saw Dracula.

Spaghetti, pancakes help Key Club get scoreboard

Key Club was 51 members strong, plus 12 calendar girls and Mr. William Warner, the faculty advisor. The year started by selling the school calendar, which contained events, times, and places of all the happenings throughout the year. The major project of '78-'79 was raising $1500 needed for an electric scoreboard to be given to the STC baseball team. Key Club paid the $1500 bill by making money through various events. The two most successful ones were the pancake breakfast and spaghetti dinner, which made the majority of the money. Key Club activities included the annual Christmas party, which was held for the children at Mades-Johnstone. Choir and drill team members added to the success of the event.

The Key Club officers and board met weekly to plan the agenda for upcoming meetings. The Thursday night meetings were pretty wild at times, but Key Club seemed to get a lot accomplished. Maybe Bob Jones ringing his president's bell or Mr. Warner's lectures were what the club needed to make their projects successful. Everyone in Key Club found time to help out with the various projects, which ranked the club as the 6th best club in the Illinois-Eastern Iowa District.

Pep club rallies for more spirit

Planning pep assemblies, arranging pep buses, organizing spirit weeks, and selling spirited items were among the many activities of this year's Pep Club. More involvement in numerous activities helped to fulfill three unusual spirit weeks. The year got off to a good start with a Homecoming Week full of activities. Next came Spirit Week, where Senior Kevin Ford was chosen by the student body as their Spirit King. In addition to these, Spring Fever Week was included to promote the spirit of spring teams. Throughout the year, Pep Club has put the pieces together and is looking forward to a more spirited environment next year.

Congress does it with Convention and candy canes

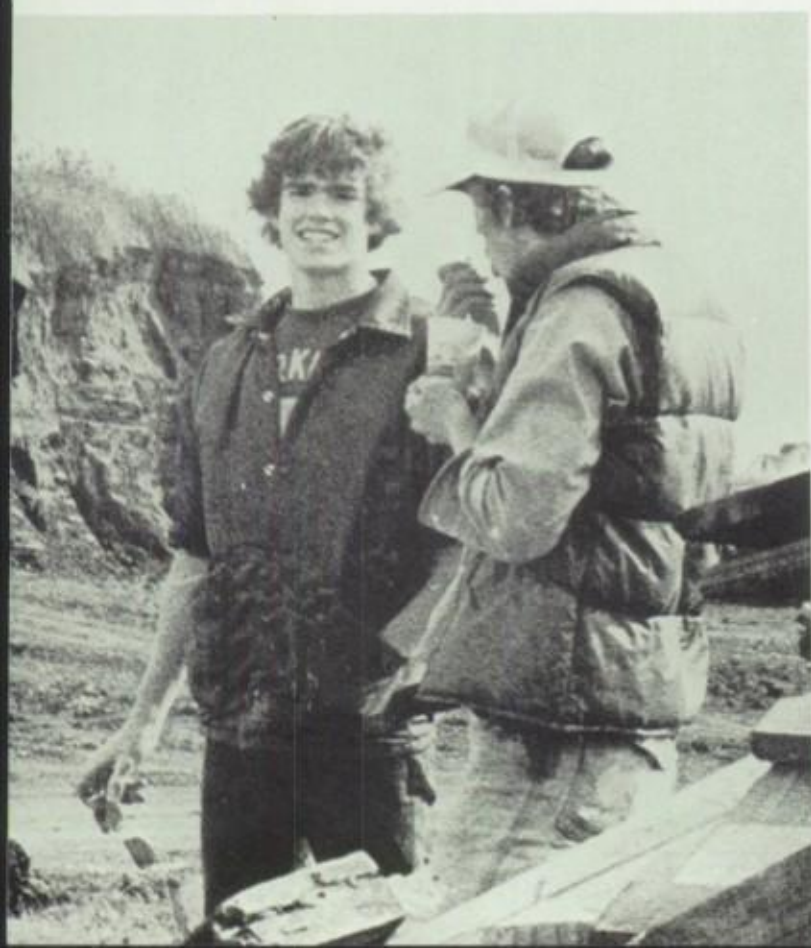

"I'd like to call this meeting to order at . . . well whatever time it is." Although Student Congress may have seemed like a "loose" organization, the members definitely put together ideas from past years and new creations to form what many called the "best Homecoming ever."

Christmas time brought elected reps together on a Sunday afternoon to decorate the Main Commons in red and green and also to stay up many late nights tying 3200 candy canes and messages. Meetings held in the West Resource Center covered such topics as what's going on with the School Board (Eddie's report) or with Prom (what is going on?) and also the dance a-thon and spirit chains.

A key part of the year was hosting the North Central District (NCD) Spring Convention. 200 students from area schools attended meetings and classes with STC hosts and a banquet and dance were held for those attending.

Those students who "got involved" attended a winter retreat at Oregon, IL, and the 6 were snowbound for 4 days with Rockford Guilford-do it!

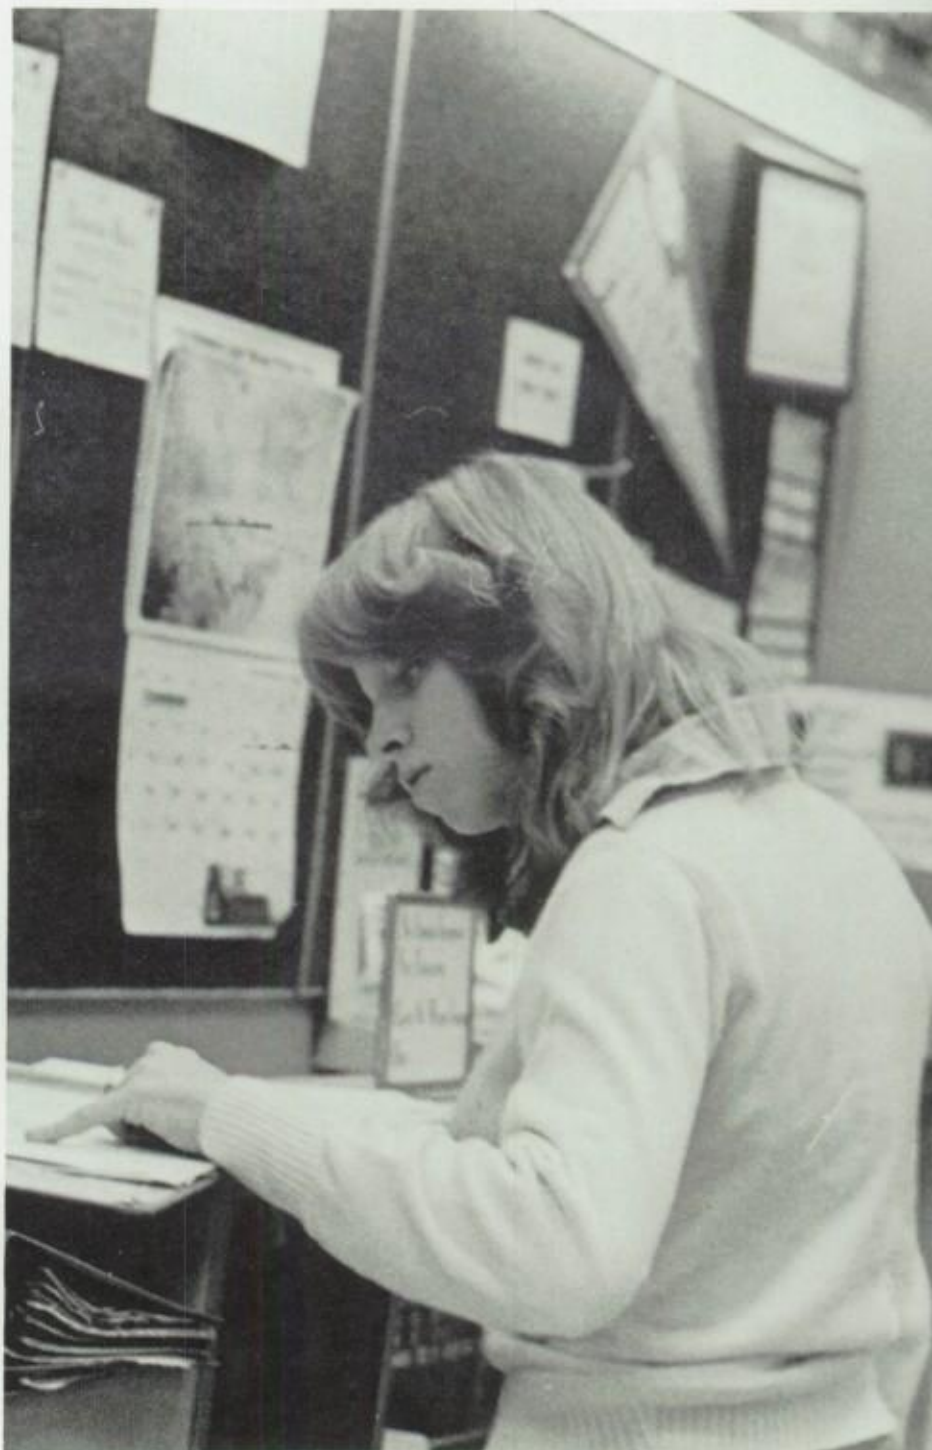

It was a year spent straightening out the reputation of the Congress and also of working for the students . . .

Working for the future

Co-op is a program set up to help those students who wish to work and attend school at the same time, and to also teach the students something about management and business. The requirements to be able to participate in co-op are; you must be able to provide your own transportation to work, that you have a suitable job which allows you to work between 15-30 hours a week, and that you do not have a full academic load.

One program which is involved with co-op is CWT (cooperative work training program) which is for juniors and seniors who have not decided what career they would like to have. Another program which is new and headed by Mr. Don Fineran, mainly deals with 14 and 15 year olds who have not had much academic success. During class time, these clubs have meetings, and they elect officers, have fund-raisers, such as the citrus fruit sale which made over $6300.00. At Christmas time toy drives are held, and students try to help out needy families. Right now approximately 250 students are in this program now and each year that number increases.

Above, Senior Co-op student Lynn Dignan relaxes against the register as she awaits the oncoming rush. Above right, Co-op school shop carries most everything a student needs to make it through the year — plus more than what one would expect. A different kind of fun

"Endlessly exciting" are the two words that best describe Campus Life. It not only gives a person a chance to meet new people and make new friends, but also to participate in many way-out activities. The activities are different, alright, different from any other club. They range from a pie in the face to the remaking of the Dating Game. But in the midst of all the zaniness, leader Al Arvidson takes time out to discuss various obstacles that usually arise among students such as dating, parents, friendships, loneliness and the future. But Campus Life isn't limited to just our school; 18 other schools join with ours to turn out the All-Night Skating party, and Scream in the Dark just to name a few of their accomplishments. Campus Life is one different club — but one has to see it to believe it.

Doing it right

Although the speech team got off to a late start this year, nothing stood in their path of success when they represented St. Charles at the District Speech Contest held Feb 3.

Joann Jacobsen and Anne Bullen received third place in their emotional dramatic duo performance while Anne and Mike Bollero placed third for their humorous duet. As a result, both events went on to sectionals. Institute of Physics is a bunch of crazy but extremely clever human beings who walk the halls wearing SCIP shirts and repeatedly write bizarre but informative letters in the X-Ray. These guys are really fun-loving with their yearly outings on Isaac Newton's birthday, where they read form log tables, and Albert Einstein's birthday, celebrating it with a pizza party.

Others that play up on the physics language include "Ohm on the Range," "Clownie Motion," and "Freq of Nature." One may try to understand these word slurs, but there's no guarantee one would understand the ingenious minds at work.

What do cows and shorthand have in common? Give up? Both are part of an educational program designed to teach students skills in that field they may use later on in life. FFA, Future Farmers of America, and the advisor Mr. William Marshall, involve the students in many activities, one in which the student keeps records on his own crops or livestock and then enters their products in a fair such as the Kane County Fair. This year FFA not only became the sectional winners in Parliamentary Prodecures but also earned the highest award of State Farmers. OEA, Office Education Association, and Mrs. Wendy Lanan gets the students off to a good start by teaching them office skills needed in the world of business. Sue Turzinski, STC OEA student, made it to State with her outstanding skill in shorthand. Retirement is out of the question for active William Marshall (left), FFA advisor, who after 30 years of outstanding teaching, decides to leave STC for bigger and better opportunities, not because of boredom. Marshall leads a busy life; he has been offered the position of Hail Crop Inspector, adding to his 25 year position of State Certified Crop Inspector. He will never in fact retire — he just doesn't have the time.

First soccer team scores big: ends 11-1-

"I'm pleased with our showing this year. Both our offense and defense have been outstanding," said soccer coach Tim Dailey. The Saints outscored their opponents 37-8 over the 13-game season. Seven of the Saints' 11 wins were by shutouts. Junior Dave Arrowsmith scored 10 of the team's 37 goals to lead him to high-scoring honors. Senior Jim Heilman was second with six goals. Heilman also lead the team in assists with 6, while Arrowsmith, Wettengel, and Junior Clay Kelley were second with 4 assists. The STC soccer team finished with an 11-1-1 over-all record. Rockets fly to top

The "Rockets," led by John Richards' high scoring, won the intramural basketball "A league" with a record of 8-0. There were 22 teams which competed, including a new edition, the faculty team. Games were played Monday nights, and the competition was usually tough. The intramural teams provided some good fun and gave players a chance to improve their skills. Senior Bruce Lawyer led all scorers with a 28-point average and a total of 226 points. Other high scorers included Curt Kay, John Richards, and Bob Jones.

Aides help run grand central stations

Why would any student want to give up a free period to become an aid? Some would rather have the responsibilities of being an aid than taking a study hall or another class.

Library aides refile returned books, send out overdue notices, and deliver and return the audio equipment.

Students also help in the Deans' office and the Guidance office. Their main concerns are helping to find a student in class, delivering phone messages, and the dreaded referral slips.

Not many people thank these aides, but one group of people would like to thank them and that is the offices they work in.

In, near, and around the water

This year there were twelve guards who helped to protect the lives of the students who had to swim during their P.E. hour. Each of the students went into the pool area and guarded the swimmers. They also helped to teach lessons and did general upkeep of the pool itself.

A first for St. Charles this year was a Water Polo team. Although it was not noticed as much as football, the team did remarkably well. Coached by Elmer Korbei, the boys bought home a first place in the State Novice Division and had a record of 14-1, the only loss being to the other state division champs. A new sport seems to have made its home at St. Charles.

Foreign horizons expand

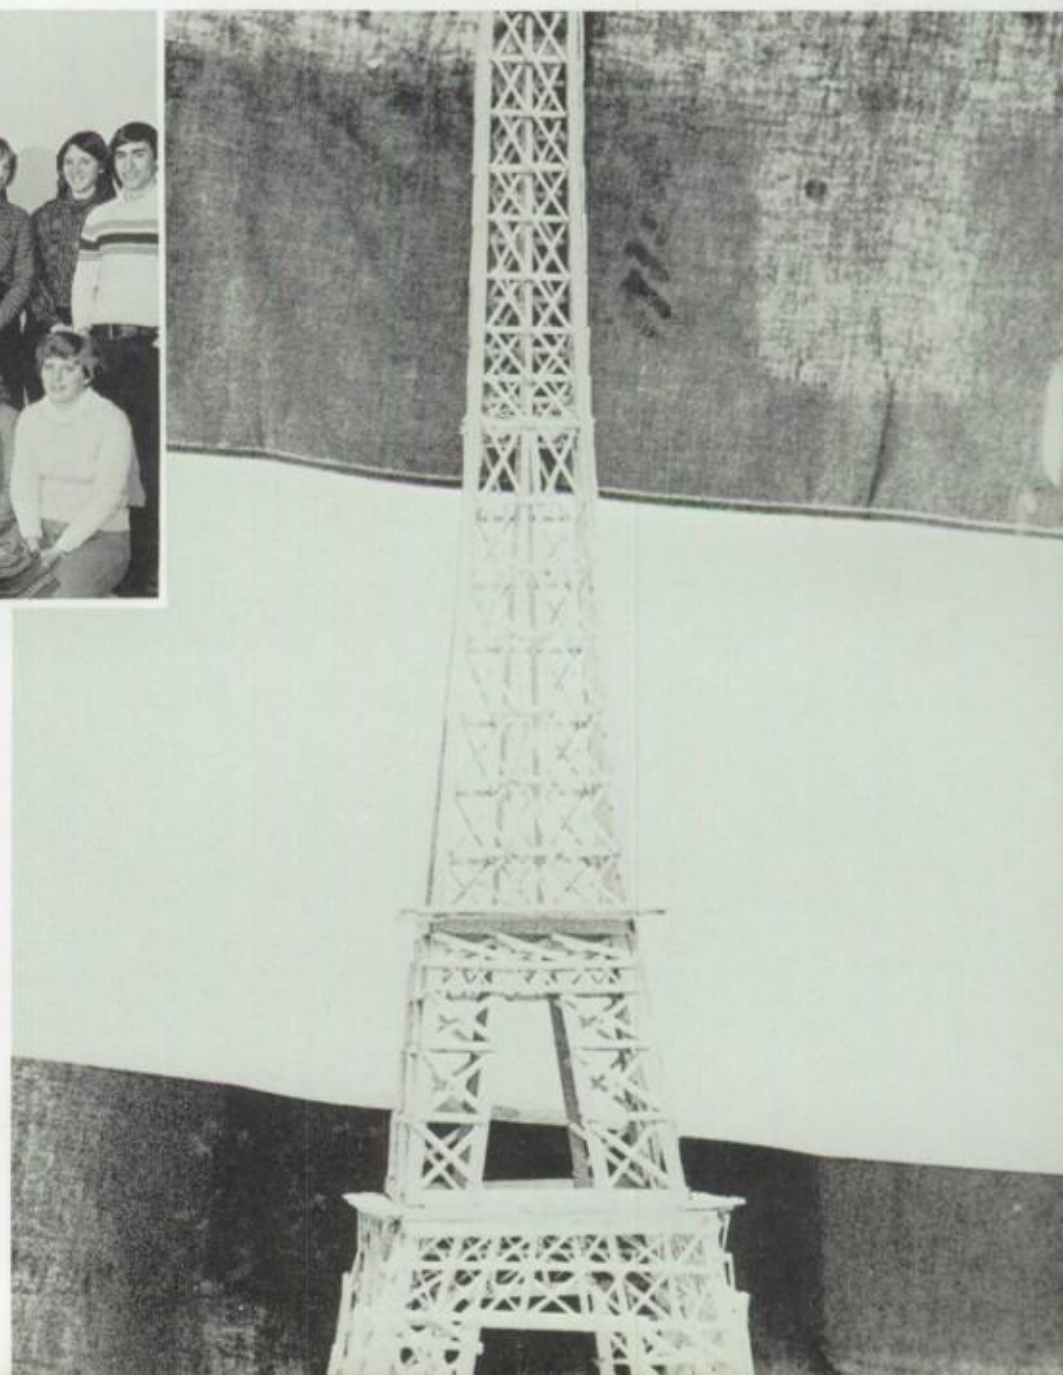

Pieces fell together at STC but not always in the same way; sometimes they fell together in foreign languages. With the addition of German to the language department came the addition of a German Club. The new addition fell into place making the language club puzzle complete. The Spanish Club held bake sales to raise money for their Christmas party. The club also took time to go to a Mexican restaurant before viewing the "Ballet Folclorico," a folk dance troupe from Mexico. A trip to the Spanish film festival in Chicago was also a highlight of the year. The French Club also kept busy. Some of their activities included a French Christmas concert and a trip to a French Opera. The club also took part in the National French Contest. For one of their projects the German Club sang Christmas carols for patients at the hospital. Latin Club, in the tradition of "Animal House," donned togas in the Homecoming parade. One of the biggest projects this year for all clubs was the International Dinner.

After dinner those attending were treated to skits, songs and games presented by the various clubs. One of the most hilarious being a parody on the "Twilight Zone" presented by the Latin Club. The dinner was a complete success and was enjoyed by all who attended. The year saw many activities tying together cultures from all over the world. Clubs not only had fun but learned a lot too. This year pieces fell together . . . in the right way!

Pawns and pasta are pieces, too

Throughout the 14 match season, the Chess Team exhibited exceptional enthusiasm, exuberance and expertise as they exerted, exploited, explored, exhausted, experimented, expanded, exercised, and excelled at their competitive exchanges. St. Charles expressed their excellence with a record of 9-5. The team extended their experience by attending the State Chess Team Championship in Homerwood-Flossmore where they exited with a 2½-3½ record. Bill La Prise excelled to the extreme that he is the exclusive Upstate Eight Chess Player qualified for the exalted excursion to the State Individual Chess Finals in Rantoul. This extraordinary season was extremely exciting and satisfying for everyone.

In the beginning

As early as the first settlers, wild flowers have grown all over the prairies of the U.S. But during the process of thousands of people coming to the lands, prairies, plains, and other beautiful pieces of land have been destroyed, but there is hope. Prairie Project has been replacing these wild flowers in a prairie which has been given to us by the Leroy Oakes Forest Preserve. Each fall when school begins prairie project members organize themselves in to groups. Each group has a specific job to do during the school year; The gatherers in the fall collect seeds from the previous year. These seeds are then put in a cool, moist place. Then in the Spring the seeds are planted in little peat pots. After the seeds have grown into plants, they are then trans-planted in the right atmosphere on the prairie. All summer long members of the club, including, Mr. Bob Horlock, advisor, (above) weed the various plots where these wild flowers have been planted. Prairie project is helping wild life stay as it was . . . in the beginning.

X-Ray '79 welcomes you to the 'Pig Sty'

Broken typewriters, missing pictures and stories, and "Piglet of the Week" were just a few of the things that the X-Ray staff had to put up with this year. Room 216, St. Charles High School's hectic "city room" was the center of activity for the newspaper. Known affectionately as the "Pig Sty," room 216 was not only the news room, but it also served as study hall and lunch room to the many students who found solace there. The "Piglet of the Week" award was given out to the lucky student that made the worst mess during the week in the room. While it was quite an honor to be chosen "Piglet of the Week" once, if a former "Piglet" was blessed with the award again, he found himself gutted, and hanging up to dry, before being made into next season's football.

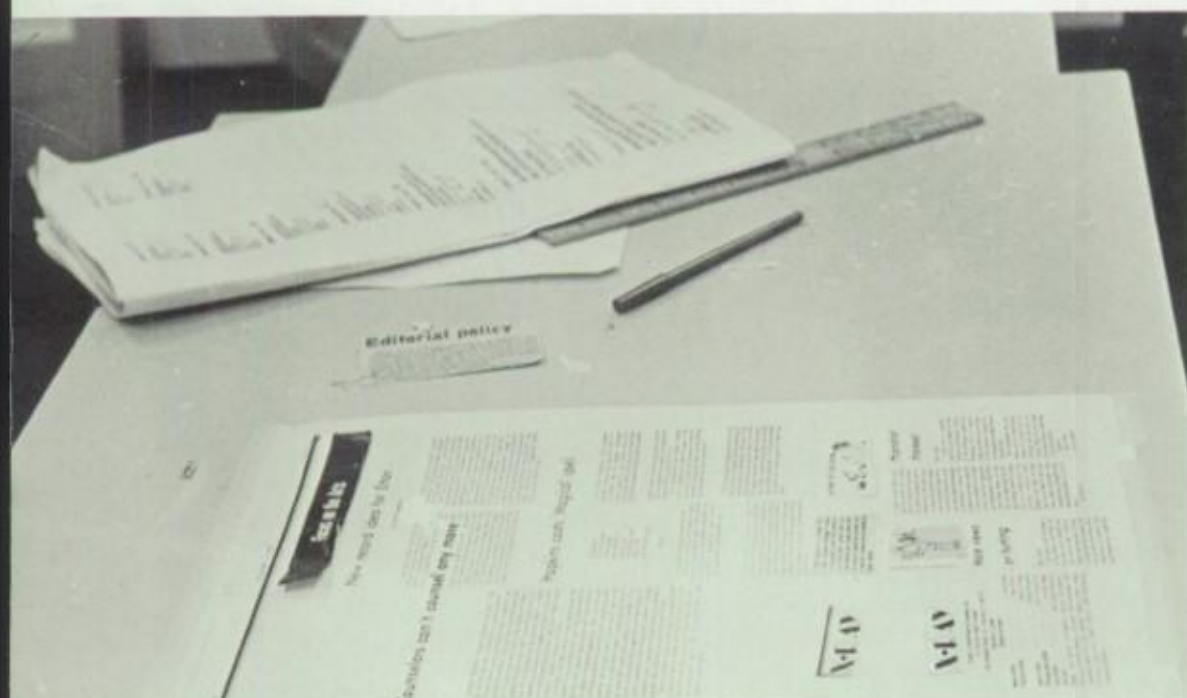

Once again, dedicated staffers came through to put the paper together, even under hazardous conditions. During the "Blizzard of '79", when the school was closed due to snow on the roof, loyal X-Ray staff members risked their lives working in the unsafe building to put the paper out on time.

If the X-Ray force wasn't looking for their mysteriously missing pictures and stories, which always seemed to walk right out of locked drawers, they were looking for the IBM man, who was constantly coming to the rescue of the staff, as the typewriters periodically broke down. Having to type a story on one of the dilapidated manual typewriters in the room was almost as bad as having to spend the entire day in IBS, in hopes of getting a story out of the experience. Though the staff waded through many problems and hard times, their efforts were not in vain. The X-Ray won numerous awards for the '78-'79 school year, among them a first class rating from NSPA. Blue Ribbon excellence awards were given to the X-Ray from NISPA for sports reporting, news reporting, photojournalism, and feature writing. Advisor Candy "Ma" Perkins was always on hand to help confused students 'put the pieces together' when there were problems with a story, and if there wasn't a solution to the problem, Ma would be by the student's side as they crawled under a desk in retreat. Even with all the chaos putting out the paper created, staffers said they'd have it no other way. Just as thespians love "the smell of the greasepaint and the roar of the crowd," STC journalists loved the sound of the typewriters and the roar of the editor. Well, sometimes . . .

Halo staff pieces together another yearbook

Walk into Room 216 and prepare yourself to be swept into another world. Upon entering, one will find a mass of people running around, looking for lost layouts, trying to find a useable typewriter, and everyone asking "MA" Perkins questions at the same time.

Although most students don't know what a yearbook staff goes through to produce the "best ever," the ones who do know the struggles and time spent on this yearbook. The selected few who had deadlines to meet and obstacles to overcome muddled through it all and on June 9, 1979, the last of the yearbook was finally sent to the printers. The HALO staff and particularly the editors spent countless hours before, during and after school writing copy, creating layouts, scheduling group pictures, printing pictures, typing senior comments, and covering major events. Many a time, this overworked but crazy group, could be found talking to themselves or crawling under a table hidden from the world. Overall, everyone put forth an incredible amount of effort to turn out the 1979 HALO. Through all the hard work, a feeling of togetherness became apparent as the staff worked as one. Pride and relief were shared by one and all as the last layout was completed. The editors had many good times throughout the year of '79, and only one of them Suzanne Dawson, will be returning next year. As the years pass, each editor will always be permanently affected by the goings-on in "Good Ole Room 216!"

And the final piece is put in place . . .

It was a year of accomplishments — a national chess champion and a state champion swim team brought fame to STC; an all-out rock opera was performed to standing room only audiences, a student congress convention hosted 300 students. It was a year of concern — cafeteria food received close scrutiny, North Central Evaluating Committee observed the set-up of STC; students voiced their gripes in letters to the editor in the X-Ray. It was a year of craziness — the Institute of Physics lauded Einstein; Student Congress sorted and delivered 3200 candy canes; the Blizzard of '79 created a need for diversion; and the HALO staff met one deadline with the help of Wendy's "hot 'n' juicy." In the national and international news was the oil shortage, test tube babies, peace in the Middle East, Three Mile Island and nuclear problems, a woman mayor for Chicago, and a newly selected Pope who died. Through it all, STC students, teachers and administrators studied and learned and listened and tried. And through it all, they put the final piece in the puzzle for not only 1979, but for the whole decade of the '70s.

The background of the entire page is a collage of US dollar bills and coins. A one-dollar bill is prominent in the upper left, showing the portrait of George Washington and the text 'THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA'. Other bills and coins are scattered throughout, creating a textured, financial theme.
